DROPPING WETS BATTLE TO HEAD OFF ROOSEVELT

Insist He Pussyfoots to Win Dry States.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The opinion is held pretty widely in Democratic circles that if it is to be about time to elect a wet President as was done in 1912. Re... were the only years as the opinion is widely held by the Republicans, as expressed by ... of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican national committee last week.

Case of Coy Aspirants.

In the case of coy aspirants considered only Two: Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Newton D. Baker of Ohio, secretary of war during the world war. In addition to these there are only two others figuring at all in the calculations of the politicos. They are Alfred E. Smith, democratic candidate in 1928, and Gov. Ely.

Gov. Roosevelt is and has been from the start the leading candidate. It looked for a time as if he were going to win with little opposition. In the last few weeks, however, the situation has changed completely. There is a formidable opposition to him.

Mr. Roosevelt is a wet, though a comparatively recent convert, for he did not declare formally against prohibition until he was nominated for governor in 1928. Then he came out for repeal of prohibition with provision that any states could elect to remain dry. He became thereby as wet as Smith. Yet his support for the nomination comes mainly from the politically dry states of the south and voted almost negligibly from the wet state of the Mississippi with the exception of New York.

Roosevelt Signs Wet Bills.

His situation has come about as a result of the attitude partly of Gov. Roosevelt and partly of Mr. Smith and Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee.

Although a wet, by virtue of campaign declaration and signature of wet bills at Albany the governor has not pushed the prohibition issue in national affairs and has made a bid for the support of the dry south and west. He championed the southern opposition to Mr. Raskob's plan to write an anti-prohibition declaration into the national committee last June and was successful. Mr. Raskob, whatever his proposal, announced he would revive it at the meeting next month.

The governor now is actively fighting the Raskob program to obtain from the national committee a recommendation that the national convention consider a modification of the eighteenth amendment providing for repeal prohibition by states. He is making a wet plank in the platform. He made a prohibition plank which would not embarrass the candidacies of avowedly dry candidates for congress in the south or elsewhere.

Refuses to Meet Raskob.

Within the last few days Chairman Raskob has sought a conference with the governor, who refused to meet him, thereby making himself still more unpopular with the southerners who are clamoring for the removal of Mr. Raskob from the chairmanship.

It also falls out that although those democrats who have a Chinaman's chance of being nominated are wets, Mr. Roosevelt is the darling of the drys. And by the same token to the extent that he has commended himself to the drys he has alienated the wets. The wet reaction against the governor has been promoted and organized by Messrs. Smith and Raskob. The organized movement to "stop Roosevelt" has developed in the last few months. Up to that time wet democrats had been flirting with the gov-

CHILD ON SLED, SIX RESCUERS DROWN IN LAKE

Pre-Christmas Gift Leads to Tragedy.

Muskegon, Mich., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Seven persons, including four members of one family, lost their lives late today in Ergang lake, 25 miles north of here, as the tragic toll of a premature Christmas gift.

The gift, a bright colored sled, broke through the thin ice of the lake, carrying its 7 year old recipient to death. In quick succession the boy's parents, his brother, and three neighbors died in vain attempts at rescue.

Names of the Victims.

Victims of the tragedy, all of whom lived on Ergang lake, were:
ALBERT OMAN, 32 years old.
ELSIE OMAN, also 32, his wife.
OLIVER, 12 years old, their son.
ORVILLE, 7 years old, another son.
HARRY ERGANG, 29 years old.
JAMES MORGAN, 17 years old.
THEODORE MORGAN, 14 years old, his brother.

The scene of the tragedy is in a desolate section of heavy timberland, difficult of accessibility. The lake, which is deep, and covers 20 acres, is named after the grandfather of Harry Ergang. The Omans, Ergangs, and Morgans are all related. The Morgan boys lived on the lake with their mother, Martha, during recent years. Their father is believed to be in Chicago.

Parents Yield; Present Sled.

It was early this afternoon that the prelude to the tragedy opened. Orville, impatiently awaiting the arrival of Christmas and Santa Claus, was questioning his parents about what gifts he might receive. They smiled, and urged him to wait. But the boy pleaded and begged. Mr. and Mrs. Oman held a secret conference and announced that they would give Orville one of his presents beforehand. They brought out the sled.

Orville laughed in glee, then dashed out to the lake, where a thin covering of ice had formed during the night.

"The ice is strong enough," he shouted on his return. In a moment he was away and upon the lake in a headlong "belly-flop." At the windows sat his parents and brother, Oliver, watching. Near by the Morgan boys and Ergang also looked on.

Ice Breaks; He Disappears.

Orville returned to shore. Again he started another slide on the sled. He coasted 100 feet out on the lake. Suddenly there was a crackling sound. The parents saw a black spot in the white sheet of ice, heard a scream of terror, and saw Orville and his sled disappear.

Oman, his wife, and their other son, Oliver, quickly ran to a small boat on shore, and started to break through the ice. As they neared the spot where Orville went down, their boat overturned, sending all three to their deaths. Meanwhile, Ergang had started on the ice on foot. Behind him were the Morgan boys. They had proceeded but 50 feet when another gap broke in the ice, and they also went down.

Dog Runs Home for Help.

There was still another rescuer, a police dog, owned by the Morgan boys. His attempts at rescue failing, he ran out and bleeding up the hill to the Morgan home. There he seized Mrs. Martha Ergang, 66 years old, by the dress, and led her to the lake. Mrs. Ergang is the mother of Harry Ergang, Mrs. Oman and Mrs. Morgan, and grandmother of James and Theodore. When she arrived at the lake James was struggling feebly in the water. She started out upon the ice.

"Stay back, grandmother," called James. "The ice won't hold you. I can't hold out any longer." As he spoke he sank. Mrs. Ergang summoned her daughter, Martha, mother of the boys, and Martha ran a mile over uneven paths to the home of Carl Franke. He notified officials here.

Sheriff Adolph Charron and deputies hurried to the lake. They recovered the bodies of all but Orville. In the Oman home, sobbing alone, he found Gloria, 3 years old, sole survivor of the family.

Edward Brandes, Danish Dramatist, Is Dead at 84

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Dr. Edward Brandes, author, dramatist and critic, and twice minister of finance, died after a brief illness here today. He was 84 years old. Dr. Brandes, a younger brother of the late George Brandes, philosopher and Shakespearean authority, was one of the best known literary figures in Denmark, and many of his plays were produced abroad.

Servant Slays Rich Man and Stabs Woman

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—A Japanese butler, enraged at being dismissed from a soft and lucrative job in the home of J. W. Schatz, millionaire manufacturer, murdered his wealthy employer here today and forced a woman guest in the house to witness the execution.

Then, aided by his sister-in-law who had posed for nine months as his wife, the Japanese turned on the woman. She was saved from the fate of her host only because police, summoned by a telephone operator, arrived before he had time to commit another murder.

The woman, Mrs. Florence Quick Carozza, 26 years old, former wife of an ex-member of the New York state police, was taken to Vassar hospital, where she told District Attorney John R. Schmarts as stark a tale of murder as has come to light in many a day.

Slayer Found in Hiding.

The butler, Gentro Akiyama, who is 36 and his sister-in-law, Sadako Otsuka, were being held for the grand jury on warrants charging them with murder in the first degree. Akiyama was found, half naked, under a sheet of paper in the coal bin an hour after the killing of Mr. Schatz.

The Schatz home, a fine old Georgian house, was in great disorder when the police arrived. Furniture was overturned, the soft hued rugs were stained with blood and broken glass, a hatchet, three knives and a hammer littered the floor. An overturned telephone instrument revealed how the police were called.

Mrs. Carozza told District Attorney Schwartz that while Mr. Schatz lay dying from his wounds, Akiyama sat her in a chair and forced her to watch while he twisted a knife in his employer's mouth and hacked at his fingers with a hatchet.

Shows Hatred at Dismissal.

Schatz and his attractive house guest spent the evening at home. The Japanese servants, returning after an evening out, neglected to serve refreshments as ordered and became surly when reprimanded. Schatz dismissed them summarily.

Mrs. Carozza was lying awake a little before 7 a. m., she said, when she saw Akiyama creeping through a window.

Before she could scream, she said, the Japanese was upon her, his fingers tightening about her throat. Mr. Schatz, awakening, started to rise from the bed, but the Japanese seized a bottle of mineral water and broke it over the manufacturer's head.

Leaving Schatz unconscious on the floor, Akiyama returned and began to choke Mrs. Carozza again. As she struggled, she said, she saw Schatz arise from the floor and stagger from the room into a hallway where the Otsuka woman was waiting. Akiyama hurled a vase which struck Schatz in the head, breaking into a hundred jagged pieces.

The butler then dragged Schatz to the cellar while Sadako held Mrs. Carozza. After about fifteen minutes she said Akiyama returned and asked:

"Do you want to see Schatz now?"

Akiyama, she said, then forced her downstairs to the cellar and thrust her into a chair facing the still living Schatz who lay on the floor. After inflicting the torture which she had described on his employer, Mrs. Carozza said, Akiyama, a hammer in one hand, a long knife in the other, turned upon her. He struck her several times with the hammer, she said.

Mr. Schatz's wife divorced him in Reno about four years ago. He has one daughter, Dorothea, and two brothers, Grover and Herman Schatz.

British Queen Buys Daughter Place to Live

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Queen Mary has purchased a house in Mayfair for her only daughter, Princess Mary, and her husband, the earl of Harewood, at a moment when the pinch of hard times is forcing the couple to abandon the most important of the noble lord's ancestral estates, according to published reports in London today.

The house, which is a "comparatively" modest establishment, can be run with a maximum of eight servants. It was bought by the queen last March.

Will Move After Holidays.

Accounts differ as to whether it is turned over as a gift or as the completion of a transaction in which the queen acted as the agent for her daughter. It is stated, however, that the princess and her husband will move in during the new year, and further that the earl, who is known as one of the wealthiest men in the kingdom, was recently forced to make severe economies because of reduced revenues as the result of burdensome taxation.

It has cost him several thousand dollars weekly to keep up his various establishments, but the drain of the supertax forced him to darken two of the most famous homes in England. He is now closing Chesterfield house, his present residence, containing 100 rooms and four or five picture galleries. Recently he shut Goldsborough hall, one of his Yorkshire seats, and his country house before he succeeded to the earldom.

Four Royal Mansions Closed.

The earl's wealth was inherited chiefly from his grand uncle, Lord Clanricarde. Much of it is made up of costly masterpieces of art for which there is at present no market.

Four of the royal mansions are now closed. The other two are Marlborough house in London and the former home of the late princess royal, King George's aunt. It was reported originally that the new home of the earl and princess was purchased by the queen either for the duke of Gloucester or Prince George, the king and queen's third and fourth sons.

Pullman Company Fined $20,000 by Mexico for Error

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A fine of 50,000 pesos [about $20,000] has been imposed on the Pullman company because a drawing room reserved by Foreign Minister Genaro Estrada was sold to two Americans, the department of communications announced today. The company was charged with violating the communications law in causing the foreign minister and his wife to occupy a section of a sleeping car instead of the drawing room on his return from Monterey after the gubernatorial inauguration there in October.

Holdup Gang Shoots Girl in Cafe Crowd

BULLETIN.

Detective Caplis died of his wound in the Lake View hospital at 4 o'clock this morning.

A detective and a girl were shot, the former perhaps fatally, and fifty other guests were imperiled in a spectacular gun battle between the policeman and six bandits in the Beach View Garden cafe, Chinese restaurant at 304 Wilson avenue, early this morning.

More than fifteen shots were exchanged, and bullets flew all over the restaurant, which is on the second floor. No other casualties resulted because the policeman separated himself from the crowd to draw the bandits' fire. The battle missed being broadcast over the radio by less than five minutes, the cafe orchestra having just signed off.

Policeman and Girl Shot.

The victims of the gun fight are Policeman James J. Caplis, 31 years old, of 5504 Congress street, and Miss Peggy Griggs, 20 years old, of 5516 West 64th street. Caplis, assigned to the detective bureau, was shot in the back. Miss Griggs was struck by two shotgun slugs in the left arm and, with Caplis, was taken to the Lake View hospital.

It was shortly after 1 o'clock this morning when the bandits alighted from an automobile in Clarendon avenue, near the main entrance of the restaurant. They walked in a group toward the door, and as Leon Johnson, Negro doorman, made way for them they drew revolvers and shotguns. Johnson raised his arms as ordered and preceded the gang to the second floor.

Bandits Enter Restaurant.

Verne Buck, orchestra leader, had just lowered his baton and a score of diners were slowly filing from the dance floor to their tables. Johnson entered the restaurant proper first, immediately followed by two of the robbers. A second later the other four bandits deployed to separate parts of the place.

Two of them walked over to M. S. Bow, manager, and J. D. King, assistant manager, both Chinese, who were at the cashier's cage. Two others stepped up to the orchestra, while the third pair, extending shotguns, faced the men and women diners.

"All right now, no trouble," called out one of the gunmen. "We mean business."

Diners Ordered Against Wall.

He waved his shotgun, herding the diners into a group against a wall. The bandits covering Buck and his orchestra waved them to another corner. The musicians—Ralph Cipay, Harry Wright, Ray Erwin, Burt McDonald, Bud Wallen, Harry Hiatt, John Mueller, and Philip Shapes—dropped their instruments and obeyed.

Meanwhile Detective Caplis had been sitting at a table with his sweetheart, Miss Marie Pelzer of 4738 North Kedvale avenue. He loitered behind the other patrons as they walked toward the designated wall. Suddenly Caplis broke away from the group. He wheeled around and raced to the farthest wall, drawing his revolver at the same instant.

Caplis Draws Robbers' Fire.

By this act Caplis made himself the sole target for expected gunfire and was free to battle the bandits. He fired as the nearest bandit turned to him. The robber fired back. At the same time he retreated. His confederates also retreated, still menacing the crowd and one or two of them blazing away at Caplis.

Caplis moved forward as the robbers reached the stairway, firing as he went. By this time he was between the gunmen and several of the guests. One of the robbers fired a charge from his shotgun. It was two slugs of this charge which struck Miss Griggs. There was a roar as another shotgun blazed. Unhit as yet, Detective Caplis raced to the head of the stairs to send a final shot at the fleeing bandits. He was met by a bullet before he had an opportunity to face fully the descending robbers.

Fight to Save Policeman.

As Caplis fell on the landing, Miss Pelzer became hysterical. Half a dozen men picked up the fallen policeman and took him to the hospital, where an emergency operation was performed. Physicians said he had slight chance of recovery.

The Town Hall police were notified. Squads went to the scene and started a search for the hoodlums. It was thought that one of them might have been wounded by Caplis.

Caplis was a winner of THE TRIBUNE'S monthly hero award in June, 1928. With Lieut. Andrew Barry he participated in the capture of Charles (Limpy) Cleaver, leader of the bandit gang which stole $133,000 from a mail train in Evergreen Park in February of 1928. Barry was wounded. Cleaver was subsequently convicted in federal court and is now serving a 25 year prison term for the robbery.

CHINESE ARMY OPENS DRIVE TO TAKE MUKDEN

Japanese Mass to Repulse Attack.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 21 (Monday).—A clash is reported imminent between 7,000 Chinese bandits, reinforced by 3,000 troops from the Chinese army at Chinchow, and Japanese railway guards under Maj. Gen. Mori between Fakumen and Changtu, north of Mukden. Gen. Mori ordered a general offensive against the Chinese last night. The Chinese reached a point near Changtu last night, it was reported.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 21.—[Monday.]—Dispatches from Mukden today stated that a Chinese army of 15,000 troops has completed preparations at Chinchow for a general offensive against the Japanese forces in the South Manchurian railway zone. The Chinese forces are divided in three bodies and are reported to have three objectives, Szupingkai, Tiehling, and Liaoyang.

About 35,000 additional Chinese troops are expected to move north from Chinchow shortly. Gen. Tung Chen, Chinese commander, is reported to have ordered regular troops at Tungliang and Yingkow to march on Mukden at once in an attempt to recapture the city from the Japanese. This would force the Japanese to defend themselves against an attack from four directions.

Japanese Prepare for Battle.

Japanese action to repulse the Chinese advance is expected to begin this morning. The war office has already been advised that Japanese troops departed from Wanling, Kirin, and other points yesterday. Reinforcements are being rushed from northern Manchuria.

The Chinese, according to dispatches from Mukden, have completed several lines of trenches west of the Liao and Taling rivers.

Inasmuch as the Chinese army imported military airplanes recently, it is expected that the initial Sino-Japanese clash will occur in the air, particularly because military officials here concede that the Japanese infantry will not be able to advance across the river and take the Chinese trenches without suffering heavy losses.

Japanese Are Outnumbered.

Military authorities here believe that the imminent battle will be the greatest since the opening of hostilities in Manchuria, as the Chinese forces at Chinchow are far superior in numbers and are better trained than the troops the Japanese have met heretofore.

It is officially explained that the Japanese troop movements must be regarded as defensive and are alike in character to the expedition to Anganchi and Taitsihar.

It is stated that unless Japan smashes the Chinese offensive, it will gravely jeopardize Japanese lives and property, including the Japanese owned South Manchuria railway. Consequently it is pointed out that Japan must repulse the Chinese before falling into a disadvantageous position, especially since the Japanese are greatly outnumbered.

Minami Leaves for Mukden.

Gen. Jiro Minami, former minister of war, left for Mukden last night on an important mission. It is felt that a Japanese high commission may be established at Mukden as a result of his visit. Interviewed before his departure, he said he prefers "securing existing rights in Manchuria which are endangered rather than seeking any rights which would be merely nominal."

He will consult heads of Japanese administrative organs, including railways, business interests and military organizations.

Orders Chinese to Withdraw.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 20. — (AP) — Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, was reported in Chinese reports today to have delivered an ultimatum demanding that Chinese forces at Chinchow be withdrawn from Manchuria within two weeks and announcing his troops would occupy the evacuated territory.

The Fengtien provincial government at, whose temporary headquarters is at Chinchow, was said to have received a communication from Gen. Honjo saying "in order to preserve peace in the far east and protect Japanese interests in Manchuria and Mongolia, the Japanese forces will be advanced westward of the Liao river as far as the Great wall."

The Chinese government and its military forces must evacuate Chinchow and retire beyond the Great wall, he said, "within a fortnight, thereby avoiding a possible clash." The dispatch reported that "a grave situation threatens hereabouts."

The official Chinese news agency, Kuo Min, announced that Finance Minister T. V. Soong had tendered his resignation, effective tomorrow, but it was believed he would carry on. He was quoted as saying the resignation of President Chiang Kai-shek automatically necessitated his quitting.

Students Enlist in Ma's Army.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A Daily Mail dispatch from Harbin said today that students from all parts of China were gathering at Hailun to enlist in the army of Gen. Ma Chan-shan, which is opposing the Japanese drive against bandits in Manchuria. Gen. Ma had received nearly $3,500,000 from Chinese overseas, the dispatch said, which apparently was stiffening his attitude toward the Japanese troops.

Chinese Form "Crying Party."

NANKING, China, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The Chinese government was faced with a new problem today when word was received from Hangchow that students had organized a "crying party" to protest Japanese activities in Manchuria.

The students plan to come to Nanking and cry lustily before the tomb of Sun Yat-sen, father of the republic, in the hope that their tears will move officials to adopt a policy more in line with the students' ideas.

The Kuomintang [Nationalist] convention, scheduled to open tomorrow, has been postponed until Wednesday when it will undertake the formation of a new government. The postponement was necessitated by the inability of some of the Cantonese delegates to arrive on time.

SUN YAT-SEN'S WIDOW ASSAILS CHINA'S LEADERS

Brands Political Chiefs as People's Worst Enemies.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 20.—Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the "father of the Chinese republic," today condemned China's political leaders—both Nanking and Canton—as the people's worst enemies.

MME. SUN YAT-SEN

Mme. Sun Yat-sen, who once was active in China's political affairs, but now is in retirement here, reviewed the nation's history since the death of her husband in 1925, and said its leaders had deserted the revolutionary path traced by him, "fattening themselves through corruption and despicable political tricks which the pre-republican mandarinate dared not attempt."

Attacks Resigned President.

This woman, who broke off relations with the Kuomintang party in 1927, flayed former President Chiang Kai-shek, her brother-in-law, as a "political opportunist" "whose personal dictatorship has threatened actual extinction of the country's revolutionary party."

"Sun Yat-sen founded the Kuomintang for revolutionary purposes," she said. "If the party cannot save the nation and benefit the people I shall not regret to see its extinction.

"Corruption and chicanery have reached the nth degree. Those in the central government have occupied key positions and fattened their pockets, while those in the local governments have preyed upon the defenseless people. Opportunists have found positions with the remnants of the militarists and leaped into prominence, while on the other hand real revolutionists were put to death."

Calls Party Rule "Criminal."

"During the last five years there have been continual civil war and political feuds. Our party has disintegrated and the so-called leaders have stooped to begging mercy from foreign imperialists and have resorted to political tricks the old mandarins never would have dared. Under the name of party rule every conceivable crime has been committed, until the people hate the name Koumintang.

"Since the Japanese invasion of Manchuria, owing to public opinion, both Nanking and Canton were forced to lay down their arms for a so-called peace and national unification. For months the leaders squabbled over party spoils, neglecting the people's welfare.

"These so-called leaders are unaware that the reason for the existence of the rule of personal dictatorship, degeneration of the Koumintang, and the country's invasion by a foreign foe are all traceable to their departure from the masses.

"I am unwilling to see a nation of 400,000,000 people extinguished by the Kuomintang."

Moves of Foreigners Closely Watched.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 20.—It was inevitable that Japan should develop, along with its military system, an espionage orgnization, the ramifications of which are understood by few foreigners, but which is supposed to be modeled on the old German and czarist systems.

There is no place where the Japanese espionage system is more in evidence than on the Asiatic continent where Japan is now fighting to maintain her so-called "rights and interests." In some mysterious manner foreign travelers proceeding to Dairen either from Japan or from China are always fully known and their life histories fully catalogued before they reach Dairen.

Dairen is supposed to be a free port, hence there should be no baggage inspection. But the hotel porter that meets the ships always politely asks for the trunk and suitcase keys in order that no contraband may be brought in. The word "contraband," the visitor is told, means tobacco or cigarets, as Dairen comes within the scope of the Japanese tobacco monopoly. Visitors, however, often find that their effects, particulaly books and papers, have been gone over with a fine tooth comb.

Perry Wrote of Spy System.

In Commodore Perry's account of his famous expedition to Japan, written in 1853, he told of the curious espionage system which existed at that time. Commodore Perry attributed the system to Japan's isolated situation and vulnerability to foreign attack. He said there were two separate spy systems, one for spying on visitors and the other for spying on the spies. However, the system has been considerably modernized, but even yet there are manifestations which suggest mediaevalism.

Foreigners who reside in Japan proper are never outside the orbit of the secret police and their comings and goings are carefully tabulated, often in most starry manner, such as inquiries among the servants as to the number and names of guests and what they talked about.

Sometimes these reports get into the Japanese newspapers with humorous results. Some papers maintain a special page to record scandalous happenings. On one occasion one of the papers reported that the military attache of a certain embassy had visited the Tokio tenderloin district. Naturally, the report created a considerable commotion in the particular embassy the next morning. Investigation showed, however, that the military attache had gone out to dinner at a friend's house and while dining the Japanese chauffeur had taken the car to the segregated district.

How It Works in Manchuria.

It is in present-day war-torn Manchuria that one finds the Japanese espionage system developed to unusual degree. Special attention is directed at foreign newspaper correspondents and official and unofficial observers who have been sent to this region by various foreign governments.

The Osaka Mainichi on Oct. 17 published a story which apparently was based on the report of an espionage officer. A translation of the story, in part, was somewhat as follows:

"On the afternoon of Oct. 23, Mr. Vincent, American counsel at Mukden, entered the Yamato hotel, went to the second floor and knocked on the door of room 214. The door was opened by Lieut. Brown, assistant American naval attache and after shaking hands, both entered the room, locked the door and held a secret conference.

"On Oct. 26 Mr. Powell of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE drove up to the hotel and had a secret conference with Mr. Chester Rowell of California in Mr. Rowell's room. The next day, Mr. Powell, Mr. Rowell and Mr. Ferrar, the Spanish consul-general, departed in a motor car for the American consulate for a secret conference . . ."

An American military officer pointed out to me eight men in the lobby of the hotel whom he thought to be Japanese spies. Then he pointed to four motor cars which were kept standing in front of the hotel with chauffers at the wheel for the purpose of following persons about the city.

One foreign correspondent who was constantly being followed decided to have some fun. Driving to one of the foreign consulates, he dismissed his car and then entered a car belonging to the consulate and by concealing himself on the floor succeeded in getting out of the compound and back to the hotel without being noticed. The car containing the two Japanese detectives was left standing in front of the consulate all day and there was considerable agitation among the members of the "spy brigade" when it was discovered late that night that the correspondent had returned to the hotel.

Spies Even in Siberia.

Aside from the espionage directed at foreigners who may visit the centers of Japanese activities in Manchuria, there is the much more extensive branches of the service that has to do with Chinese, Russian, and Mongolian affairs.

For many years the Japanese have maintained an organization in Harbin known as the "North Manchurian Military mission." This organization is headed by a retired army officer, Gen. Sayada, and according to reports current in Russian circles he directs a small army of spies of various nationalities who operate throughout Inner and Outer Mongolia and in eastern Siberia.

REVEALS JAPAN LOSER IN SCHEME TO PROP UP YEN

TOKIO, Dec. 21.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Secret financial transactions under the former government of Premier Wakatsuki, who resigned 10 days ago, for the purpose of maintaining the price of the yen were reported by the vernacular newspapers today.

It was discovered, the newspapers said, that the actual amount of dollars sold by the specie bank from Sept. 21 to the middle of October was 510,000,000 yen [about $255,000,000], instead of 324,000,000 yen, as formerly stated, and that the balance of 176,000,000 yen was not actually shipped to America.

The Yokohama specie bank declined to make a statement regarding a reported loss of dollars in exchange. The vernacular papers said Korekiyo Takahashi, new finance minister, had learned from Kinpei Takeuchi, vice president of the specie bank, that the bank actually shipped abroad 324,000,000 yen to cover purchases, but that the balance had not yet been shipped. This would mean a loss to the specie bank of 50,000,000 yen, which was reported to have been borrowed from New York banks, the newspapers said.

A GOOD FELLOW FINDS GIRL WHO NEVER HAD DOLL

But She Will Receive One This Christmas.

A little girl who has never had a doll is going to have one Christmas eve. A Good Fellow will see to that. The Good Fellow will also see that there are shoes and stockings for her brothers and sisters who run about the basement flat in their bare feet. There will be a Christmas dinner of chicken and vegetables, a dress or a mother, a toy for every one of the seven children.

The Good Fellow who will play Santa Claus to this family pinced a slip of paper in his pocket yesterday and drove to a narrow two-block street on the near west side. This slip had been provided by THE TRIBUNE Good Fellow department and came from the welfare organization whose social worker had investigated the worthiness of the family.

Eight Children in Small Flat.

The Good Fellow walked down a narrow passage toward the rear of the building and knocked at the back door of the flat.

The visitor found the tiny flat entirely too small to hold eight children and a grandmother. The mother, who is recovering from an illness, told of her difficulties in keeping the children clothed without sufficient shoes and coats. Her husband had been without steady work for the last year and a half. Before that he was a cabinet maker. Yesterday he was out looking for work.

"The lights were turned off five months ago," the mother said. "We have no oil lamps. We haven't had gas on the cook stove since we moved here a year ago. After the half ton of coal comes from the county every winter I send up the children hunt wood around the neighborhood."

Enjoy Feast of Soup.

A kettle of soup was cooking on the stove. The family was to have a meal because Joseph, 11, earned a few cents distributing handbills. He had a sweep nose with his earnings.

When the Good Fellow left the flat where five of the smaller children had gathered around the sink while Florence, 14, wash the baby's face, he asked them what they wanted most of all for Christmas.

Little eyes shone, but she would not speak her wish at first. Then she said softly, as if it was a secret, "I'm a doll. I never had a doll."

None of the children did not hesitate then. Another wanted a doll, the little boys wanted toy automobiles and trains, and the oldest girl hoped for a nice dress.

Over at the Good Fellow headquarters at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, a number of readers called yesterday to say they would gladly play Good Fellow on Christmas. Clubs and fraternities took up collections and decided to spend it on Christmas cheer for needy children.

DRUGGAN, LAKE IN COURT TODAY FOR LAST STAND

Forfeit Right to Seek Change in Pleas.

Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, the once prominent beer barons, will appear before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today with their right to seek the withdrawal of guilty pleas to income tax evasion charges forfeited. Nothing remains for the gangsters to do except offer evidence in mitigation of punishment before they are sentenced to the penitentiary.

TERRY DRUGGAN.

Judge Wilkerson at a hearing last week, instructed defense counsel to be ready with their showing in support of a plea for leniency unless a motion for a withdrawal of the pleas of guilty was filed by Saturday. The motion was not filed and Capt. William P. Waugh said yesterday there would be no motion for a change of pleas.

Druggan Alleges Compromise.

Druggan, through a lawyer imported from Missouri, alleged that he agreed to plead guilty on the advice of Attorney Leopold B. Melnick and that he believed Melnick had an agreement with District Attorney Johnson whereby a fine of $5,000 would be recommended as punishment.

Mr. Johnson demanded that these charges be made under oath, so that Druggan might be proceeded against for perjury, and Judge Wilkerson gave the defense until Saturday to file the affidavit if they wished to do so. This affidavit was not filed, and since Judge Wilkerson said he would consider nothing else, Druggan probably will have to keep quiet in that regard.

Will Ask New Delay.

The defense will seek another continuance today so that two additional witnesses may be called. It has been announced that Mabel Reinecke, former collector of internal revenue; Frank J. Wilson, star investigator of the intelligence unit, and other revenue agents would be called to show that Druggan and Lake tried to settle with the government and did not willfully evade taxes. The government will oppose the delay and the court has indicated that in the absence of the motion to withdraw the pleas the cases would be disposed of today.

Druggan and Lake together owe more than $500,000 and are subject to possible maximum prison terms of 32 and 27 years and fines of $80,000 and $50,000, respectively.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS SHUT WEDNESDAY FOR HOLIDAYS

Reopen Jan. 4; Teachers Face Problems.

Chicago public schools are in close for the holiday vacation following the afternoon sessions Wednesday. Unless the present plans are changed on account of the financial situation, the schools will reopen Jan. 4.

MISS ISABELLA DOLTON.

The last day preceding vacation will be devoted, in part at least, to Christmas programs in all of the schools, according to Miss Isabella Dolton, assistant superintendent. Out of his own funds Mayor Cermak has offered to provide a Christmas tree for any public school in the city upon the request of the principal.

Variety of Programs.

The programs range from carol singing and recitations in the primary grades to dramatic and musical presentations in the upper grades and in the high schools. The teachers are preparing special features for the children of the hospital ward classes.

For the teachers, particularly those who come from out of the city, the vacation period presents a problem. Many of these teachers, as principals and organization leaders report, seriously contemplate returning to the family home, there to stay until the financial situation in the schools is righted.

Having been paid only once since April, their credit exhausted and their loaning power used up, these teachers contend that they have no alternative but to seek the paternal roof where they will be assured, at least, of food and shelter.

Call Operation Unfair.

Under the school board rules, failure of a teacher to report after a period of two weeks without an excuse places that teacher on the unassigned list automatically. The teachers, none of whom would be quoted, protest the operation of this rule would be unfair under the circumstances. The tenure law would be inoperative, in the opinion of school board attorneys, because any contract between the teachers and the board of education has already been broken by reason of the board's failure to pay salaries.

Pola Negri Continues to Gain, Her Doctor Reports

Santa Monica, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Continued improvement was reported today for Pola Negri, film actress, who underwent an operation and blood transfusion in a hospital here last week after an intestinal ailment caused her to collapse at a motion picture studio. She passed the crisis of her illness yesterday.

DRIPPING WETS BATTLE TO HEAD OFF ROOSEVELT

Insist He Pussyfoots to Win Dry States.

ernor. Mayor Cermak of Chicago, visiting New York last summer, had said Roosevelt was wet enough to suit Illinois Democrats.

Joe Guffey, Democratic leader of Pennsylvania, had said most of the delegates from that state would be for the New York governor. Then came a sudden change engineered by Mr. Smith. Mayor Cermak made another visit to New York and declared Illinois would be for Senator James Hamilton Lewis, opining that prohibition would be the paramount issue.

Gov. Ritchie was invited to New York, conferred with Messrs. Smith and Raskob and started on a speaking tour. It was bruited about that Smith had trotted out Ritchie to stop Roosevelt. John Hemphill, Pennsylvania Democrat who almost beat Pinchot in 1930, declared for Ritchie. Gov. Joseph P. Ely, Democratic governor of Massachusetts, declared for Smith.

Ohioans Get Busy for Baker.

Then the Ohio Democrats began to get busy for Mr. Baker, who had said he would not seek nomination, but would not refuse it if it should come to him. Former Congressman Martin L. Davey mailed letters yesterday to 40,000 Ohio Democrats, including precinct committeemen, asking them to organize Baker clubs and pick Baker delegates. They hope to induce Mr. Baker to consent to the use of his name as a candidate.

Gov. Ritchie is wet enough to suit Smith and Raskob. Baker is a wet also, having declared for ultimate repeal of prohibition. One reason he has not found more favor among the opponents of Roosevelt, however, is that he is an ardent advocate of the United States joining the league of nations and of virtual cancellation of the war debts.

There has been much speculation on the motives of Smith in opposing Roosevelt, who twice moved the nomination of Smith and who ran for governor in 1928 as a favor to Al. Some think Smith merely is dissatisfied with Roosevelt's pussyfooting on prohibition. Others think Smith wants the nomination himself.

It may be that Roosevelt will continue to gain strength and that the Smith group will find it impossible to stop him. If, however, it proves feasible to block his nomination on a number of ballots the New York delegation, dominated by Tammany, which is none too friendly to the governor, may be expected to desert him.

GLENCOE FINDS PLAN TO KEEP VILLAGE GOING

James Russell, president of the Glencoe village board, announced yesterday that a conference of representatives of the town and of the schools had been held and a program outlined for keeping Glencoe's official activities going while tax collections are delayed. Although he declined to discuss the details of the plan, Russell intimated that severe economies would be put into effect and that a plan would be tried for bringing in delinquent taxes.

PAINT DELIGHTS OF SCHOOL LIFE IN JUNIOR HIGH

Clubs and Fancy Studies in the Curriculum.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Some new impressions of the course of modern education are conveyed in a copyrighted booklet of 32 pages published by the board of education from its revenues. The booklet is entitled "The Junior High School." It starts with a letter to the beginning pupil that describes activities in the Chicago junior high schools.

"First of all you should understand that a junior high school exists in order that you and other boys and girls may have better educational opportunities," says the letter. "Schools have changed just as all other aspects of modern life have changed.

Some of Changes Described.

"In a junior high school you will have a six-hour instead of a five-hour day; you will eat your luncheon at school instead of at home. You will have considerable more time for music, art and physical education.

"You will have different teachers for different subjects; you will have experience in metal, print, wood and electric shops, or sewing, cooking and millinery.

"You will be given an opportunity to choose, in your eighth or ninth years, a foreign language, or mechanical drawing or a shop, or some household art, or typing and filing.

"You will be allowed and encouraged to choose some club that you like; glee club, orchestra, band, art club, dramatic club, athletic club, etc.

"Besides these activities, you will be taught reading, writing, arithmetic, algebra, spelling, social studies, history, civics, geography."

A Difference in Schools.

Under the heading, "How is junior high school different from elementary school?" is the following:

"The art and music rooms and the gymnasium in junior high school give boys and girls a great deal of fun and benefit. Music and art are specially planned to let you try out your powers along those lines. You can experiment with painting, carving, pottery, modeling, batik, tie-and-dye work, gesso modeling, designing and drawing. You can do part and chorus singing, or play in the band or fife-and-drum corps or orchestra. In fact, you get a chance to do whatever you can with your talents.

"Physical education helps your body to grow and helps you to be a good sport and a good team worker.

"Club period comes in the middle of the morning. It is a half hour used for club meetings, plays, talks, discussions, student assemblies and general class affairs."

These are some of the clubs which have been formed in junior high schools, according to the booklet:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Airplane | Embroidery | Etching |
| Astronomy | Folk dancing | Millinery |
| Basketry | Gifts | Music |
| Boxing | Hiking | New inventions |
| Camp cooking | Illustrators | Newspaper |
| Chemistry | Knitting | Orchestra |
| Dog | Laundry | Pen lettering |
| Dramatics | Life career | Poultry |
| Radio | Rag rug | Scrap book |
| Study | Tennis | Travel |
| Violin | Wild flower | |

Another attractive feature of the junior high schools is described as follows:

"In some studies, the pupils themselves conduct the class, and the teacher is there merely to help in organizing and directing the work. You will find it great fun to discuss the interesting points that arise in your lessons, and to throw the light of everybody's opinion on problems presented by current events.

"This kind of class is called socialized recitation because everybody takes an active part in it, instead of waiting passively to be called on."

The school trustees are scheduled to begin this morning consideration of the educational side of the annual school budget. It has been estimated by Auditor H. H. Brackett that $9,880,000 will have to be trimmed out of these appropriations for 1932 in order to keep the expense within the revenue.

BANK IN CLEVELAND ASKS STATE TO TAKE CHARGE TO LIQUIDATE

Cleveland, O., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Directors of the Standard Trust bank announced late tonight that they had asked the state banking department to take over the institution for liquidation as a protective measure in behalf of depositors.

The Standard, which will not open for business tomorrow, has deposits totalling approximately $14,000,000.

The Standard is not associated with any other Cleveland bank and was not a member of the Cleveland Clearing House association or the Federal Reserve system. It was one of the smaller Cleveland banks, operating a business estimated at less than one and a half per cent of the total of all Cleveland banks in the matter of deposits.

The Standard's closing brings to an end an experiment of 1920 when unions identified with the nation's railroads entered the Cleveland banking field.

GIVES LUNCH TO VISITOR AND IS SLUGGED, ROBBED

Berwyn Iverson, 23 years old, of 9122 Houston avenue, attendant at the filling station at 100th street and Torrence avenue, played the good samaritan last night to the wrong fellow.

Iverson was sitting at his desk, eating sandwiches, and drinking coffee poured from a thermos bottle. A young man entered. "How about a cup of coffee?" the stranger asked. Iverson nodded and the man helped himself to some coffee and a sandwich.

The stranger then arose, remarked he had to make a telephone call, and asked Iverson for the telephone book. Iverson turned around. The next instant he was felled by a blow on the head. When he recovered consciousness several minutes later, he discovered that his money changer containing $3 was gone, and that $20 was missing from the till. He also discovered a dent in the cover of the thermos bottle which the stranger had used in knocking him out.

CHRISTMAS TREE SHIELDS BANDITS IN LOOP HOLDUP

Two armed men late last night obtained $1,000 in a holdup of the North American restaurant in the basement at 40 South State street.

The robbers with their weapons, entered the place, which is run in cafeteria style, and after filling trays carried them to a table near the manager's office. They were still sitting at the table when Miss Miss Hill, 6315 University avenue, the cashier, left her counter to carry the money, which was in a tin box, to the office.

She had just reached the door and was unlocking it when the bandits stepped up to her, pointed their pistols at her, and threatened to shoot if she screamed. A large Christmas tree screened the men and Miss Hill from the view of the fifty patrons of the place and although Miss Hill did scream once no attention was paid to her. One of the men thrust the box under his overcoat and the pair ran out. A third man, apparently a confederate, was awaiting them at the steps. The trio escaped.

The North American was robbed once before, on Aug. 4, 1928. Another attempt at robbery on Feb. 2, 1930, was unsuccessful because bandits were unable to open a safe in the manager's office.

Bullet Misses Druggist in 8th Robbery of Store

H. M. Hibbe, 60 years old, owner of a drug store at 3858 North Crawford avenue, has been robbed seven times in the last five years. Three years ago he shot and killed a bandit. Last night two young men entered the store. Hibbe suspected them, and walked rapidly toward the rear to get a gun. One of the men fired a shot, the bullet splintering the glass in a showcase near Hibbe's head. However, the robbers fled with no other attempt at robbery.

ALL CLEWS FAIL IN WIDE SEARCH FOR HEIRESS, 19

Kentucky and New York Leads Futile.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The whereabouts of Miss Virginia Penfield, 19 year old student at the Mary Lyon School for Girls in Swarthmore, remained as deep a mystery tonight as on Friday morning when she failed to step from a train at Columbus, O., to greet her father, Clare J. Penfield, head of an Ohio chain of stores, who was waiting to welcome her home for the Christmas holidays.

MISS J. PENFIELD (Times Photo.)

Almost after sleepless nights and days spent in checking up with detectives on dozens of minor leads, Mr. Penfield, who flew here to direct the search, expressed the belief that his daughter was in the hands of unknown persons or was wandering lost dazed as the result of nervousness brought on by ill health and anxiety.

Wide Search in Lexington.

Friday night pointed to Kentucky as a possible destination of Miss Penfield. Identified from her photograph by a Pennsylvania railroad porter as a young woman he had put aboard a Cleveland-Cincinnati express at that station. Efforts to locate her in Lexington, Ky., today were unsuccessful, however.

The theory that Miss Penfield may be suffering from a nervous condition not somewhat substantiated, detectives said, by information received from the Rev. J. H. Ricker of Lapeer, Pa.

Mr. Ricker told the missing girl's father that he was positive a highly excited young woman he saw at the Lapeer railroad station about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon was Miss Penfield. This was a half hour after she had parted with Miss Jeanette McCreery, her roommate, near the station, standing below to get her baggage from the station checkroom and a train to North Philadelphia to wait for the Lexington train. A checkup showed that no baggage had been reclaimed.

Reported in New York.

A report that a young woman answering the missing girl's description had been seen in New York Friday night was received by Miss McCreery's father, E. W. McCreery, today after their return from a conference with New York investigators.

A man giving his name as S. Dowd told city detectives Mr. McCreery on Friday night he saw a young woman who resembled photographs of the heiress at the Strand theater. He said he tried to talk to the girl, but was unanswered.

Miss McCreery, the last person definitely to have seen her before she left the train at Philadelphia, said she spoke of making frequent trips to New York. Mr. Penfield later declared positively that his daughter never had been to New York as far as he knew.

It was ascertained that Miss Penfield had cashed a check for $85 before leaving the school and also had some travelers' checks with her.

HUNT UNION HEAD AFTER FINDING OF SHOT RIDDLED CAR

The police yesterday were seeking John H. Rooney, 34 years old, secretary-treasurer of the Circular Distributors' union, after his automobile was found abandoned earlier in the day in front of 4250 West North avenue with six bullet holes through the rear window and top. An exploded cartridge was found in the rear seat. Sergt. Frank Kehoe and his squad had the car towed to the detective bureau.

All the shots had been fired from the interior of the abandoned automobile. The license plates were issued to Rooney at 7607 Fullerton avenue, Elmwood Park, but an investigation showed that he had moved from there. He is a brother of Robert Rooney, former head of the Sheet Metal Workers' union, who was slain two years ago.

The police recalled that a week ago John Rooney, his brother, Edward, 5149 Washington boulevard, business agent for the union, and James Barry, 3402 Hollywood avenue, were arrested in a soft drink parlor at 3838 Grand avenue. John Rooney had a revolver and was charged with carrying concealed weapons. The others were charged with disorderly conduct. On Friday they were discharged by Municipal Judge James Fardy.

FIRST WHEELS ON PLANE WERE IDEA OF NEW AIR CHIEF

Foulois Also Pioneer Army Flyer.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, the first man who ever put wheels on an airplane and the first American army officer to fly a government plane, tomorrow becomes chief of the army air service. He succeeds Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, who was retired yesterday when he reached the age limit.

No history of aviation would be complete without the story of Gen. Foulois' important contribution of a practicable landing gear for the early machines that the Wright brothers built.

The Wrights had taught him the principles of flying and in 1908, when they delivered the army its first plane, he was chosen as one of three officers to accept it. Because he had evinced deep interest in aviation he was nominated to make the test flight of the craft.

He was dissatisfied at the start with the crude runners which were built under the craft and on which it had to slide for takeoff and landing. He saw nothing impossible, from the engineering standpoint, in the substitution of wheels.

$150 for "Expenses."

The army authorities who turned the plane over to him granted him the munificent sum of $150 for operating expenses and maintenance. This was insufficient to make the changes he found necessary in the landing gear and before he was able to satisfy himself that he had the best obtainable he had spent $369 of his own money.

He had, however, successfully adapted a set of motorcycle wheels to aircraft. From this pioneer work developed the sturdy wheeled gears that have made landing at high speeds safe.

Maj. Gen. Foulois entered the army as a private in 1898. He saw service in Porto Rico and the Philippines in the Spanish-American war and emerged from that conflict a second lieutenant. His transfer to the air service was made as soon as the government made known its intention to experiment with planes as an instrument of warfare.

When the first plane was sent to the army, Lieuts. Frank T. Lahm and Thomas E. Selfridge were the others chosen with Foulois to make the experiments. Lahm, now a colonel, is serving as army air attaché at Paris. Selfridge was killed in 1908, the first aviation causualty in the American army.

World Record in 1911.

In 1911 Foulois scouted the Mexican border in a plane and set what was then a world record by driving a machine 100 miles in two hours and seven minutes. In 1917, then holding the rank of major, he was promoted to brigadier general. He was then less than 38 years old and was the youngest of the army's generals. During the world war he served as chief of the flying forces overseas.

Shortly before his promotion Maj. Foulois called attention to the fact that not a single airplane owned by the government was fit for war service. Europe then, he said, was demanding a minimum speed of 100 miles an hour from army planes and not one of the American army's was that fast.

The new army air chief is credited with being the first army aviator who was ever fired on with anti-aircraft guns. He underwent this experience during his patrols of the border in 1910 and 1911. He also led the first cross-country flight of an army squadron in 1916, covering a course of 500 miles without a mishap.

Friends credit Maj. Gen. Foulois with being the oldest flyer, in point of service, in any army in the world.

Accardo, Gangster, Put in Parade at Police Showup

Tony Accardo, 7137 West Grand avenue, gangster and one time companion of Machine Gun Jack McGurn, a Capone henchman, was among those paraded at the showup of suspects at the detective bureau yesterday. He asserted that he was a gambler by occupation. No identification was made of Accardo, but he is to be investigated by immigration authorities, who wish to know whether he is an alien subject to deportation.

FALL ON STREET REVIVES MEMORY LOST ON MAY 2

Loop Accident a Blessing to Eastern Man.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—A man clad in a ragged suit and a dirty white sweater started to cross State street in Chicago last Thursday night. He was just another bit of human flotsam and nobody paid very much attention when he leaped from in front of a speeding automobile, stumbled and rapped his head on the curb.

The fellow got up and rubbed his head in a bewildered manner. Traffic in the loop swirled on, but the man in the disheveled clothes sought a side street—he was suddenly and unaccountably ashamed of his appearance. Faint flickers of memory began to stir in an awakened mind.

And that is why Harry G. Havery, wealthy Westchester county real estate and insurance man, who had been given up for dead after he dropped from sight on a fishing trip in Long Island sound eight months ago, was back with his family today in time for a happy Christmas. Mr. Havery was haggard, his cheeks were thin, and he could remember little of his adventures in aphasia tonight.

He Finds Himself.

He had found himself a few hours after having suffered the blow on his head in Chicago when his erratic memory told him who he was as his brain began to function normally. He immediately began hurried preparations to return home.

The Westchester man who came back from the dead is 51 years old and a step-son of the late Charles Purdy, pioneer land owner in New York City's most fashionable suburban district.

Mr. Havery had lived for years with his wife and four children near White Plains. On May 2 he went fishing off Rye beach, and when he did not return home that night, a search disclosed his boat anchored 100 feet from the shore, and evidence that he had fallen into the rock studded waters. All efforts to find any trace of him failed. He had been happy at home. His health and business affairs were in good condition. The family felt he had suffered an accident and slowly gave up hope.

Wires Brother-in-Law.

Mr. Havery's brother-in-law, Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Faile, received a telegram signed with the missing man's name Thursday night. A telephone call to Chicago followed and $100 was telegraphed for Havery's expenses home. He arrived late last night.

"I do not know where I have been nor what I have been doing all these months I have been away," said Mr. Havery tonight.

"Things were mostly blank after I fell out of my boat while trying to pull up the anchor. I struck my head then. I have a vague remembrance of having worked on a farm near Chicago.

"I recall the fall I suffered while walking along the street in Chicago. That brought back some of my memory. I began to search my pockets and discovered the suit I was wearing had been bought in New York. That helped me to recall my identity. When I finally could remember I was appalled at my appearance."

There was a Christmas wreath on the front door of the Havery home on Overlook road tonight and four children as well as their father and mother were looking forward to a very merry holiday season.

RADICALS LOSE HALF OF SEATS BY AUSTRALIAN VOTE

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The overwhelming defeat of Premier James Scullin's Labor government was shown in a provisional statement issued tonight on yesterday's general election. The figures revealed that the Laborites' representation of 46 seats in parliament was reduced to 24 seats—and ten of these were credited to the extremist Lang group, which was responsible for the government's downfall.

This branch of the party is led by Premier J. T. Lang of New South Wales who has advocated such radical measures as repudiation of some of Australia's external obligations and whose policies were believed to have weakened Labor in the eyes of the people.

The United Australia party, led by the former Laborite, Joseph Lyons, won 37 seats, according to preliminary figures as opposed to 14 in the last election in October, 1929. Fourteen seats went to the country party, also anti-Labor, and the remaining seat was captured by an independent.

HEAD OF PICKLE CONCERN DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Four Others Lose Lives in Accidents.

C. S. Claussen, 5133 South Western avenue, president of C. F. Claussen & Sons, pickle and sauerkraut manufacturers at 6147 South Western avenue, died yesterday at the Little Company of Mary hospital from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at 110th street and Western avenue on Wednesday. Mr. Claussen was 70 years old. He is survived by his wife, one son, and three daughters.

Alfred Muller, 21 years old, of Sadorus, Ill., was killed last evening when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a parked truck on the Governor's highway just south of the Will county line. The car in which he was riding was driven by his uncle, J. G. Luhrsen, 2474 Estes avenue, who was seriously injured. Luhrsen is president of the American Train Despatchers' association. He was taken to the St. James hospital at Chicago Heights.

Other Deaths Listed.

The death of Mr. Claussen and four others in Cook county yesterday raised the 1931 toll to 1,239. The other victims:

John Dubiel, 53 years old, 3607 Wrightwood avenue, a tailor. Struck by an automobile Armistice day, and died at St. Mary's hospital. Clarence Kuhlanan, 442 Hawthorne place, Elmhurst, was the driver of the car.

John P. Fogarty, 61 years old, 5404 Kimbark avenue, a watchman. Found on the pavement at 76th street and Yates avenue last night, evidently the victim of a hit and run driver. He died at the Jackson Park hospital.

Samuel Amble, 65 years old, 14812 Cooper avenue, Harvey. Died in the Ingalls Memorial hospital there of injuries received Saturday night when he was struck at 154th street and Loomis avenue, Harvey, by an automobile driven by William Workman, 15429 Ashland avenue, Harvey.

John Moseman, 50 years old, of Crete. Died in St. James' hospital in Chicago Heights of injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Dan Terry, 60 West Main street, Chicago Heights. The accident occurred at Main and Halsted streets in Chicago Heights.

Café Musician Arrested.

Carl Edwards, 31 years old, 4635 Hazel avenue, a night club musician, was arrested yesterday charged with being the hit and run driver who struck a couple at State and Ohio streets.

The couple injured are Jesse Weaver, 64 years old, of the Eastgate hotel, editor of the law publications of Callaghan & Co., 401 East Ohio street, and his wife, Helen, 54 years old. Weaver received a broken leg and his wife a broken arm and a possible skull fracture, it was said at Henrotin hospital.

Edwards was arrested a short time after the accident by Hudson avenue police, who noticed that the left fender and light of his car were damaged. A flask of gin was found in the seat beside him and he was intoxicated, police charged. Witnesses of the accident identified him as the driver of the car which hit the Weavers.

A coroner's jury at Pontiac held yesterday that Frank F. Gleason, 6546 Woodlawn avenue, who, on Saturday, was found dying beside a highway near that city, was struck by a hit-and-run driver. Gleason, an electrician, was hitch hiking to Peoria in search of work.

FOUR SLUG AND ROB VICTIM.

Four men jumped out of an automobile yesterday at Grand and Harlem avenues, slugged Walter Fisher, 4840 Cortland street, with a blackjack, and robbed him of $3.

GIRL SEEN IN AUTO BELIEVED TO BE ONE SEIZED BY KIDNAPER

Dayton, O., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Three boys at a gasoline station near here reported late tonight they had seen a girl they believed to be Marion McLean, 4, kidnaped from her home in Cincinnati several days ago.

The boys told Montgomery county deputy sheriffs the child was in a large green automobile in company with a man who stopped for gasoline. The car had departed when the officers reached the station, six miles east of here, and there was no clew.

Deputies said the boys, who were in the station, telephoned the sheriff's office a moment after the car stopped. They said the girl resembled pictures of the McLean child they had seen in the newspapers and that the man's description tallied with that of the suspected kidnaper as given by the newspapers.

ASKS $150,000 OF HAMMERSTEIN IN SUIT FOR FRAUD

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Cecilia S. Brewer filed suit in Supreme court against Arthur Hammerstein and others for $150,000 damages, an injunction, and for an accounting of the profits of twenty-two plays and musical comedies which the plaintiff alleges Mr. Hammerstein assigned to defraud his creditors. The defendants with Mr. Hammerstein are his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Hammerstein, the Rose Marie Co., Inc., and Hugh A. Grady.

Mr. Hammerstein filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition on last March 26. Harry Zalkin, who was appointed trustee in the proceeding, was directed to assign to the present plaintiff 500 shares of the Rose Marie company, and also all of Mr. Hammerstein's right, title and interest in twenty-two plays and musical productions, including "Rose Marie," "Firefly," "High Jinks," "Katinka," and "Song of the Flame." This transfer was made Sept. 9, last.

It is now alleged that between Aug. 16, 1930, and Jan. 3, 1931, Mr. Hammerstein had already transferred his interest in these productions to Hugh A. Grady and in Rose Marie company, that there was no consideration and that the latter company is Mr. Hammerstein's own property, the transfer having been made to defeat the claims of creditors.

Opens Fire as He Finds Car Gone; Hits 2 in Store

Vito Mawna, 28 years old, 2146 Flourney street, and Clement De Luca, 30 years old, 1932 Taylor street, were shot and wounded last night by an unidentified assailant in a candy store at 1142 South Winchester avenue. At the County hospital both asserted that a man entered the place, complaining that his automobile had been stolen on the street, and began shooting when he was told that nothing was known of the theft there. Neither of the victims was seriously wounded.

FIND PAY ROLLERS OF CROWE STILL IN PUBLIC JOBS

Crime Board Making List of Canal Crew.

A tabulation of the pay rollers who were employed by the sanitary district during the free spending days of 1927-1928 and who still hold public office is being kept by the Chicago crime commission, it is reported. Many of the prosecution's witnesses in the trial of Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and seven of his former associates, have admitted that they took money from the district treasury for doing no harder work than signing the pay roll and endorsing the semi-monthly pay checks.

The crime commission, it is reported, although no statement has as yet been forthcoming, is interested in the fact that even though many persons took money while they did no work, they have not been disqualified for further public work. A representative of the commission is present at all the court sessions and takes notes on the testimony of each witness, particularly those still in public service.

Politicians to Testify.

The list is expected to be augmented this week when scores of downstate politicians, many of them still members of the state legislature, will be called to the witness stand.

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who is directing the prosecution, says that he will force many of the politicians to admit that they were just pay rollers. Many of the officials, he said, were carried on the rolls as attorneys or investigators for no other purpose than to keep them friendly toward legislation desired by Crowe and his associates.

Former whoopee pay rollers are now scattered through the state, county and city departments, the testimony of the last two weeks has revealed. A complete list of those now on other pay rolls is not obtainable at this time because the prosecution has not kept a separate tabulation, but a glance through the testimony so far produced shows the following are still holding public jobs:

HENRY BERGEN, 6200 South Bishop street, still on the sanitary district pay rolls.

WILLIAM J. CONNORS, 42d ward political leader, who now is an executive in the Municipal court bailiff's office. He took out of the treasury $400 a month in expenses in addition to $400 a month salary. He used the money to entertain legislators, he testified.

EDWIN F. McNICHOLS, 8605 South Sangamon street, a traffic policeman. He appeared on the witness stand in uniform.

ATTORNEY LAWRENCE A. NEWEY, now working as the city prosecutor in the Pekin Police court.

The judges hearing the case are discussing the advisability of holding night court sessions to hurry through the testimony on pay roll padding. It was indicated that Chief Justice Harry Fisher, who is presiding over the trial, with Judges John Prystalski and James Kelly sitting in an advisory capacity, might order such sessions twice a week.

AIR MAIL PILOT SAVED BY CHUTE AS SHIP CRASHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 20.—Some of the air mail being distributed today among residents of Chicago and Detroit is a day late. Air Mail Pilot Edward C. Burton of the Toronto-Detroit-Chicago run became lost in a sleet storm last night. He circled blindly for four hours over western Ontario and was forced to make a 3,500 foot parachute jump when the gasoline gave out. He landed in a field outside Dunnville and only suffered a scratched nose. His plane crashed a mile away at Lowbank. Farmers attracted by flares Burton dropped saved the mail before flames destroyed the plane. Another plane took the mail westward tonight.

Three Ohio Men Killed at Crossing by Freight Train

A gang of hijackers swooped down on an Oak Park garage yesterday and carried off a mysterious shipment believed to have consisted of about 125 cases of whisky, smuggled into Chicago from Boston for the holiday trade.

The robbery took place in the Oak Park Rentacar company's garage at 13 South boulevard, Oak Park. There were eight or ten men in the gang of hijackers. William Graham, manager of the company, was in the place with two employés when the hijackers entered and held them up.

Drive Truck from Garage.

Working speedily and without confusion, members of the gang drove a large truck out of the garage to a loading platform at one side of the building. The truck contained twenty-one large packing cases. Graham told Lieut. Harry Wilson of the Oak Park police that some one had placed the truck in the garage Saturday night, and that he did not know the owner and had not noticed the license plates.

Graham and his two employés were forced to aid the members of the gang in unloading the boxes on the shipping platform, where they were quickly broken open. Each case contained five or six packages wrapped in burlap.

Take Packages, Drive Away.

The burlap packages were quickly reloaded into the truck and three automobiles in which the members of the gang had arrived. The task finished, the crew drove away.

Labels marked "Old Glory Bourbon," found in the packing cases abandoned by the gang, gave a clew to the nature of the shipment. It had come to Chicago by express, consigned to Abrams & Jacobs, 4327 West 16th street. No concern of that name was found at the 16th street address.

According to the police, the shipment was billed as books and was marked as coming from the Norwood Press, Norwood, Mass.

Hijackers Find Hiding Place.

Lieut. Wilson said that he believed the persons to whom the liquor was consigned received it Saturday at some express office and picked the garage in Oak Park as a likely place for concealment over the week-end.

REVEAL MARRIAGE OF DR. R. T. ELY TO A FORMER STUDENT

PROF. R. T. ELY.

Friends of Prof. Richard T. Ely, one of the foremost American economists, have just learned that he was married during the summer to Miss Margaret Hahn, formerly one of his students, who was awarded the degree of Ph. D. by Northwestern university several years ago. Prof. Ely is 73 years old and his wife is in the early 30s.

The couple are now residing in a home at Radburn, N. J. A model real estate project there, largely planned by Prof. Ely and financed by wealthy easteners, including John D. Rockefeller Jr., has been regarded as one of the most important developments in modern housing.

Prof. Ely taught for some years at Johns Hopkins university, but went to the University of Wisconsin in 1892. He remained there until 1925. In that year his own organization, the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, was removed to Northwestern university.

ABLIN, 3 OTHERS ON TRIAL TODAY IN LIQUOR CASE

David ["Cockeyed Mulligan"] Ablin, his brother, Sam, and two of their associate, Harry Alexander and David Zimmerman, will be tried before Federal Judge John P. Barnes today on charges of violation of the prohibition law in connection with the Epicure club, now closed, at 19 Cedar street.

The case has been pending almost a year. Recently the district attorney's office sought to have the indictment against the quartet dismissed on grounds that the case was weak, but Judge Barnes ruled that he would hear the evidence.

STATE AUDITOR NELSON WILL GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Oscar Nelson, state auditor and for many years a state leader in Republican politics, will be placed on trial today before Judge Edward Shurtleff at Woodstock, on a charge of misfeasance in office. Selection of a jury is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock this morning.

The charge against Auditor Nelson, made in an indictment returned by the Lake county grand jury at Waukegan after the presentation of evidence by State's Attorney Ashbel V. Smith, is that he neglected to order the closing of the Waukegan State bank after he was informed the bank was insolvent.

Charges Funds Dissipated.

In the months during which the bank was kept open, it is charged by Mr. Smith, the funds of the bank were further dissipated until when it was finally closed, little was left for the depositors.

On the other hand it is declared by Mr. Nelson and his lawyers that the prosecution is inspired by Mr. Smith's political ambitions; that the bank was not insolvent, and that Mr. Nelson is clothed by the law with a wide discretion as to whether he should or should not close a banking institution.

The defense asserts that similar cases have been tried in other states, and that in all of them the decisions have favored the officials and acknowledged their power to exercise discretion in proceeding as they deemed for the best interests of the bank and depositors.

Predicts Reopening of Bank.

A spokesman for Mr. Nelson made the statement yesterday that in all probability the Waukegan State bank will be reorganized and reopened before the conclusion of the Nelson trial, with full protection to all creditors.

The state auditor will be tried alone on the misfeasance indictment. Another indictment, charging Mr. Nelson and four other defendants with conspiracy to defraud depositors of the same bank, is also pending, but Judge Shurtleff ordered that the misfeasance charge be tried first.

NEW GUN LAW FACES A TEST IN COURT TODAY

Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne announced yesterday that he is ready for a legal battle on this question: Is the new law against defacing the serial numbers of a pistol, as it is now worded in the statutes, of any benefit to the law abiding public? The question, he says, is involved in the case of Louis Scaramuzzo, set for hearing today before Municipal Judge James F. Fardy.

Scaramuzzo owns a gunsmith shop at 604 Blue Island avenue. Chief of Detectives Schoemaker says he is the armorer of west side gunmen, that he keeps their weapons in shooting condition, and afterwards removes evidence by destroying markings that might be incriminating.

His place was raided by detectives on Nov. 2. After visiting the place the detectives sent for a search warrant and when it was received they found fourteen guns in the shop with defaced numbers. Attorney Benedict J. Short has moved to quash the search warrants and to suppress the evidence against Scaramuzzo. He also has served notice he will attack the validity of the law.

"If this law was intended to serve any good purpose, this is the time it should be applied," said Mr. Ditchburne. "The statute must stand or fall on this case."

Son Shoots and Kills Father Who Didn't Work

New York, Dec. 21 [Monday].—[Special.]—Otto Wagner Jr., 21, shot and killed his father with a .22 caliber rifle early this morning in their home in the Bronx. According to the son's mother, her husband had not worked since she married him twenty-three years ago, had subjected her to frequent beatings despite the protests of her two sons, and recently had threatened the life of Otto Jr. because he stayed out late at night. The slayer escaped.

10 Fishermen Drowned in Storm on Swedish Coast

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Mail said today that 10 fishermen had been drowned in a two day storm in which houses along the Swedish coast were blown into the sea. Three million trees were felled in a violent snowstorm over all Sweden, the dispatch said, and the timber trade was faced with a heavy loss.

GERMANY AWAITS SANTA; HE'S LEAN BUT IN SMILES

There'll Be Toys, but Not as Large.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—Germany faces a Christmas season shot through and through with bitter tokens of its people's condition.

It is a Christmas where even the importation of Christmas trees is forbidden—part of the drastic economic program which touches every aspect of daily life. It is a Christmas where "peace on earth, good will toward men" appears in the shape of an arbitrary "emergency decree," forbidding the holding of political meetings or demonstrations of any description—a police patrolled truce between bitterly and irreconcilably opposed strong elements of the population.

Only a Few Get Jobs.

The one bright feature is that it has given a relatively few persons a chance to find temporary work over the holidays. The lucky ones regard the jobs as the finest gift. But no Kris Kringle with such presents is due to appear for the mass of jobless. In fact, it is a Christmas which means almost 15,000 additional unemployed, dependent on the scanty support of government or government organizations, daily.

Set in times when ailing national and world economy is the dominant note, this becomes an economy Christmas. The Yuletide shopping season is adapted primarily to flattened purses. All the customary edible and ornamental features of the picturesque and heart warming German holidays are offered in miniature sizes—symbols of old time Christmas joys.

The Christmas trees, sold for 25 to 35 cents, are even smaller. There are also miniature decorations, undersized candles, and pee-wee toys. German parents are trying to make a little go far for the sake of their children.

Price of Geese Down.

From the bottom of the scale to the top, the overbalancing of ability to buy by an eagerness to sell has swung the scales toward lower prices. Geese selling for 30 to 35 cents a pound a year ago have dropped a third in price.

The depression's Christmas is not uniformly distributed. Tourists, skimming the Berlin surface, are turned away from packed night clubs, bars, and cabarets. They ask, "Where is this depression, anyway?"

Out in the exclusive west end of Berlin, the rush and crush of season buying is underway. These shops are doing a brisk business. It is here that a few extra sales girls have been put to work.

But it's different in Alexander platz, in the heart of the workers' section. Dizzied by the tangled traffic and deafened by the bawling of 30,000 street hawkers, there are found the masses Christmas has hit the hardest.

Lures to Buy Great.

The lures to buy are greater than ever around Alexander platz, Belle-Alliance platz, along Mueller and Turm streets, where street selling is authorized. Not only have prices been reduced on odds and ends, notions, novelties, and gadgets, but, because of the huge total of German jobless, the rush of those seeking to take advantage of the small chances for seasonal earnings is greater than ever.

On the two Sundays preceding Christmas, known as the silver and gold Sundays, respectively, shops are permitted to remain open between 3 and 7 p. m. Sales last Sunday were large—ranging around two or two and a half times a normal day's sale. Today the merchants expect to treble the usual turnover.

DEBATE LENGTH OF MORATORIUM FOR GERMAN REPUBLIC

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The length of a moratorium to be recommended for Germany was understood to be a point over which the Young plan advisory committee was deadlocked tonight. The French insist on a maximum of two years. Sir Walter Layton, British economist, desires a longer period.

Sir Walter faced a comrade of long standing, Prof. Charles Rist, French economist, across the committee's table in friendly disagreement over the phraseology of the final report on Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

A four hour secret session today left the delegations hopeful, but not certain that a final report would be finished before Christmas. The experts apparently were still blocked by conditions which some said were beyond the power of the committee to solve.

U. S. FACES LOSS OF CANADA AS GOOD CUSTOMER

Imperial Conference May Strike Heavy Blow.

BY STANLEY JACKSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 20.—Anti-American sentiment in Canadian business circles has been given a new lease on life by the formal announcement of the British government that it will go to the imperial conference in Ottawa next year prepared to allot quotas of business to the possessions, but determined to exact proportionate quotas of business from the dominions in return.

Located, as it is, alongside of the United States, with its 120,000,000 people, Canada with a population of 10,000,000, is naturally dominated to a large extent by American business despite the fact that it is a part of the British empire and that British patriotism still is strong.

That the little infant may, figuratively, be able to sock Uncle Sam a hefty one on the chin in a trade sense as a result of the 1932 imperial conference is a prospect that is bringing a gleam to many Canadian business men who are not overly fond of the United States.

Wants to Trade Even.

J. H. Thomas, minister for dominions in the British cabinet, has announced in parliament that the British government is prepared to give Canada a wheat quota but that it will be dependent on a genuine quid pro quo arrangement and that the United Kingdom will seek a proportionate outlet for her manufactured products in return for wheat.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada has returned to Ottawa from a trip to England, and preparations for the forthcoming conference are under way.

Last year's imperial conference failed. A lack of preparation and because the tariff policies of the United Kingdom and Canada did not harmonize were blamed. Observers now state the situation is changed, there being in power in England a government committed to tariffs and empire preference.

Uncle Sam Enters Picture.

Uncle Sam enters the center of the picture here. So far as Canada is concerned, it is freely admitted that in order to give England more trade in manufactured products it must be taken away from the United States. The heavy discount on the Canadian dollar as compared with American funds is another factor to stimulate this move.

Moreover, Canada has always been somewhat annoyed by the fact that, although the United States is the dominion's best customer, it sells far more to Canada than it buys. Despite the fact that the United States has a larger population and greater resources, empire preference advocates point out that Canada has a favorable balance of trade with all other parts of the empire.

Canada purchases 68 per cent of her total imports from the United States and only 15 per cent from the United Kingdom. In 1930 she bought $847,450,311 worth of goods from the United States and only $189,179,738 from the United Kingdom. Economic experts point out that on the other hand Canada has been selling to the United Kingdom as much as she has to the United States up until the last few years, when wheat exports were curtailed by the wheat market impasse.

Imports Exceed Exports.

For 1931, January to October inclusive, Canada's imports from the United States totaled $343,413,366, while exports were only $226,166,496.

Coal is one article that may be hit in the new arrangements. Canada buys annually millions of dollars' worth of coal from her southern neighbor, a trade which British interests have been trying to grab for years.

LOOT HIGH SCHOOL SAFE.

Thieves broke into the office of the Englewood High school, 6905 Stewart avenue, some time during the week-end, and succeeded in opening a safe. Police said they would have to wait until the school is opened today to learn whether the safe contained any valuables.

PARIS PROPOSES MILITARY AID TO MENACED NATION

Laval Reveals Stand for Disarm Parley.

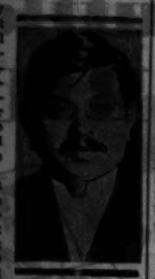
CHATELLE LA REINE, France, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Premier Pierre Laval declared today at Paris, at an international disarmament conference next February, if necessary would introduce a plan for military help to nations menaced by aggressive powers.



PREMIER LAVAL. [A. P. Photo.]

He he made it clear in a speech read here that such a project, while effective and quick in action, would be accomplished only in France.

"Never will we commit the imprudence of combatting ourselves with the brandies of hope, which would endanger France's national safety," the premier said.

Insists on Reparations.

France would never permit reparation payments to be sacrificed to private debts, he said. Any modification of the payments due from Germany, he insisted, could only be considered in effecting the present period of economic stress.

"In some countries people have too easily announced that debts and reparations should be canceled," La. ... "Now that we know the ... of the United States, the gov... which envisaged such an ... initiative will doubtless be ... to support it. In any event, ... French delegates cannot compro... on this question."

"Put on tight," exclaimed one of ... listeners.

"That is a habit I have," replied ... premier. "We will never permit ... wrecking of the Young plan."

Peace Would Serve World.

Premier Laval said he was convinced that France's policy not only will serve the interests of France ... the ... safety of Europe and the ... of the world.

He ... repeated that France will oppose promptly at Geneva, ... any ... for postponement of ... conference.

"We ... no ambitions for ..." he said. "Our military ... is utilized exclusively for ... defense, not aggression. Never ... we found in France, as in other ..., a youth educated with ideas ... ambition and aggression."

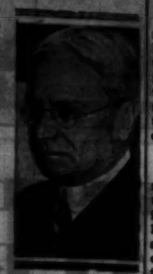
"I will not accept the accusation ... directed against my ..., but our past history orders ... to present. We should not let ... go into improvisations. ... Instead of guaranteeing our ... we would risk compromising it ... for peace of the world with it.

"Our delegates will not refuse to ... and if necessary will suggest ... form of mutual assistance, pro... it is effective and rapid."

Republicans Plan to Speed Senate Vote on Debts Holiday

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—[Special.]—As a result of conferences today Republican leaders of the senate outlined a program contemplating putting the war debts moratorium resolution ahead of every other business and keeping it before the senate night and the Christmas day in the hope of having it adopted by Tuesday night.



HIRAM JOHNSON. [A. P. Photo.]

The plans of the leaders provide for an adjournment over holidays from Tuesday. To this there is opposition led by Senator Borah, and other factors make it uncertain whether the moratorium ratification proposal can be disposed of in as quick time as the senate leaders hope.

Sidetrack Regular Business.

In order to pave the way for considering the moratorium resolution it will be necessary for the senate to sidetrack its regular order of business, which is the election of a president pro tempore. Ever since congress assembled two weeks ago tomorrow, the senate had devoted part of its time each day to balloting on this question, the foundation for it being an effort to displace Senator Moses of New Hampshire from the office of president pro tempore because he alluded to the radical element of the Republican senators as the "sons of the wild jackass."

Whether there will be a filibuster against the proposal to sidetrack the balloting for president pro tempore is uncertain tonight, but the expectation is that Senator Johnson [Rep., Cal.] will resort to every available parliamentary device to prevent the moratorium resolution from being disposed of quickly.

Only Dozen Against It.

The checkup made of senate sentiment concerning the ratification of the moratorium indicates that there is little real opposition to it. Senate leaders are of the opinion that only about a dozen senators will be recorded against it when the final vote is taken. But when that final vote will come is problematical with the prevailing opinion tonight in the best informed senatorial circles being that there is a strong possibility that it will be had by Tuesday evening.

Charity Warns Against Fake Soliciting Campaign

Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Big Sisters, organized to help girls and women in need of assistance, yesterday announced that a fraudulent telephone campaign is being carried on in the name of that group. Solicitation of funds to help assist the serving of luncheons in one of the schools maintained by the organization is not authorized and those who contribute are being victimized, Mrs. McIntyre declared.

BOUNCING OFF THE BOTTOM.

There may be some consolation in the thought, or the hope, that the United States has reached bottom in international affairs and from now on will be on the way up. The temper in congress as the forced ratification of the moratorium proceeds is evidence that many men have reached the end of their patience. They do not like what they now find themselves obliged to do even in giving consent to the one year suspension, and they have served notice that no other proposal of such a nature will be considered.

Ever since the armistice the United States has been exhibiting, officially, various kinds of madness. The record of the debts is evidence of a prolonged spree with the victim unable to clear his head, hold his money, or remember his home address.

American international affairs have been guided by an infatuation for European acclaim which could be had only by sacrifice of national interests and servility to European desires. It has cost the United States the respect of the nations which have found this country no exploitable, so gullible, simple, and credulous. It is an unfortunate land where policies are calculated for favor abroad.

Administrative conduct ever since the armistice has persuaded other nations that no demand is so preposterous that it cannot be made of the United States with a fair chance that it will be accepted as an obligation. In the last week congress has done more to correct this impression than had been done in ten years. It is upon such evidence that the hope for the future is based.

The country has had enough experience to cure it, so long as the memory of the inebriated era lasts, of foreign affairs so managed that they impose nothing but losses on America and contain nothing but profit for others.

If congress has the star dust out of its eyes at last there will be considerable wind let out of the enthusiasms for international agreements, entanglements, and congresses. In the last half year there have been exhibits of the world court, the league of nations, the naval treaties, the peace treaty, the suspension of debts, and other illusions of good to impress even Simple Simon. The cure for a soft egg is hot water. The United States has been in enough of that.

NEW ALUMNI AND NEW LOYALTIES.

In the intramural sports at Joliet, where intramural does not mean maybe, the football team of house E beat the team of house D, six to nothing. Unlike Sing Sing in New York, the Illinois penitentiary has not yet produced a varsity team for conference or intersectional games. It is developing its sports more on the Oxford system than that of New York university, where Coach Meehan has just resigned with bitter words of protest against high pressure, gate receipt methods which he was hired to employ. Ultimately Joliet may take on a few natural rivals from outside. Sing Sing would be one. The Chicago detective bureau would be another. At present it is content with the house system.

While the penitentiary game is in its infancy there is a chance to formulate a sensible body of rules which will avoid many of the errors into which the collegiate game fell years ago. The game properly directed may do much to create a new morale and loyalties of considerable social value. When a successful football season makes a graduate of one of these new state educational institutions proud of his connection with this alma mater there will be a new dependable element in the body of citizenship. When a man is elated to write himself "Leavenworth, '33," and wear an emblematic button, he may never want to return, except to class day reunions, homecomings, and dads' days, and he would never care to make any connection with another institution.

The sport should be guarded in the formulation of its rules against proselyting by alumni, the offering of inducements and a weakening of the entrance qualifications. Freshmen should be ineligible, as in the college game, and it might, indeed, be wise to require at least four years' attendance as a condition. It is apparent that a person should have some other reason than football to explain his connection with the institution, but common sense can easily avoid overemphasis. The athletic control can make use of the experience of the universities and proceed with caution.

It may be noted here that Sing Sing, having finished its football year, has opened the dramatic season. Alabama Pitts, who was the football star, is in the theatrical cast. The outside persons were procured by the management not to wear jewelry and cautioned not to carry large sums of money. Warden Lewes explained that it was desirable not to distract the minds of the players from their parts. The audience also was requested to remain seated after the performance until the players and ushers had been counted. We now confidently await the formation of Greek letter societies in the institutions, probably with chapter houses, and the arrival of a new graduate body upon the scene.

RESULTS OF THE WAR ON CAPITAL.

It is, of course, no secret except perhaps to Washington that we have been having what is known as a panic. Stocks of the best quality have been thrown upon the exchanges at prices without relation to their intrinsic value. For the investor with funds, a sound knowledge of values and faith in the sanity and resources of the nation bargains are all up and down the list. They are the opportunities of future wealth. But the panic psychology shakes all faith in values and ruthlessly sacrifices them.

These are platitudes, and exhortation to reason and self-control do not get very far in a stampede. Those who are strong enough in resources and in morale to stand out against what is in the main mob psychology will be richly rewarded. Many who lacked the funds or the confidence were carried down. This is the tragedy of panics.

But underlying the immediate causes of this panic and its predecessors during the depression is a cause of old standing, which it is of vital importance that the nation should realize. Modern society, the great and complicated engine of wealth and production and distribution by which we all live, is the product of capital and its elaborate mechanism of credit. It is capital that lubricates the machine of our property and when its flow is stopped the machine stops. Yet for years there has been a persistent attack upon capital.

This attack upon capital has been motivated by human envy and the mistaken exaggeration of individual inequalities of fortune and also by a more respectable aspiration toward what is vaguely conceived as justice. But the result of this long continued attack has been, not an advance of the general welfare, but its diminishment and in present conditions almost its paralysis. Far from benefiting the less fortunate, it has checked the progress they were making and is crushing them with new misfortunes. The attack upon capital through ever increasing burdens and exactions, and through ever widening restraints upon its productive service, has culminated in the present national situation, with millions out of work, savings swept away, real values sacrificed, and the whole mechanism which had created the people's prosperity and material progress made helpless.

The basic cause of our present predicament is our lack of understanding of the role capital has played in American prosperity, until the violent arrest of 1929 the greatest and most widely and equitably distributed in the world. By reckless waste, by unwise diversion, by checks and interferences with its creative energy, capital has been exhausted and paralyzed. The result is what we have today. The way out is clear, to reverse our folly, to relieve capital of the burden it is staggering under, to free its energies from irrational and misguided restraints, to return to the way over which the American people marched through many trials and difficulties to a prosperity unequaled.

A CORRECTION.

The article by Charles Benedict on the cost of the war to the United States quoted in THE TRIBUNE editorial, "Who Lost the War?" appeared in the Magazine of Wall Street, not in the Wall Street Journal, as stated in THE TRIBUNE. We regret the error, as the Magazine of Wall Street deserves full credit for publishing at this time Mr. Benedict's striking summary.

REBEL McFADDEN LOSES HIS HEAD.

Congressman McFadden of Pennsylvania has had all his postmasters taken away from him. Mr. McFadden is to be regarded as dead. Politically there is no such person. The Pennsylvania senators, Reed and Davis, have obtained the consent of Postmaster General Brown to this idea of Mr. McFadden's status. There is no such person. He ceased to exist when he made the speech in the house of representatives saying that the policies of the administration had been determined by international bankers for the protection of private loans and not by the interests of the United States.

The constitution provides that no bill of attainder shall be passed, but Mr. Reed and Mr. Davis hold Mr. McFadden attainted and are taking over his political properties, having sent him to the gallows. They will exercise the privilege and use the patronage which was his. His assets have been distributed and it is to be considered that his head is on a pole on Capitol hill as a warning to other rebels who may have had speeches in their mind.

"We intend to act to all practical purposes," said Senator Reed, "as if Representative McFadden had died. This action is not unprecedented. Several years ago a representative from Reading, Pa., got enthusiastic and claimed William S. Vare and I were crooks. I put the clamps on him." What amusing enthusiasms they can have in Pennsylvania, but they are dangerous when they run into battlemented medievalism. Listening to Senator Reed you can hear Lord Thurlow who had the Norman conquest in his eyebrows and the feudal system in every feature.

The vassal McFadden is done for. His head is off. His feoff is confiscated. He committed the unpardonable offense against high places. His blood is attaint and, although he may seem to walk and breathe and even may talk again, he is, "for all practical purposes," dead.

THE PUBLIC MOSTLY HONEST.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

It is pleasant to read of the tests made of measuring and weighing apparatus in Illinois. It furnishes a further prop for the thesis that we all of us are reasonably honest. In 45,185 instances of inspection, but 1,100 cases of incorrect measuring were found and officials were satisfied that most of these were not caused deliberately but were due to the effects of wear or other unrecognized defects in the containers used for measuring. Scales in retail stores were tested by weighing packages after sale. In 20,526 out of 21,840 instances weights were ascertained to be correct and 944 of the other instances were instances of overweight, not underweight. The 406 gasoline pumps found last year to be defective are expected to be sharply reduced by a requirement that a simple test of the automatic measuring devices must be made every morning.

It may be that a lot of us have their price, but such price is not found in the petty gains that may result from short weights or measures to the extent of an ounce or two or a gill or two.

MORE PELLAGRA CURES.

THOSE who would avoid pellagra now have a fairly good number of pellagra preventive foods from which to choose. The vitamin which protects against this disease is not known certainly, nor do all health people agree that pellagra is a vitamin deficiency disease. Most workers in vitamins think the pellagra preventive principle is found in vitamin B, but the proof is not satisfactory to many.

It has not been necessary to await decision on academic questions. Investigators connected with the public health service have been diligently digging away trying to discover what foods would cure pellagra and, still more important, which would prevent it.

The first they advocated was yeast. They determined not only what yeast would do but they told us how much a person must eat of it daily to cure the disease and how much to prevent it. They also told us how much fresh beef eaten daily would prevent and how much would cure. This plan of having one eat his medicine proved intriguing, and they kept on with their studies.

Presently, canned salmon, milk, wheat germ, and tomato juice were added to the list of satisfactory foods, and a list of foods that helped but were not sufficiently potent alone was offered. On this list were several vegetables, including soy beans and cow peas. Then they supplied a list of otherwise good foods but with no pellagra preventive principle. On this list they put butter, rutabagas and carrots.

In a recent contribution they add some foods to each of these lists. Canned spinach and canned turnip greens were added to the list of reasonably efficient anti-pellagra foods. Canned green beans was added to the list of foods with some but not very much of the principle. Mature red onions went on the list of those with almost no power to prevent. Canned spinach, turnip greens and green beans were used because they can be had at all seasons of the year. Fresh spinach, turnip greens and beans are certainly as good as the canned articles and probably somewhat better.

FRACTURE OF NOSE.

A. J. writes: Can any one tell, without an X-ray, whether a child's nose is broken? My little boy, 1½ years old, was standing on the back seat of the car when we came to a sudden stop. He fell to the floor and skinned his nose. The top of his nose feels soft to the touch, and I am worried for fear it is broken. If it is, can anything be done so that it won't be deformed?

REPLY.

As a rule, a fracture of the nose can be detected with the fingers. X-ray is not often necessary for diagnosis. As a rule, the broken bones can be put in place and held there. Usually a person with a broken nose will not wear a dressing long, if at all.

THERE IS SOME DANGER.

J. A. M. writes: 1. I have been told that boiling tobacco, then straining it through a cloth, when applied to the scalp, is good for the hair—both to make it grow and to darken it. Do you think the nicotine absorbed through the scalp would poison the system?

2. If not, do you think it is good for the hair?

REPLY.

1. There is some danger, but it is not great.
2. No.

HE WEIGHS ENOUGH.

Mrs. A. M. O. writes: My boy is 2 years old, 35½ inches tall, and weighs 30 pounds.

1. Should he weigh more?
2. What should his weight be?
3. In cool weather he is pale. He has no color, his nose runs, and his hands are cold outdoors. Do you think that he is anemic?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Around 30 pounds. Generally a little below that.
3. Nothing in your letter indicates that the boy is anemic.

CITIZENSHIP.

Winfield, Kas., Dec. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—1. If a woman marries an alien prior to September, 1922, does she, even though American born, lose her citizenship? 2. If after her marriage her husband becomes a citizen, does she automatically resume her citizenship or is it necessary for her to take out papers? 3. If a child was born in a foreign country and the parents came to the United States and become naturalized, does this child automatically become a citizen or does he have to apply for papers? Is there any age limit?

S. A. G.

1. Yes, if she married on or before Sept. 22, 1922.
2. If the husband was naturalized before Sept. 22, 1922, she became a citizen through his naturalization, but if he was naturalized on or after that date she must herself be naturalized.
3. If the father was naturalized before the child attained the age of 21 years and the child was living in the United States, it became a citizen through the naturalization of its father.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director United States Department of Labor.

PAUPER ACT.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—May I apply for aid in securing support for my mother and father, who are without any means of any kind and no home? We are four girls in the family, two being married and having families. I would like to know if there is some way in which we could compel the others to contribute to their support?

V. B.

Our pauper act requires near relatives to contribute according to their means to the support of destitute persons except that married women are not required to contribute unless they have independent means. Apply to the bureau of public welfare in the county building.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INTEREST IS TRANSFERABLE.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented a flat last May for one year, signing a lease for same. Last week the landlord sold the property. I don't like my new landlord. Is my lease binding upon me inasmuch as I did not sign for the new landlord? J. B.

Unless your lease contains wording to the contrary the landlord's interest is transferable and the purchaser from the landlord would succeed to all rights of the one with whom you dealt.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

AND NOW THEY'RE ARGUING whether the warm weather we're having this winter isn't due to the depression. The wise ones say that the weather always grows warm during depressions and they pull statistics to prove it. Of course, it's all stuff and nonsense; oh, of course. It's funny that, although we claim to be more enlightened every day, some lingering bit of superstition still bobs up now and then. What in the world could the depression, which is strictly a condition that affects only humans, have to do with the warm weather, which is purely physical? Not a thing; not a thing in the world. Anybody that believed that thing would carry the left hind foot of a graveyard rabbit in his pocket and mumble a charm to clear off his warts. The warm winter has nothing to do with the depression or the depression with the warm winter, and that's that. Oh, gosh, I wish it would snow!

A Scarlet Saddle for Pegasus.

"Dordi! Dovelo adoi!" . . . in her tongue
Are echoes remaining when bells have rung.
Are words in a patteran, soft and quaint . . .
(Midwel knows that I wasn't a saint!)

She is only a child
In a ragged gown
That she probably stole
From Midbury Town
When a hawthorn hedge and an April wind
Were a restlessness for all of her kind,
And the scent of the earth
In a sudden rain
Was a far voice calling . . .
A sharpening pain
That would not be stilled till a gypsy man
Had his wife and childer within the tan . . .

She is only a chi
With a childish flair
For scarlet tall heels
And binding her hair
Away from its tangle of thunder-cloud,
And swinging her hips in her ragged clothes
While she walks the tips of her tiny toes.

"Dordi! Dovelo adoi! . . . There! You see!"
(That was how another had come to me . . .)
"You shall have many loves!"—holding my palm;
(While my mind raced back . . . and my face stayed calm)
"Many ones, many ones
Have shed foolish tears,
And none of them held you
Through all these years
Since that line came there . . ." her childish chatter,
Taught her by bebe . . . what did it matter?

How could she know that a
Girl a bit older,
With the same dark beauty,
(I could have told her)
Loved me the space of a Devonshire Spring,
And left me the birds unable to sing . . .?
And now here was her ghost
With the same strange flair
For tall heels of scarlet
And binding her hair
Away from its tangle of thunder-cloud
Close to a head that is stubborn and proud
As her mother's had been . . . and just as fine
(Thank God she is lovely . . . this child of mine.)

LIVING IN THE SUPERLATIVE ERA

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has passed through other periods of depression and hard times, as the files of The Tribune back in 1873, 1894, 1908, 1921, and other years prove. All of these panic years have been followed by periods of great prosperity.

As those depression years fade back into history the memory of them grows dim, and to recall to its readers that the present is not the first year of hard times The Tribune begins today to reprint items from its own columns recalling the experiences of other days. And in all those cases the gloom passed.

1873.

New York, Sept. 18.—Another day of intense excitement has passed over Wall street. Stocks for the first two or three hours fluctuated wonderfully. Western Union fell 10 per cent. Shortly after noon it was officially announced that the house of Jay Cooke & Co. had suspended. Its liabilities are anywhere from $8,000,000 to $25,000,000. The house was overloaded with $85,000,000 worth of Northern Pacific railway bonds.

The Philadelphia branch of Jay Cooke & Co. also closed its doors. Mr. Fahnestock of the firm said that for several weeks the uneasy feeling which prevailed in connection with new railroad schemes caused heavy drains upon the deposits of both houses. Dispatches from towns along the route of the Northern Pacific indicate intense feeling over the failure. A. Fargo, D. T., dispatch says: "It prostrates everything." Many farmers of the west are holders of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 worth of the Northern Pacific bonds. Only about $25,000 worth of the bonds are held in Chicago.

Jan. 1.—Bad times have come in a manner never before experienced. Nearly 6,000 men and women who have been working in the various mercantile establishments of Chicago have been thrown out of employment since the close of the holiday period.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1.—Mayor Pingree is thoroughly aroused to the necessity of providing work for the thousands of idle men in Detroit who are now receiving aid from the poor commission. Public sentiment is in favor of at once commencing the erection of a new $3,000,000 city hall.

1908.

Dull Times and the Army.—In the east many of the unemployed are finding employment in the ranks of the army. There are vacancies there, while there are none in mills or shops. The same thing happened in 1893.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 21, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Former Inspector of Police Nicholas Hunt is scheduled to assume charge of the detective bureau tonight at roll call. With the announcement that Hunt would be named, the mayor, State's Attorney Hoyne, and Chief of Police Healey declared that they had joined hands for a cleanup of Chicago. Percy Coffin of the civil service commission confirmed the program.

SOFIA.—The Echo de Bulgarie announces that the Bulgarian troops have been halted on the Greek frontier in order to avoid embarrassing the Greek government. It declares, however, that it may become necessary for the Bulgarian and German armies to invade Greece in pursuit of the allied forces at an early date.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 21, 1901.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Gov. W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, it is declared, is to be the successor of Lyman J. Gage as secretary of the treasury. The rumor that Mr. Gage is to retire has been confirmed today. No date has been fixed, but in all likelihood it will be soon. This is the second change in President Roosevelt's cabinet and others are likely to follow. It is asserted that when Secretary Gage retires Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer of the United States; O. L. Spalding and H. A. Taylor, assistant secretaries, will all quit the department. Secretary Long's resignation is practically in the hands of the President now because it was well understood at the time of the tragedy at Buffalo that the secretary of the navy would remain only until the Schley controversy was disposed of.

THE CASE FOR THE NORMAL COLLEGE.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—The arguments favoring the closing of the Normal college seem to be based upon the assumption that the school has only one function—namely: the training of new teachers for Chicago. This is an important function and one which involves such technicalities that the job could not be done effectively by any other institution which is not in close contact with the demands placed upon teachers in Chicago.

However, Chicago Normal college has another important function. That is, it serves in an experimental and consulting capacity for all teachers in the elementary and junior high schools. Such questions as what shall be taught, how shall it be taught, and how shall we test to determine that it has been taught are not questions that can be answered once and then dropped. A changing world demands a changing curriculum and changing methods.

Some of the general principles may be brought out in university laboratories, but the application of these principles in the lives of Chicago boys and girls must be made by the classroom teachers with the assistance of supervisors and consultants from the Chicago Normal college. In order to keep these experiments alive and practical it is necessary that the experimenter keep in contact with college students who are studying similar problems and with grade school teachers and children who are to experience the new materials and methods. Now this sort of a program is in full momentum at the Normal college. Some experiments have been under test for weeks, others for months or years. Any break in the continuity of these experiments will certainly be wasteful.

C. W. GIFFORD,
Department of Education, Chicago Normal College.

TOO CHEAP.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The state of Kansas, which has less than half the population of Cook county, supports by public taxation a great state university and also three teachers' colleges, each of which grants the A. B. degree. If Chicago were doing half as well in proportion to its population we could have the largest and best municipal teachers' college in the United States.

The taxpayers of Chicago should demand that our Normal college be most liberally supported, to the end that it be elevated to regular senior college rank, with four years of work and granting the A. B. degree, and with a graduate school for further training of teachers for special instruction and for supervisory positions. BUSINESS MAN.

DRY AS DUST.

Stockton, Cal., Dec. 9.—After twenty years away from Illinois, I have just spent eight days in your city, as a delegate to the American Farm Bureau convention.

I have lived, along with two thousand or so others, at the Hotel Sherman. Have been in the lobby, the elevators, and the meetings constantly, and did not see a drunk, nor even once catch the odor of an alcoholic breath.

On my California ranch, with a force sometimes as high as fifty men, I knew that the laboring class has about learned to get along without booze. I was not prepared to see our great leaders in sobriety, business and agriculture as absolutely sober as I have seen them here.

Editorials in Chicago papers, including your own, certainly had not prepared me for this tremendous improvement.

H. W. BARTON.

FEUDALISM IN OUR LAW.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—John Wharton writes [your issue of this date] for the citation of a case holding that the feudal system had never been a part of the law of Michigan. If he will examine the case of Fort Dearborn lodge vs. Klein, et al., reported in volume 118 of the Illinois Reports, at page 163, he will find the following statement:

"Suffice it to say, in general terms, that the evils and abuses that formerly found recognition in the law of real property as it existed in England, growing out of their feudal origin have, in the main, long since been abolished in England, and, as to this country, they never had any existence. Feudal rights and duties are exhaustively treated by Blackstone, Kent, and other standard authors."

The research department of the University of Michigan law school will no doubt give our inquiring neighbor the specific Michigan citation he seeks. A little research work by Bro. Wharton through one of the National Digest works will undoubtedly locate a Michigan citation if one exists.

CHARLES V. FALKENBERG.

RIPE FOR A DICTATOR.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 13.—Our government is failing. In the past it has been successful because a continent of natural advantages lay open for exploitation. It is a form of government particularly unsuited to us. It assumes we are honest. We are not. It assumes that a large proportion of us are public minded. Very few of us are. It assumes that men of integrity and foresight will be nominated and elected to office. Such men are seldom nominated. It assumes that men of ordinary intelligence can and do understand the problems of government. They cannot and do not.

We are a people particularly fitted for the dictator form of government. We are spineless, dumb, lazy, dishonest, cowardly and unfitted to rule ourselves. Let us rid ourselves of the bosh about a government of the people, for the people, by the people. There never was and never can be such a government. Let us as rapidly as possible change to a government of a dictator, by a dictator, and let us pray that he will be for the people.

$3,500,000 SHIP ABOUT TO GO IN SERVICE BURNED

Fruit Liner Sergovia Is Destroyed in Yard.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The $3,500,000 liner Sergovia, under construction for the United Mail Steamship company, was burned at her dock in the New Port News Shipbuilding and Drydock company plant here today. The steamer had been almost completed and was to have been delivered by Jan. 30.

Fire started in hold No. 3 of the vessel this morning about 4 o'clock and was discovered soon afterward by a watchman who turned in the alarm.

Virtually the entire city fire department and shipyard apparatus poured thousands of tons of water into the vessel for hours. This caused the ship to list, and at nine o'clock she rolled over on her side after her entire upper structure had been swept away by the flames. The interior of the vessel, not submerged, continued to smolder through the afternoon despite the best efforts of firemen from three fire tugs and dozens of engine companies.

Brisk Wind Whips Fire.

The fire was whipped by a brisk wind, and the unusual refrigeration construction for the vessel, which included much powdered cork, made fire fighting difficult. The smoke was thick and heavy, and firemen were forced to cut holes through the ship's plate sides to get rid of it.

Witnesses to the fire say the vessel is a complete loss, although George A. Parker, assistant secretary to Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, would not admit the Sergovia is worthless. The shipyard was fully protected by insurance, but Mr. Parker would not make any statement with regard to the loss pending an investigation by underwriters and the return of Mr. Ferguson, who is away from the city.

Shipyard officials were unwilling to make any statement about the possible origin of the fire.

One of Three Built.

The Sergovia was one of three sister ships built for the United Mail Steamship company, a subsidiary of the United Fruit company, and was christened here last Aug. 15 by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, who simultaneously christened one of the sister ships, the Talamanca.

The Sergovia was of the most modern passenger-cargo ship construction and was expected to be put into service in February between San Francisco and Panama. She was of 11,000 tons displacement, 446 feet long, had a beam of 60 feet, and was 34 feet in depth.

The Talamanca was delivered to the United Mail Steamship company Dec. 14 and is in New York, where she will start her maiden voyage to San Francisco on Dec. 24. The other sister ship, the Chiriqui, was in an adjoining dock today, but was not damaged.

Gouverneur Morris Is Sued for $52.35 Apparel Bill

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Gouverneur Morris, author and his wife failed to pay for clothing purchased from a local cloak and suit house, it is asserted in a suit on file in Municipal court here. Attorney George M. Wicke in the legal papers asserts they admitted on April 16, 1930, that they owed a bill of $52.35.

IN ALL N. Y. ONLY HIS NOSE KNOWS HOW TO USE DIAL TELEPHONE

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—A new game was started today by reports that Frank Pope, bound and gagged in the offices of the Consolidated ticket office here had summoned help by dialing the telephone with his nose.

According to the first accounts, the faithful employé managed to wriggle over to a desk telephone and knock it down. He thereupon inserted the tip of his nose into the dial and made a circular sweep of his head.

Six times he nosed the dial around with such accuracy that he got his wife on the telephone and told her how he had been the victim of burglars.

This alleged feat aroused rivalry and competition all over the city today. Men who previously had held their own in nearly every department of human activity took off their hats to the resourceful clerk. The ordinary nose is not, it was found, a fit instrument for duplicating the alleged feat of the clerk.

Resolute men wore their profiles flat today without once being able to signal the operator. Noses of the Roman and semitic types proved to be absolutely worthless in emergencies. Flexible tipped noses of human tapirs and anteaters succeeded in moving the dial part way, but lacked the necessary followup. The greatest success were scored by English turned-up noses, but these failed to make a single complete circle.

Youths Catch Burglar as He Leaves Victim's Home

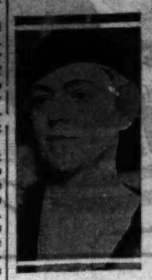
James Scott, colored, 48 years old, left his home at 2901 South Dearborn street last night on a burglary expedition. He broke into one house and stole a woman's dress. Then he went to the home of Valentine Wolst, 5917 Princeton avenue, where he picked up a watch, some small articles of jewelry and a few dollars. As he was going out the back door he met Henry Wolst, 16 years old, who was returning home with a companion about the same age. The two youths knocked Scott down and held him until police, summoned by neighbors, arrived.

U. S. CURBS HIRED TESTIMONIALS OF BUSINESS FIRMS

Orders New York Concern to Stop Practice.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The federal trade commission has gone gunning for business concerns that advertise their products by means of hired testimonials.



ETHEL BARRYMORE.
[E. A. Atwell Photo.]

This was disclosed today when the commission made public an order to the Northam Warren corporation, New York, manufacturers of toilet articles and preparations, to cease using testimonials for which it had paid $1,000 to Ethel Barrymore, £100 to Anna Pavlova, £200 to Mrs. Michael Arlen, $500 to Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, and $150 to Miss Lassie Honeyman, personal friend of Mrs. Christy, for services in obtaining the latter's indorsement.

Others Promise to Stop It.

It is learned that some concerns promised to cease the practice and thereby avoided issuance of an order against them. Other cases are pending.

"As an illustration of the procedure," says the trade commission, there is quoted the following letter from Ethel Barrymore:

"'I hereby give the Northam Warren corporation and—or the J. Walter Thompson company [advertising agency]—permission to use in its advertising my photograph and—or my name—or a statement to be submitted to me and which, when approved by me, I agree to sign.

Miss Barrymore Gave Consent.

"'I agree not to endorse any other manicuring product and to test adequately the complete Cutex outfit with which the Northam Warren corporation will supply me. [Signed] Ethel Barrymore.'

"Miss Barrymore authorized the use for advertising of a stamp prepared for that purpose and submitted to her. It contained, among other, the following language: 'Everything must flatter us to our finger tips,' says Ethel Barrymore. The best loved actress on the American stage adds, 'and of all the ways of grooming the finger tips I find new Cutex liquid polish the most flattering.'"

Body of Closed Bank's Cashier Found in River

Byron, Ill., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The body of D. Wray Barrick, cashier of Byron State bank, closed by the state auditor Dec. 15, was taken from Rock river this morning. Barrick had been missing from his home since early Saturday morning. He has been in ill health.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

At the Hunt Breakfast

It is the time for the toast to the boot and saddle, to fair women—and men, to the friendship of comrades who have been tried in the field and never found wanting . . .

It is the time when our special toast is given to those who are braving the heat and cold of far countries—to those who are delving into desert sands, or scaling icy peaks, or cutting their way through jungles, or who are enjoying outdoor pleasures with the world for their playground . . .

It is the time for gifts, for the happy remembrances that are the visible tokens of good fellowship. In our shop are gifts you would choose for your friends.

EIGHT WILL FACE COURT TODAY ON SMOKE CHARGES

Twenty Others Are Called for Warnings.

Seven persons and one business concern will be placed on trial today before Municipal Judge Theodore Ehler on charges of violating the city's smoke abatement ordinance. In each case Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, will ask that the maximum fine of $100 be imposed.

The specific charge in each case is that chimneys under the control of the defendants polluted the air with dense smoke. On the first occasion that the city inspectors note the violation of smoke a warning is issued. Court action is taken usually only in a second offense. Those who are being sued are:

Noah Clemens, 3697 North Western avenue.

Frank W. Darfield, 400 North Wells street.

Charles F. Glaeser, 1439 Ardmore avenue.

John Kinsella, 628 West Jackson boulevard.

Rudolph Schmidbrun, 944 West Adams street.

Wilson R. Wendler, 3337 Harper avenue.

Several other persons and business concerns have been summoned to appear in Chambers' office in the city hall today to explain a first offense. They summoned are:

Ed Tell company, 9740 South Chicago avenue.

Gust A. Peloz, 7030 East End avenue.

Gust A. Peloz, 7715 East 71st street.

Gust A. Peloz, 7900 East End avenue.

Chicago apartments, 7016 East End avenue.

A. B. Gray, 221 South La Salle street.

Glass Fit company, 2440 West Congress street.

Seifert's laundry, 2349 West Harrison street.

U. S. Tractor, 225 North Michigan avenue, Room 611 telephone, 35 East Wacker drive.

J. McCourt, 6716 Ridgeland avenue.

Keller & Pearce, 1811 East 67th street.

A. W. Straube & Co., 6200 Exmoore avenue.

Jos S. Bowes, Agents, 1242 Lake Shore drive.

The smoke department also is following up a complaint made against the tug boat Graeme Stewart. The boat's stack emitted dense clouds of smoke Thursday near the Wabash avenue bridge when it was returning to its berth at Franklin street, after sailing near the mouth of the river.

LIBERTYVILLE IS GOING TO SEE SANTA AFTER ALL

Libertyville is feeling a little better about Santa Claus. The chamber of commerce, which announced on Monday that St. Nick's business agent, the Diamond Reindeer ranch of Duluth, Minn., would be sued because a contract to furnish Santa and all his reindeer to the town today had been broken, asserted yesterday that Santa would arrive by plane and that only the reindeer would be missing from his troupe.

The ranch company informed the Libertyville folk that Vincennes, Ind., had quarantined the deer on account of skin disease. Arrangements were then made for the plane trip and the children of 100 schools in Lake county, who had been invited to meet Santa and talk things over with him, will not be disappointed.

Kurdish Revolt Breaks Out on Frontier of Iraq

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The Egyptian correspondent of the newspaper El Ahram reported today that a Kurdish revolution had broken out on the Iraq frontier and that sharp fighting had occurred between Iraq forces and tribesmen led by the Sheik Hamed.

Britain to Send India Revolt Leaders Into 'Siberian' Exile

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Leaders of agitation for freedom of India from British rule will in the future be imprisoned in one of several oriental Siberias which are to be set up. They will not only be forced to work as farm laborers in these concentration camps but will be cut off from communication with their followers.

The new measures were sanctioned today by Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India. They are designed to scatter the leaders far from the scene of their influence. Propagators of the "no rent" campaign will be arrested wherever it appears that they are trying to capitalize on hard times in India, or to embarrass the continuation of work of the second round table conference.

Will Send Leaders Away.

But instead of languishing in prison, where they still have the usual means of communication with the outside world, they will be shipped to other parts. Those arrested in Bengal will be sent to Agra in the United Provinces; Bombay agitators will be exiled to the Northwest Frontier Province, and the passive resisters in the United Provinces will be sent to Burma.

Under this scheme it is believed it will be impossible for them to continue agitations among economic strikers.

It is further understood that thousands of less important prisoners will be concentrated on vast tracts of cultivatable land under government control where they will be forced to work, thus paying for their own costs of imprisonment.

The government is reported to have sufficient land to accommodate 200,000 or 300,000 prisoners. In order to adequately anticipate the trouble when the new scheme is enforced, regulations have already been drafted under which the military forces in India can be increased to 10,000, it has been learned.

This will enable the government to retain regiments usually relieved at this time of the year for emergency use.

British Arrest Women Agitators.

DACCA, India, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The head mistress of a girls' high school and a girl university graduate were among 18 persons arrested here today under Bengal's new anti-terrorism ordinance. The others were young men, the arrests following upon a raid in the high school, an orphanage, and 53 homes.

Young women, encouraged by Pandit Jawarhalal Nehru, are taking a more prominent part in disorders against which the new ordinance was issued. The government of the United Provinces made public last week a statement, taken from a circular issued by the Nationalists, which said:

"All should try to turn their women into leaders, so that when men are arrested in the next war women may become leaders. The English will not arrest women."

Pandit Thrown in Cell.

ALLAHABAD, India, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Pandit Krishnakant Malaviya, son of Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, who was a delegate to the recent Indian round table conference at London, was arrested today and imprisoned in the Naini jail.

Pandit Krishnakant was charged with having presided at a meeting last night in violation of a prohibitory notice. The meeting was in protest against the arrest of Prushotamdas Tandon, who was taken into custody for addressing another meeting in connection with the "no rent" campaign in the United Provinces.

Derail Express Train.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A passenger train was derailed near Asansol early today owing, officials said, to "malicious" removal of plates joining the rails together. No one was injured.

It was the second time within a week that a passenger train in India was derailed. The Dinapur express had just left a wayside station and was about to travel through open country, proceeding slowly, when the entire train, consisting of an engine and nine cars, toppled on its side.

TWO ROBBERS SHOT BY POLICE DIE OF WOUNDS

Two robbers, both of whom had been shot by policemen, died yesterday in the Bridewell hospital. Bartholomew O'Donnell, 20 years old, alias James O'Brien, 743 Willow street, died of wounds in his head and arm. He was shot Friday night by Policeman Edward J. Hanus when he and a companion tried to hold up the home of Fred Hartwig, 2240 Armitage avenue. His companion, who was killed, is still unidentified.

Daniel Murphy, 30 years old, of Kansas City, died of wounds he suffered on Dec. 5 when he and three companions exchanged shots with members of the detective bureau squad of Sergt. William P. McCarthy at Belden avenue and Clark street. Murphy and his companions were riding in an automobile which attracted the attention of the squad. His companions, who escaped on foot, were later arrested and confessed robbing seven soft drink parlors.

Miss Cenetta Mang, 17 years old, 2837 Sheffield avenue, who was accidentally shot early yesterday during an altercation between two men at a party in a rooming house at 4651 Irving Park boulevard, died later in the day at the Belmont hospital. The Albany Park police are seeking Thomas Peebles, 22 years old, a roomer there, who fired the shot.

During the party in which some "home brew" was consumed, according to the police, Peebles and John Rhodes, 26 years old, also a roomer in the building, started a heated argument. Rhodes is said to have struck Peebles and the latter ran to his room, where he procured his revolver. He fired a shot at Rhodes, which went wild, and Miss Mang, who had attempted to quiet them, ran forward to disarm Peebles. Peebles fired at Rhodes a second time and the girl, who was in the line of fire, slumped to the floor with the bullet in her abdomen.

The police were called and those who attended the party were taken into custody for questioning and later released. Mrs. Minnie Powell, owner of the rooming house, and a number of other guests, denied witnessing the shooting. Rhodes told Capt. Joseph Goldberg that the quarrel between him and Peebles was "just another fool argument."

Miss Mang attended the party with Earl Fuller, her fiancé, also a roomer in the building. Her sister, Inez, 18 years old, was also a guest. The police learned that the Mang sisters were formerly of New Orleans, having come north with their mother, Mrs. Mathilda Mang, several months ago.

REBELLION STIRS CO-OPERATIVES IN WHEAT COUNTRY

Say U. S. Has Raised Up Dictatorship.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 20—[Special.]—Coöp is arrayed against coöp in a controversy over whether the Farmers National Grain corporation is injuring or aiding the co-operative marketing movement, to promote which was one purpose in the establishment of the federal farm board.

C. E. HUFF. [A. P. Photo.]

Charges that a triumvirate of wheat bosses has come into control of the machinery set up by the government to deal with wheat are made in the ouster case in which State Senator Gerald T. Mullin seeks the removal of the three Minnesota railroad and warehouse commissioners, hearings on which are to be resumed tomorrow by Gov. Floyd B. Olson. The Mullin brief alleges C. E. Huff of Salina, Kas., president of the Farmers National Grain, John Manley of the Oklahoma Wheat Growers, and M. W. Thatcher, former Townley associate and manager of the Farmers Union Terminal association, are the big three in government in wheat.

Charge Freeze-out Methods.

The Farmers Union Terminal, the brief recites, holds about 30 per cent of the voting stock of Farmers National, "so that M. W. Thatcher, as general manager of Farmers Union Terminal, with the aid of John Manley, head of the Oklahoma association, controls the election of officers and directors of Farmers National Grain and through them the Grain Stabilization corporation."

Officials of National Grain declare this charge is without foundation, saying that in electing the executive committee each director has only one vote.

Out of all the hullabaloo that resounds in the midwest, one of the loudest protests arises from a group of strong coöperatives with an aggregate membership of 300,000. It is to the effect that Farmers National Grain has been using a "freeze out" method to bring regionals into its control, that it has announced a policy of taking over the grain marketing facilities of its regional organizations, and that the resulting setup, instead of being coöperative, is a super-marketing machine, under a small group control.

Called Farm Board Victory.

Against this supporters of the farm board declare that at the outset, when setting up the marketing machinery, the board avowed its intention of getting all the opposing co-operative organizations together as the only way to make a go of the federal farm marketing act, and hailed it a triumph when some of the battlers who had carried "Any One but Hoover" signs at the Kansas City Republican national convention joined up.

Politics has barged in stronger than ever. Critics are shouting that some radical groups which were against Hoover in 1928 now represent the administration in its farm relief activities, while some groups which were Hooverish in 1928 are protesting against the policies followed by National Grain.

On the other side, the Farmers' union is declaiming that the leaders of the big northwest coöperatives with 300,000 members who went to Washington a few months ago with protests, set themselves up as Republicans in appealing to the White House and the farm board.

Appeal to Governor.

Getting the cold eye, so the union shouts, the protesting group came back and is now supporting the petition to Gov. Olson, a Farmer-Labor governor, to throw out the three Republican railroad and warehouse commissioners on grounds of neglect, misconduct and misfeasance.

The Mullin brief, in addition to the "elevator M scandal," charges the Farmers' Union Terminal association, the Thatcher coöp which is said to have 75,000 members, with alleged practices outside the law. Among the accusations are:

"By purchasing for itself grain shipped to itself on consignment at less than the market price it not only buys the grain itself and charges a commission, but in many instances pays the shipper two cents a bushel less than the prevailing market price on that day.

"By charging the local elevator a so-called service charge of three-fourths of a cent per bushel on each bushel of grain in a local elevator on which the farmer had secured a shortage ticket and by virtue of which had made a loan from the Grain Stabilization corporation.

"In these cases Farmers Union Terminal association performed no service whatever for the local elevator and such deduction was illegal and fraudulent. Many of such deductions have been refunded on the insistence of the local elevator."

Five Burglars Fired On as They Leave Building

Five burglars fled under gunfire from the basement of the State theater building, 5814-28 West Madison street. They were discovered by David Pierotti, the janitor. He notified Charles Alexander, owner of the State soda shoppe, 5824 Madison street. Alexander stationed himself at the rear door. When the thieves emerged from the basement he fired four shots at them. Investigation showed that the basement section allotted to the Colonial gift shop, 5828 Madison street, had been looted.

WOMAN KILLED BY STREET CAR.

Miss Gussie Safire, 55 years old, of 4707 North Central Park avenue, was fatally injured by a Broadway street car at Foster avenue. Miss Safire, a cook employed at the Admiral hotel, 909 Foster avenue, was on her way home when she was injured.

Stage, Music Notables Now in Book Form

From Shaw to Story on Burlesque.

BY DOROTHIE BOBBE.

WINTER being traditionally the theater's own season, it seems particularly fitting that the present rather somber finish to a critical year should bring forth a wealth of lively and informative books on the theatre, the gossip, and the lore of the stage and the players.

The word news, of course, belongs rather exclusively to the Shaw-Terry story ("Ellen Terry and Bernard Shaw: A Correspondence." [Putnam]). When a preeminent playwright carries on an affair, even at his pen's end, with a beautiful and famous actress, that alone, and regardless of the passage of time, is news. But when the playwright is Bernard Shaw, a worker of willful wonders as well as wonders, and the actress Ellen Terry—when, that is to say, the man is master of the writing, the technique, and the staging as well as the criticism of drama, the woman virgin of the intelligent presentation of it—that is not only sensation, in its literal sense, but is by way of offering a perfectly rounded study of the theatre in all its strength and in all its most fascinating weaknesses, too.

From these pages the well known wit, witty, perspicacious Shaw emerges as perhaps he never has stood before. He was at his prime when he wrote the letters, and the years clearly show it. And though Ellen Terry has been called elsewhere a star of this performance, the present reviewer is not able to share that opinion. That the Ellen Terry here printed is a radiant creature is indubitable. She shines as brightly as a star could wish; but her very radiance seems to be illumined, even at times, by Shaw's own fire, which burned a shade more vivaciously (and so very much more wickedly). The effect is unique, and it is hard to see how it could be duplicated.

Lovers of revue, of the "Rhapsody a Dix," and of the triumph of talent over circumstance, will relish "Georgia Revels: A Study in American Negro" [Simon & Schuster]. It is by Jan Gilbert, who knows both his revels and his jazz and has only mildly made obeisance to both in a book called "Tin Pan Alley." "Georgia Revels" is a better book than "Tin Pan Alley," which means that Mr. Gilbert is happier, for all his diversity of knowledge, with the humanities of popular music than with the absolutes of it. He can, saving a few unfortunate clichés, write the story of a band genius who is a phenomenal man at thirty-three and actually makes both the novel and the love-life qualities of his subject. Hence he decides true story of a youthful genius who, having no "tradition," is forced to create one.

A really rowdy book is "Burleycue," by Bernard Sobel [Farrar & Rinehart]. It calls itself "an underground history of burlesque days," and is so completely and willfully lowdown that it all but succeeds in living up (or down) to that subtitle. "Big" says Mr. Sobel, "furnish the bill of the material on which most burlesque dialogue and action is built—and it is the same with 'Burlesque.'"

It is a collection of bits—personal and by hearsay bits, bits about "Johns" who lurked the stage door, legends and tips, some dull bits and a great many supremely superficial bits, considering the magnitude and the depth of the material he had to delve in. The book is frothy, as befits its title, but it is sufficiently lighthearted to be fairly certain of the affection of the depressed "Johns" of [illegible].

Which brings us to a direct quotation from "First Nights and First Editions," by Harry B. Smith [Little, Brown]. "Too many books"—thus Mr. Smith, a notorious and irrepressible first-nighter—"spoil the froth." It is quoted as a warning against the folly of too much research on a book of work directed primarily to public entertainment. It seems an admirable text for the present brief survey, giving a chance to look at just a few books—his own.

Harry Smith was a boy in Chicago at the time of the great fire. At least, he says he was; but the manner of his recollections reveals him so completely as a years boy today that this reviewer that he is almost seventy-six probably just another of his jests. He can, of course, lay claim to being an immortal. He wrote the book for the operetta "Robin Hood," and more than a dozen others for which Reginald de Koven supplied the music. He performed the same office for Victor Herbert in many of the musical triumphs associated with the name of that latter day master; and he has continued to do so for many of the producers, composers, and stars who still hold away over the public crowds.

Mr. Smith has met every one who has been any one in all the three score and eleven years of which he can lay claim to the Chicago of his early days, and is a great many other things. He has been all things himself: singer, cub reporter, music critic, dramatic reviewer, producer and author, as well as librettist. And in his spare time he has indulged in the hobby of rare book collecting, which is rather technical and often a financial subject he is just as interesting as on all the others.

In the course of both the work and the play he has mastered many subjects which are not required reading for the first writer, with the consequence that he now appears as a critic and something of a philosopher, and Chicago in particular ought to like this book.

War Tragedy Again Appears in the Talkies

Prison Camp Figures in This Drama.

"SURRENDER."
PRODUCED BY FOX.
DIRECTED BY WILLIAM K. HOWARD.
PRESENTED AT THE PALACE THEATER.

THE CAST.

Dumaine ..... Warner Baxter
Axelle ..... Leila Hyams
Capt. Elbing ..... Ralph Bellamy
Gerhet ..... William Pawley
Count Reichendorf ..... C. Aubrey Smith
Dietrich ..... Alexander Kirkland
Claverie ..... Howard Phillips
Vandaele ..... Bert Hanlon
Gottlieb ..... Tom Ricketts
Dominica ..... Dodd Rosboy
Fichet ..... George Andre Beranger
Hugo ..... Frank Swales
Muller ..... Joseph Sauers
Audenard ..... Albert Burke
Eylvestre ..... Jack Conrad

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Personal tragedies, part and parcel of that great tragedy, the world war, are clinic-ed in "Surrender." Hearts are bared, and as they are you are reminded that both sides of the struggle had soldiers who were gentlemen and humane and that a very great lady could be German as well as French. A talking picture—after it gets away from a somewhat usual start.

Most of the action occurs in and about a German prison camp near the castle which houses the lovely Fraulein Axelle and her ferociously patriotic old uncle, Count Reichendorf. The count had been a general in wars of earlier days and he sends his four sons forth to fight in this one with a snorting, fiery-eyed, quivering eagerness. Yes, an old war horse is what he makes you think of.

Three of the boys never return. Dietrich, the dreamer and musician of the lot, who is engaged to Axelle, comes back, stripped of all the stuff his dreams and music had been made of, and with shadowed eyes that appear to have seen ghosts. His, one of those "personal tragedies."

Then there is that of the one time cockily gallant Capt. Elbing, now in charge of the prison camp and "only half a man"—to quote his bitter self. An arm is gone. One half of his face wears a black mask. He loves Axelle hopelessly and is cordially hated by all men save his valet, who adores him and knows what despair masquerades beneath the ogre-skin.

Warner Baxter is seen as a French sergeant, taken prisoner with a number of his comrades. His romance with Axelle furnishes "The Surrender" with its love interest. This dashing, dark chap and the fair and lovely Leila Hyams make excellent foils for each other.

All of the character portrayals are excellent. Direction was intelligent. Photography is fine and sets and incidental "business" make the piece seem real. It's a painful movie that starts stirring anew that surging bitterness against war and its wanton, futile ravages upon men and the women who love them.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES' FATAL HOUR."
Directed by Leslie S. Hiscott.
Presented at the Orpheum theater.

THE CAST.

Sherlock Holmes ..... Arthur Wontner
Dr. Watson ..... Jan Fleming
Mrs. Hudson ..... Minnie Rayner
Ronald Adair ..... Leslie Perrins
Kathleen Adair ..... Jane Welsh
Col. Hemlock ..... Norman McKinnell
Thomas Fisher ..... William Fazan
Tony Retherford ..... Sidney King
Inspector Lestrade ..... Phillip Hewland
Marston ..... Gordon Bezz
Cpl. Morse ..... Louis Goodrich
No. 16 ..... Harry Terry
J. J. Godfrey ..... Charles Paton

The riddle of the murdered bank watchman is being solved on the Orpheum screen by a long, thin Englishman with a keen, worn, kindly face and a quiet, prescient smile. His name is Arthur Wontner, and he is Sherlock Holmes as I have always imagined Conan Doyle's glamorous super-sleuth. His screen portrayal is quite as effective and canny a piece of work as was William Gillette's stage characterization of Holmes.

From start to finish the production holds your interest. The plot is cleverly worked out, suspense is skillfully maintained, and all of the players are able ones. If you would care to compare a real English accent with the spurious Hollywood makeshifts here's your chance. Photography could be better, but at that you've seen plenty worse.

This English production starts off with an entire sequence thrown against a dark screen. Cries, groans, shuffles, gasps tell you their story. Then you learn that a watchman lies dead on the floor of a strong room. Dead—though, apparently, nothing in the bank's vault has been disturbed. There is no sign of the murderer.

Sherlock Holmes is brought into the case by Scotland Yard, and it is not long before his wits are pitted against those of his arch enemy, the mysterious "Professor Moriarty," who is believed by the police to be a myth, but who, Sherlock Holmes knows, controls practically all of the crime in Europe.

The title is misleading, because there is no "fatal hour" for Sherlock Holmes. We leave him peacefully playing his violin, albeit Moriarty, trapped at last, has been dragged away shrieking sinisterly, "I'll get you yet, Holmes! I'll GET YOU YET."

As in the original stories, Dr. Watson is Holmes' aide de camp and closest friend, and the phrase, "Elementary, my dear Watson," is often on the hero's lips. There is, however, neither sign nor mention of the hypodermic needle, so familiar to readers of the Doyle stories.

THE OPERA

"PARSIFAL."
Opera in three acts and six scenes by Richard Wagner. Sung by the Civic Opera company Sunday afternoon, Dec. 20. Conducted by Rene Pallak.

THE CAST:

Parsifal ..... René Maison
Kundry ..... Frida Leider
Amfortas ..... Hans Hermann Nissen
Gurnemanz ..... Alexander Kipnis
Klingsor ..... Eduard Habich
Titurel ..... Chase Baromeo

BY EDWARD MOORE.

THEY worked long and well in preparing the revival of this festival stage consecrational play. The result was a performance far in advance of anything Chicago has ever seen of it.

It had pretty nearly an ideal cast, but the excellence of the artists whose names are printed above is not quite enough to account for the excellence of the performance. It was the earnestness of them all. In a number of years of opera-going I have never observed such fine sincerity in an operatic performance. It had the effect of making the high points of Wagner's music glow as it had never glowed before, and also of causing me to discover that a number of passages which I had previously ticketed mentally as dull spots were in reality not dull at all, but quite the reverse.

There was a constant impression as though the work had been restudied from the beginning, musically, dramatically, and scenically. The blue pencil had been judiciously applied. It is still long enough, beginning at 2 o'clock and closing at a quarter past six, but Mr. Pollak paced the mass of music so well that it held its interest to the end.

Dr. Erhardt, the stage director, had also given thought to the scenery. Among other things, he banished the movable device that used to creak and limp in the change of scene in the first and third acts, its clumsy actions never failing to distract attention from the music. Instead, he merely drew a curtain and accomplished the change behind it. Incidentally, he would have done better to draw it for the second act change as well.

But that second act change disclosed a lovely garden, and the scene following was presented more ingratiatingly than it has ever been done hereabouts. The singing was charming, the stage pictures were graceful, colorful, and well laid out. The leaders of the flower maidens were the Misses Rajdl, Turner, Buddy, Barrons, Votipka, and Ornstein.

"Parsifal" as the Civic Opera company presents it is bound to leave its memories. It is great music beautifully performed, but it is more. It is a religious theme portrayed with great reverence and great art.

Day's Other Musical Events; Two Choruses.

There were several concerts yesterday. The Civic theater housed the Armenian National chorus under the direction of H. Mehrab in the afternoon, and the Chicago People's Symphony orchestra under the direction of P. Marinus Paulsen in the evening. The Swedish Choral club gave its annual performance of "The Messiah" in the afternoon, and John Pane-Gasser, tenor, gave a song recital at the Studebaker.

Mr. Pane-Gasser, who has a good voice and a well defined idea of how to use it, presented a number of arias from well known operas to the great pleasure of his audience. He was assisted by Paola Lawn-Autori, soprano, whose offerings were also chiefly operatic.

The Armenian chorus was gayly costumed after the oriental manner in all the colors of the rainbow. Owing to a liquidation of programs before my arrival, I am without information as to the music other than that its performance was spirited and highly agreeable. Lucia Altoonjian, soprano, appeared later in the concert.

The Swedish Choral club was singing with sturdy resonance but also with the manner of excellent discipline which produced fine tone. The soloists were Olive June Lacey, Lilian Knowles, B. Fred Wise, and Raymund Koch.

School Lunch Fund Weakens Near Christmas

Weekly Needs $2,500; Guards Health.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

JUST on the verge of Christmas, the Hungry School Children's fund finds itself in a straitened financial condition. Announcement was made yesterday by Miss Frances L. Swain, chief administrator of the fund, that the condition of the treasury makes it impossible to carry out the plan to keep the lunchrooms open during the holiday vacation, and that free lunches can be provided for poor children for only two more weeks unless speedy help is obtained.

Twenty-three thousand dollars has been expended to date in serving warm meals each noon to scores of thousands of boys and girls who had been going hungry. Only five thousand dollars remains in the treasury and $2,500 a week is required at the present rate of expenditure.

"It seems imperative to the advisory committee," Miss Swain reported yesterday, "that the remaining funds be spread over as long a period as possible. Therefore, in view of the many baskets of food which will be delivered by charitable agencies, churches, lodges, and political organizations to many of the homes of these youngsters, we have abandoned the idea of maintaining the lunchroom service over the holidays.

"Other conditions enter into the situation. There is the matter of opening the schools and heating them especially for this purpose; the necessity of enrolling the teachers and principals as volunteer workers, to come down daily and attend to the feeding of the children, which really is a great deal to ask of them, for the board of education is not paying salaries to the lunchroom attendants during the vacation.

"Since there will be only one week of holiday vacation, we hope the families will be able to manage with the help received from the outside organizations who are distributing baskets and Christmas dinners. And we sincerely hope that contributions for the fund will multiply rapidly in the near future, for what will become of these children without the free lunches, I am afraid to anticipate."

Appeals for aid from so many additional schools have flooded her office of late, Miss Swain added, that a meeting of the advisory committee has been called to decide what must be done. Either some of the 122 schools will have to be eliminated from the list of those receiving checks every two weeks, or the number of children on the list in each school will have to be pared. Since the teachers maintain that they have been held to the lowest possible minimum, and that many more children are badly in need of the free lunches, the problem is acute.

As little as 5 cents will purchase a nourishing, adequate meal for one child, served piping hot from the stoves in the penny lunchrooms of the schools. For this amount, the boys and girls receive a plate of spaghetti and tomato sauce, a bread and butter sandwich, a dish of stewed fruit, and either hot chocolate or milk to drink. The menu is changed daily and always is a balanced meal, well cooked and served.

Health authorities have warmly commended the vast amount of good accomplished in keeping the pupils nourished so that they will not fall victims to disease. They have emphasized the value of this service in preventing the spread of any epidemic that may arise, by building up resistance in these children.

Any and all gifts to be added to the fund are welcome. Contributions may be mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE. All gifts will be acknowledged by publication.

Miss Swain, head of the home economics department of the board of education, was named by Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan to administer the fund. She is assisted by a committee of women, representatives of the Parent-Teacher association and the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education, as well as clubwomen.

U. S. AND CANADIAN CITIES SPENDING FAR MORE FOR RELIEF

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Figures indicating that present relief expenditures in the United States and Canada are more than double those of a year ago, were published today by the Russell Sage foundation.

More than 400 private relief agencies and public departments in 81 of the larger cities supplied figures showing their October expenditures, not including administration, reached $10,717,000, an increase of 113 per cent over October, 1930, and 409 per cent over that time in 1929.

Some of the items, Ralph G. Hurlin, who collected the data for the foundation's department of statistics, said, were due to newly instituted old age relief, but most of them were due to increased unemployment succor.

Detroit, Tulsa, and San Antonio, he reported, recorded an actual decrease under last year, but New Orleans' costs went up more than 100 per cent; Portland, Ore., 877 per cent and Philadelphia 488 per cent. In Wilmington, Del., expenditures rose 375 per cent and New York's figures ascended 268 per cent.

Yankees and British Will Use Submarine to Hunt Earthquakes

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—The United States navy submarine S-48 and the navy's mine sweeper Cherwink will be used in an international scientific expedition sponsored by Princeton university to study the origin and periodicity of earthquakes and other volcanic activities in waters around the West Indies. This was announced here today.

The expedition will start in February. It has been arranged in cooperation with the British and American governments, and will be aided by the participation of Dr. F. A. Venig Neinesz, member of the geodetic commission of Holland.

Dr. Neinesz is the inventor of a new and delicate pendulum clock, which will be used in the expedition's undersea studies, and will arrive in New York Tuesday, acording to Prof. Richard M. Field of the Princeton department of geology. Prof. Field will be director of the expedition. Much of the research conducted will be far below the surface of the sea, he said.

"We wish to know," said Dr. Field, "not only what has gone on in the past in the Bahama region, but also what is going on there now."

Frida Savini to Sing for Blind Dec. 24; Studied in Europe

Miss Frida Savini, who studied music nights while helping support her family as a stenographer and has just returned to Chicago after a series of European operatic triumphs, will sing for the inmates of the Illinois Industrial Home for the Blind on Christmas eve.

FRIDA SAVINI.

Miss Savini will sing under the auspices of the Blind Service association, an organization which engaged in statewide work among the blind. The officers and directors of the association include Mrs. Gottfried Bernstein, Mrs. Abraham Weil, M. E. Greenebaum, Dr. Louis L. Mann, Judge Henry Horner, and Ben Lindheimer.

Dr. Otto Erhardt Made Salzburg Academy Member

Dr. Otto Erhardt, stage director of the Chicago Civic Opera company, has been appointed a member of the staff of the Salzburg Orchestral academy in Germany. He will conduct a class in opera production there next summer. Dr. Erhardt came to Chicago from the Dresden State opera.

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

MR. WEBB, Miss Holman and Mr. Allen—familiarly known as Clifton, Libby, and Fred—who gave the first of the "Little Shows" its great vogue, have returned in another intimate revue which is named in their honor, "Three's a Crowd." It arrived at the Erlanger theater last night as the first entertainment on the bill of fare for the Christmas holidays, and stirred up a vast amount of laughing, chuckling and applauding.

The three stars deport themselves in this suave and worldly pastime with a high degree of competence in their respective veins. They do nothing unexpected—except when Mr. Webb, well known as a dry wit, makes his first entrance taking a bath—and yet they cast a glamour of novelty about their antics and contrive to seem as crisp and up to the minute in metropolitan fashions as the latest issue of the New Yorker.

After Clifton recovers from his immersion, in which he loses the soap and consternates a lady visitor, he becomes the angular aristocrat of yore, apparently the younger son of a British noble house, dressed pointdevice and dancing like a miracle of male grace on stilts. Of course there are times when he changes into the costumes worn by rough, passionate fellows of strange lands for rhythmic writhings with abandoned females; but even then he gives the impression that his soul wears a dress suit.

In his best and most romantic number, with an attractive girl named Amy Revere as his partner—"The Moment I Saw You," it is called—Clifton gives an illustration of the bizarre effects that can be achieved in the dance with a white mess jacket topping the pleated and baggy trousers of London custom. He seems to be stepping around in a pair of deflated blimps.

Libby Holman stands up with surging but suppressed emotions and sings in that strange, commanding voice of hers, which often rivals the bass violin, the yearning ditties in which she specializes. One of them, "Something to Remember You By," is addressed by a bored French sailor in a zebra jersey. Another, the familiar "Body and Soul," is vouchsafed, with fine effect, to the world at large. Toward the end of the generous program she touches upon black-and-tan problems in "Taller."

Fred Allen, with the face of a roguish baby and the nasal twang of a grocery store comedian, continues to make monology a fine art. He employs his gifts as a juggler to enhance his first act contribution, programmed as "The Curse of Versatility," and is so droll and waggish that he should feel slightly remorseful over his occasional edgings into the territory that belongs to Chic Sale. In the second act Mr. Allen's address is a parody on the lecturings of Admiral Byrd—and this, to my way of thinking, is below par.

Tamara Geva, said to be of Russian background but well naturalized, is also prominent in the show as a dancer of modernistic tendencies. Her numbers have a bizarre style that is decidedly effective. Helen Ault is active and admirable as a frolicsome song and dance girl of the jazz age. Shapely creatures trained by Albertina Rasch assist in the rhythmic patterns of the program, and the California Collegians also contribute to the gayety.

The score is charming, and the orchestra, led by that old Chicago bandmaster, Hilding Anderson, is strong in musicianship.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Suburbs Go In for Community Trees.

JOLLITY and jest reigned yesterday in the city and its suburbs in scores of holiday festivities. Everywhere the younger generation held the limelight, and Santa Claus and his cohorts dashed hither and yon to spread the yuletide spirit.

Over on the lake shore the National post 497 of the American Legion sponsored a juvenile Christmas party in the fieldhouse of the Lake Shore playground. St. Nick himself was impersonated by one of the members, who distributed gifts to the children attending.

Attorney Harry X. Cole was host for the sixth consecutive year yesterday afternoon to the sixty wards of the Protestant Children's home at 4322 South Yale avenue. Nearly a hundred adults were on hand to keep things going and to enjoy the program of dancing, story telling, and various whistling and musical numbers. Santa Claus had the affair on his list of visits and passed out toys, candy, and practical gifts to the boys and girls.

At the Ell Bates settlement at 621 West Elm street youngsters of the neighborhood staged a play they have had in rehearsal for some time.

The youthful actors presented the story of Christmas in traditional vein for an audience comprising various society women who are interested in the settlement and the families of that area.

Men and women who are inmates of the Home for the Aged operated by the Little Sisters of the Poor at Harrison and Throop streets were the guests yesterday of the Fairyfoot company for a Christmas party held there.

Last night the 32d ward Democratic organization followed its annual custom in holding a charity Christmas party and dance at Brand park hall, 3239 Blaton avenue. Toys were given to the children attending. Several prominent members of the party helped to promote the event.

Special services in the churches began Christmas week in many suburbs, and community Christmas trees, the singing of carols, and preparations to lend a helping hand to the destitute are in the forefront of activities for the next few days.

In Evanston the third annual holiday sing under auspices of the Presbyterian church will be held despite the illness of Peter Christian Lutkin, dean emeritus of the Northwestern school of music, who usually conducts. Dean Lutkin recently suffered a heart attack but has asked that the occasion be carried out as planned.

The holiday bureau created for the purpose has 700 families on its list to receive help over the holidays, supplementing the work of the social service bureau. Baskets of food and toys will be sent around to these addresses.

Five community Christmas trees have already been erected, and a lighting display contest with prizes for the best decorations also is in prospect.

Oak Park school children are preparing to go from house to house where there are shut-ins to sing Christmas carols for the invalids. The Oak Park Elks' club will hold a Christmas party on Wednesday, with a tree, ice cream, and the usual accompaniments. Many baskets of food have been prepared for distribution to needy persons.

Winnetka will have its usual community Christmas tree and all citizens of the village will gather and sing carols there on Christmas eve. School children have repaired 1,000 toys which will be sent out to boys and girls of poor families, and fifty underprivileged girls will be guests of the Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls in the community house for gifts and candy.

Children of the Lake Bluff orphanage will be entertained in Wilmette, as has been the custom for the last twenty years. Sixty-three orphans will participate. A Christmas lighting display for both private homes and business houses is in progress, with prizes for each division, and the annual Christmas tree has been erected on the green as a focal point for the carol singing on Christmas eve.

North Shore posts of the Legion have banded together to furnish holiday cheer for the men in the North Chicago hospital and the Great Lakes hospital. The Evanston post also will give a party for five children from the Soldiers' Orphans home at Normal.

Three hundred boys and girls of the Off the Street club were the guests Saturday night at the clubhouse, 1534 West Van Buren street, of the Advertising council, connected with the Association of Commerce. Professional entertainers did their part on a program of movies, a play and a dance, to provide the hoolday atmosphere. Maurice Rothschild, investment broker of 180 North Michigan, is chairman of the board of directors of the charity.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

Kit Lenoure, who had worked four years in a London family hotel, accepts a post in the Grand Afrika hotel, Soysbert, Kenya. Theo Sable had gone there two years before when Kit had broken her engagement to him. But Kit still wanted him more than anything else in the world. She sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North, her cabin mate, is going out to be married. Lal Crowhurst, the biggest landowner about Soysbert and a most attractive bachelor, is be the boat. He is attentive to Kit. Jess tells Kit the scandal she hears about "the widow who owns him." Soysbert proves to be a paradise with many serpents and terrible powers of demoralisation to weak natures. Jess is married on her arrival to Noel Graham, who manages Crowhurst's coffee plantations. Kit readily adapts herself to her new surroundings. Crowhurst shoves her through his place. Moon Fields. She meets the widow, Ariel Grieve, who lives near by. Then Theo Sable, who has taken up big game hunting, arrives in Soysbert. Kit and Theo are overjoyed to have found each other again. But there are unexplainable changes in Theo that Kit can't understand. Ariel Grieve also has her tentacles secretly around Theo Sable. A dance and entertainment to wind up the season in Soysbert is given at the hotel.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

A NIGHT OF EVIL PORTENT.

In the ballroom the air was electric. The dancers were packed together in a discomfort that they did not notice.

The band was getting on Kit Lenoure's nerves. She stood in a doorway and wished somebody would stop it, instead of clapping the endless encores. It wasn't right; it was a thing of evil portent.

But on it went, and the players began to chant one of the low toned, monotonous, primitive chants of the natives. It was as if they sang of blood and lust; as if it were the pent up earthliness of the ages that must express itself—somehow. These black children expressed it in their own way.

Kit shuddered. In the stifling heat she went suddenly cold as ice.

She saw Ariel Grieve come back into the ballroom. She was shaking hands with people. She was evidently taking her departure.

Theo seemed to have disappeared.

"After the ball is over!" thought Kit Lenoure to herself as she went about next morning, tidying up.

Everybody was late, and apparently, in a bad temper. The bells rang incessantly; complaints came showering down that breakfasts were late, or stone cold, or not what was ordered.

Hardly any one came downstairs. Theo Sable was an exception. He had his breakfast in the dining room as usual. He was the bright spot. He seemed in better spirits than ever.

"There is very bad news, Miss Lenoure. Mrs. Grieve is dead."

"London angel," he told her, leaning over the counter of her office as he came from breakfast. "I've had a letter from Nafrobi this morning. They expect to start in a fortnight. I shall stay here until a couple of days before that. They don't mind. I've got all I shall want for the trip."

"Theo, dear, how you must be looking forward to it!" said the girl.

"I am—a whole lot. All but leaving you, sweetheart. I simply dread that. But it's got to be done. You understand everything about me, Kit. You know that I'll work like a nigger now, so that we can get married and have a place of our own."

She answered with cheerful enthusiasm, but she wondered if she did understand everything about him. There were still things unexplained. Not only his poverty, but the things Crowhurst had heard from Lord Nightland, and that accident about which he would not speak.

"They say it will rain tomorrow, or possibly tonight," he informed her.

"That's good news, Theo. It's been a little too much lately. They say they've never had quite such a drought for years and years. Last night I thought it was simply awful."

"It was, right enough! And that ghastly band of Crowhurst's! I think it ought to be forbidden by law. I heard him say himself he had no idea they were such utter savages. He hadn't heard them play for a long time, of course. But he said they were the nicest, quietest, best behaved boys he had ever had. That was why he chose them to make a band. I told him I should think they'd be worth a thousand a week at the Café de Paris, or the Kit Kat! D'you know, I think he's an awfully good sort, really, Kit!"

"What did you think of Mrs. Grieve?" the girl asked involuntarily.

"O!" After a fractional pause, he said: "I thought her very interesting. I—I——"

Just then Capt. Blair came in from outside. He strode across the lounge, looking right and left in a way that struck Kit as most unusual. There was nobody there.

He came and stood beside Theo in complete silence. He was in riding kit, and flicked his whip against his leggings in a monotonous, irritating way.

Kit thought he was suffering from the general "after the ball" feeling. The telephone rang and she answered it, only to receive another querulous complaint.

"I am very sorry, madam," she said mechanically. "I gave your order in myself. I will go and see to it at once."

She went out of her office to the serving room to pass on the visitor's complaint, adorned with the few strong Hindustani words that were the first she had picked up. She could not get the hang of the Indians' language nearly so well as the Swahili of the African boys.

When she came back Capt. Blair was alone.

He was in the office and was in the act of tearing yesterday's date from the hanging calendar. It showed that even Kit was not herself this morning, as she had forgotten to do it.

"There is very bad news, Miss Lenoure," he said in a shocked voice. "Mrs. Grieve is dead."

Kit stared at him.

"She died some time early this morning."

"How dreadful! Was she taken ill suddenly?"

"How dreadful!"

"It seems she suffered very much from sleeplessness. Dr. Cardew was attending her. He had warned her against taking drugs. He had ordered her a complete change. He thought she ought to leave Africa altogether for a time. I suppose she couldn't sleep last night when she got home. And—— It is a gloomy, miserable business," he added in a moved voice.

It was, indeed.

Kit remembered how she had seen Ariel Grieve departing in the early hours of the morning. It came to her that those strange smoky eyes had looked like the eyes of a dead woman.

Other things came to her, too. The feeling she had always had about Mrs. Grieve's hidden power. It was a tragic power. And her own innate objection to crossing the threshold of Snow View. The aura that she had felt but not understood. That visit was before her eyes like a picture painted in the air. The large, man's room, the cushions, and fripperies, and Crowhurst's photograph on the severe writing table. That forceful, ironical face, a year or two younger. And the writing on it: "A. from L. Toujours."

Always! And now she was dead.

And last night—she had known it was a night of evil portent. That terrible music, that no one would stop!

"How dreadful!" she said again. "How dreadful!" It was all she could find to say.

She looked around, missing something.

"Where is Mr. Sable?" she asked.

"He went out. He said he had something to do. He was terribly shocked. Of course, it must upset everybody, a thing like this."

"Yes," said Kit. "It must. Mr. Sable only met Mrs. Grieve for the first time last night."

Where was Theo, Kit wondered.

Theo, at that moment, was striding blindly along a road leading out of the township, he did not know where. A faint fragrance of violets was in his nostrils; a wraithlike form pressed against him, lightly as a cloud.

Let the Children Create Their Own Christmas Cards

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Those evenings come back to me now—when we were children and used to gather around the lamp on the big cleared, dining-room table and make Christmas cards. Simple they were and entirely childlike, but how we loved the doing of it! We would have scorned the idea of buying cards and just writing our names on them. When our cards went out they were really our cards, the fruit of our own ideas and labor.

If your children have never made Christmas cards they have missed some of the best fun of the season. Especially this year, when every penny counts, the making and sending of cards might take the place of gifts. But regardless of the need of economy, give them their chance at it.

There are all ways of going about it, depending on the age of the boys and girls, on their skill and the materials available. It isn't possible to go into the details of the making, but here are a few suggestions for materials they may work with.

Correspondence cards [not the linen kind], plain waits or colored cards preferably with a rough surface, or water color or drawing paper cut up carefully into the desired sizes.

Crayons, or water colors, or tempera.

Gilt or silver liquid paint.

Gold or silver stars which can be bought by the box, for the younger children.

India [indelible] ink for outlining or lettering, if desired.

Linoleum for cuts for those experienced in this craft. And of course scissors, paste, etc.

For the very young children the portrayal of pine trees or holly are the easiest designs. Touches of bright color or gilt give the effect of balls, etc. Candles may be represented by vertical strokes of color, with a touch of pale yellow or orange for the flame. Always leave a space between the candle itself and the yellow. Children love lighting the candles with paint in this way.

Other entirely simple things may be suggested to them, such as a dark blue sky, brown earth, and a yellow or gold star for the Star of Wonder that the shepherds followed. Quite naturally, cards the children have seen will be the source of much of their inspiration.

Mixed Foursome of Young Folks Causes One Girl Heartache

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We'll take the two girls, "Mickey and Mousey." [Honestly, that's what the boys call them.] But we'll take them because they have a problem that arises frequently in the lives of girl pals.

These two girls, any two girls, will meet two boys. They do a good deal of partying around in foursomes. Then Mickey's boy friend will discover that Mousey is the one he really likes. Or, may be it is Mickey's escort that longs for the change of partner.

Now, what are the girls to do under the circumstances? Grab the beau away from under the girl pal's nose, or what? It's hard to make the "hurt" girl see that it isn't a grab. It's harder to make her entertain generous feelings for the preferred girl. She gets a "mad" on, usually. And stays mad for a long time. That's one of the crimes unpardonable—taking your beau away from you.

Well, a hurt vanity is something none of us stand up under very heroically! Least of all, the inexperienced young. It's hard to make them understand that love just happens that way, that the fact that a boy has been beauing you about for a few months or a year may not mean you are the girl, after all. He doesn't know it when he starts taking you around. And you may be a better looking girl than the one he prefers above you. You may be a nicer girl, a sweeter one, a kinder one. But that hasn't anything to do with the case.

It just happens that the two fall for each other. You can't do anything about it. Nor should you want to. There's some attraction there that you can't rule, govern, nor outwit. It's just there, with no one to blame. And that's the way I'd like to see more of you girls react to a situation of the kind.

Be wise about it. Be big and be right. Don't get mad about something that can't be helped. If the other girl of the foursome hasn't the courage to come to tell you of the infatuation, make things easier for yourself as well as for her and the young man involved by making the suggestion yourself. You can save your face beautifully that way—and your pride.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

No Gifts for Ex-Girls.

"Dear Miss Blake: Shall I send an ex-girl friend of mine a birthday gift? WONDERING."

It would be wiser to save your money for some girl who cares for you.

Stretching Is Best Reducer for the Too Generous Arm

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

About that flabbiness of the arm:

When women run to general stoutness the arm flabbiness is noted in particular. A regular basket of flesh hangs loosely suspended from arm bone and muscle. In evening dress it is pretty distressing both to the onlooker and the victim.

In sleeved gowns the enormous girth isn't hidden by the material, either. The funny part of this upper arm flesh is that you find it on young women as well as older—on girls who aren't noticeably plump or flabby elsewhere, too.

It's flesh that can be massaged off with more comparative ease than flesh otherwise located, because it is so loose and flabby. But the trouble for the average woman who feels she cannot afford professional massage service is that she simply cannot get around her arms with the forceful and vigorous massage movements needed. She gets discouraged after an attempt or two and decides she'll either cover up the arms or forget them.

Now, curiously enough, though the arms do a lot of moving and swinging about in the course of a day, that upper arm sector doesn't get the necessary amount of muscle extension to keep fat off. If you note your arm movements for a twenty-four hour period you'll discover that rarely is there any pull or movement of any account on the upper arm muscles. Very little stretching upward is done. You use the small ladder to reach the shelves, or more likely you have the dishes you're using daily within easy reach. Or your closet shelves are within easy reach.

Consequently, when you do a day's cleaning of these shelves your arms ache, indicating that you've been making those arm muscles do something they're not accustomed to doing. It is said that you find the loveliest arm formation among those Italian women who train their vines on arbors which are higher than their heads. The Italian woman is obliged to raise her arms in order to reach the vines. So stretching and reaching higher become the recommended movements for a harmony of arm line. Stretch and stretch and reach high up toward the top rim of an imaginary arbor of vines.

You can do this any time and anywhere around the house.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

L. R.: YOU CAN GIVE YOURSELF oil treatments to get a little body in the hair. Use olive oil, warmed a little. Rub it into the scalp, and then brush the hair to distribute the oil.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover attended the morning service at the Friends' meeting house.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is spending the week-end in his Pittsburgh home.

Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg will go to their Grand Rapids home for the holidays.

Senator and Mrs. Robert D. Carey of Wyoming have taken an apartment in the Hay-Adams house and will remain here over Christmas with their debutante daughter, Miss Sarah Darlington Carey.

Representative and Mrs. James M. Beck of Pennsylvania gave dinner last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollister Sturges gave a tea this afternoon in their apartment at Wardman Park hotel in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field of Chicago. Mr. Field arrived today to join Mrs. Field and they will remain for Christmas.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Classified.

I worked for an advertising firm. One day one of our customers, who was a jovial sort of man, called. My boss hung up the receiver after talking to him, and with a laugh explained to me that this man asked to have some advertising copy picked up in the afternoon.

"He said if the girl who came to get it were beautiful, the copy would be ready at one o'clock; otherwise, not until four," he laughingly told me.

Later that afternoon, in all seriousness, the chief stopped at my desk and said, "O, by the way Miss ——, will you pick up that copy about four this afternoon?"

Was I embarrassed? D. S.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Place for Old Typewriter.

"Since I was hurt in an automobile accident I have not been able to go to work. However, I expect to be able to do some work at home, but I shall need a typewriter, which I cannot afford to buy or rent. Would you try to get one for me through your column? I would also be grateful for any books on narrative or writing.

"F. J."

The old typewriter you have been planning to dispose of, if renovated, would no doubt give this invalid an opportunity to be self-supporting. May he have it?

Junior League Show Offers Indian Story

WE shouldn't be a bit surprised if parents who send their children to the opening performance of "The Runaway Papoose" on Saturday morning at the Blackstone are asked to relay last minute requests to Santa Claus for dolls, trains, feathered headgear and other playtime equipment of Indian children.

This latest presentation of the Junior League's Children's theater is such an exciting legend of the Indians as Americans that many of the children were practicing a little war whoop and dancing as they left the theater.

Not since "Treasure Island" have we seen such a noisy Junior audience, and seldom before have youngsters given such prolonged and spontaneous applause to any part of a show as they gave on Saturday to the dance done on Saturday morning by Sunrood, "a real live Indian and a handsome brave at that."

Next to Sunrood the children seemed to like Francis Oliver, who, besides laughing as Keegie, the "Runaway," a roly poly little simpleton who tumbled across the stage accompanied by a stupid but kind hearted policeman. Others who won approval from the audience were Myra Little, who as a marish figure as Spider Woman, the Witch; Dorothy Platt [Mrs. Stanley Field] as Red Wing, the heroic brave who won an Indian kingdom, and Wilhelmina Daniels, cast as an Indian squaw and all-wise medicine man.

On today's calendar are two events of interest to children, the Junior League's puppet show in Evanston and the Contemporary club's program of Christmas music at the Fortnightly. The puppet shows, "Little Black Sambo" and "The Three Bears," will be given at the Malcolm Willey house at 4 o'clock, and the Contemporary program will commence at 3:30 o'clock. The club affair is primarily for members, of course, but each member's family, especially the children, are invited also. The Chicago Junior League will sing.

The Misses Virginia and Elizabeth Wiley will make their debut this afternoon at a tea to be given by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wiley, from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club. Assisting the Misses Florence Carter, Virginia Chapman, Dorothy Darrow, Elizabeth Fitzmorris, Isabel Gordon, Elizabeth Graf, Margaret Hamill, Elizabeth Harmon, Caroline McNair, Elizabeth McNally, Jane McMurray Shaw, and Virginia Noble, Miss Virginia Tracy from Toledo, Virginia was graduated from Miss Fine's last year and Miss "Peggy" Wiley will return after the holidays to the Florence college, to be graduated. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley will also entertain at a dance at the Drake tonight for the debutantes and their escorts.

It is almost impossible to keep up with the changes that have been made this season in dates and plans for parties, and we just discovered, although of course those who were invited knew about it before, that Mrs. Seymour Wheelers' ball to be given for their daughter, Eleanor, is tonight at the Congress instead of tonight at the Casino, as it was originally planned and announced. The Wheelers, who live in Lake Forest, have an apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive for the winter.

Most of the fathers and sons of society will be at the Racquet club tonight for the annual fathers and sons' dinner. Joseph T. Linn, whose son, Joseph Jr., is a student from St. Mark's for the holidays, is chairman of the entertainment committee which has arranged for a series of 6 reels of Bobby Jones' latest golf pictures after dinner.

Personals of interest:

C. Venards and their son Charles, who is a sophomore at Princeton, are motoring to Miami for the holidays.

George Haskell Venard, who has expected to return from a year's study in Marseilles this winter, has decided to remain abroad for another year.

Stokely Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kitchell Webster of Winnetka, is at home from Yale for the holidays.

The Junior Cyrus Hall McCormicks and their son and nephew, Cyrus Davey and Donn Dearing, who arrived yesterday to spend the holidays at the McCormick ranch near Libertyville, the Kenneth Dicks and their son Bobby, have given up the apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive.

Junior League Show Offers Indian Story

Well shouldn't be a bit surprised if parents who sent their children to the opening of "The Runaway Papoose" on Saturday morning at the Blackstone are asked to relay last minute requests to Santa Claus for drums, arrows, feathered headgear and other glorious equipment of Indian inspiration.

This latest presentation of the Junior League's Children's theater is said an exciting legend of the first Americans that many of the children were practicing a little war whooping and dancing as they left the theater. Not since "Treasure Island" have we ever seen such a noisy Junior league audience, and seldom before have the youngsters given such prolonged and spontaneous applause to any feature of a show as they gave on Saturday to the dance done on Saturday morning by Dorothy Darling, "a real live Indian!" and a handsome brave at that.

Next to Sunrise the children seemed to like Francis Oliver, who kept them chuckling as Keegle, the Fat One, a rolly poly little simpleton who wabbled across the stage accompanied by a single but kind hearted turtle. Others who won approval from the audience were Myra Little, a nightmish figure as Spider Woman, the Wish; Dorothy Platt [Mrs. Sherwood] as Red Wing, the heroic brave who was to Indian kingdom, and Kathryne Daniels, cast as an impressive old all-wise medicine man.

On today's calendar are two events of interest to children, the Junior league's puppet show in Evanston and the Contemporary club's program of Christmas music at the Fortnightly. The puppet shows, "Little Black Sambo" and "The Three Bears," will be given at the Maisonette at 2:30 o'clock, and the Contemporary club's program will commence at 4:15 o'clock. The club affair is primarily for its members, of course, but each year the public, especially the children, are invited also. The Chicago Bach chorus will sing.

The Misses Virginia and Margaret Hall will make their debut this afternoon at a tea to be given by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morris Hall, from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Women's Athletic club. Assisting will be the Misses Florence Carr, Margaret Hopkins, Dorothy Darling, Grace Demarie, Isabel Gordon, Barbara Hall, Margaret Hamill, Welythan Bennett, Caroline McNair, Eleanore Reddy, Jane McMurray, Theodora Bates, and Virginia Nettleton and Ruth Tracy from Toledo, O. Miss Hall was graduated from Ogontz school last year and Miss "Peggy" will receive her diploma the holidays to Sarah Lawrence college, to be graduated in June. Mrs. Hall Wiley will give a supper dance at the Drake tonight for the debutantes and their assistants.

It is almost impossible to keep up with the changes that have been made in names in dates and places for parties, and we just discovered, although of course those who were interested knew about it before, that the former Wheelers' hall to introduce their daughter, Eleanor, is tomorrow night at the Congress instead of tonight at the Casino, as previously announced and announced. The Wheelers, who live in Lake Forest, are in charge of the entertainment committee which has arranged to show some of Bobby Jones' latest "talkies" after dinner.

Reunions of interest: The George Howells and their son, Theodore, who is a sophomore at Princeton, are going to Miami for Christmas. Mrs. Haskell Venard, who was expected to return from a year's stay in Brazil this winter, has decided to remain abroad for another year. Mrs. Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mitchell Webster of Evanston, is home from Yale for the holidays. So is Junior Cyrus Hall McCormicks for their son and nephew, William Deering and Dunn Dearing Jr., left yesterday to spend the holidays at the McCormick ranch near Santa Fé. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dicks and their son, Kenneth, have given up their apartment at 1550 Lake Shore drive and have gone to California to live, for a time, at least.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Bohn, daughter of Mrs. H. J. Bohn of 10930 South Prospect avenue, to Donald P. Blake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Blake of Chicago and St. Petersburg, Fla., was solemnized last Saturday morning at the residence of the bride's parents. The bridegroom is a graduate of Cornell university and a member of the Illinois Bar association. The bride and groom left after the ceremony for a month's sojourn in Florida and Cuba.

Mrs. William Waller Jr., who ordinarily goes to Palm Beach for the holidays, is still undecided about when she will go south, but Mr. Waller is planning to take four or five men friends and go down for a week of golfing and fishing soon after Christmas. The annual Chicago Woman's Exchange sale is held at the Wallers' Palm Beach residence each winter, so if Mrs. Waller does go down, she no doubt will open her residence for the sale later in the season. Mrs. Arthur Orr of Chicago, who has opened her Palm Beach place, has with her for the holidays her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Collins of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Klotz are other Chicagoans who have opened their Palm Beach residences already.

George A. McKinlock has joined Mrs. McKinlock at Casa Alejandro for Christmas and is a daily visitor to the Bath and Tennis club, although the club will not be opened formally until Jan. 1. The McKinlock cabana is one of the most attractive on this American Lido. Until the club opens the members who want to enjoy the pool and surf bathing take picnic luncheons to the club and eat them in their cabanes. The John C. Kings of New York are established for the season at the new Palm Beach hotel. Mrs. King is the former Bertha Dibblee of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Johannes Schlott of Southport, Conn., announce the marriage of their daughter, Grace, to John Fee Embree, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Rogers Embree of 5807 Dorchester avenue, on Saturday, Dec. 19, at the residence of the bride's parents, Greens Farms, Conn. The bride has been studying at Swarthmore college in Pennsylvania, and the groom, whose father is the president of the Julius Rosenwald fund, is a graduate of the University of Honolulu and recently has been doing graduate work at Columbia university. Mr. and Mrs. Embree are going to Hawaii on their honeymoon and in the spring they will go to Japan where Mr. Embree will begin studies in anthropology and ethnology.

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

While the much heralded "Battle of the Century," being conducted by my esteemed colleagues in New York, has not at the moment of writing proved very much, it should certainly have convinced you of one thing. You may remember that I have devoted considerable space to the idea that most hands which play six or seven odd cannot be bid a small or grand slam. One thing certainly stands out in regard to the New York match and that is the failure to bid slams on hands that played slams.

Yesterday's play-a-problem was another of those hands that could be played for six odd, but could not safely be bid to more than the game. This was the hand:

NORTH
♠—J,10,8,3
♥—8,7
♦—A,7,6,5
♣—9,6,3

WEST (Dealer)
♠—6,5
♥—A,10,9,3
♦—Q,9,3

EAST
♠—A,K,Q,7,3
♥—K,4
♦—K,8,4,3

SOUTH
♠—9,4
♥—Q,J,6,5,3
♦—7,10
♣—10,9,4,3

West dealt and passed. North passed. East, holding 8 probable tricks, of which six were high card tricks, had an exceedingly strong invitational bid of two. He bid two spades. South passed and West bid two no-trumps. West held a no-trump count of nine, with the other three suits stopped. Since East had shown sufficient strength to bid two, West would have been justified in jumping the two spade bid to three no-trumps, so far as the strength of his hand was concerned.

But such a jump shift would have been very poor technique, since by his game invitational bid of two spades East had guaranteed a rebid. So long as West can be assured that the bidding will be kept open, he would be very foolish, indeed, to raise the amount of the contract. (A three heart bid by West was possible, but would not show his hand quite as clearly as the two no-trumps and would raise the amount of the declaration.)

North passed and East bid three spades. The rebid of the spades was necessary to show his five card suit, since West might have denied the spades holding three small spades (normal support), which would be sufficient strength to support a five card suit once he showed that holding. South passed. West, holding but two small spades, bid three no-trumps and all passed.

North opened the ♦ 5, dummy played the 3, South the 10, and West the Q. West then led the ♦ 2, North played the 4, East the K, and South the J. Dummy now returned the ♦ 4, South discarding the ♥ 2, West playing the ♦ 9, and North taking with the A. North returned the ♥ 8, dummy played the K, South the 5, and declarer the 2. Dummy then led the ♦ 8, South discarding the ♣ 2, and West the ♥ 9, North following with the ♦ 7. East now led out his ♣ A and K and then led the ♥ 4, on which South played the J, West the A, and North the 7. West now led out the ♣ Q and J and then played the ♠ 6, which dummy took with the Q and proceeded to cash the ♠ A and K for the game and three extra.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITARE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Salvation Army Handles Many Kinds of Relief

The Salvation Army is one of the five major relief and charity organizations working in conjunction this year with the Joint Emergency Relief fund of Chicago and Cook county. Virtually all types of relief are handled by the organization with the added work of social aid through religion.

A table showing the Army activities for the fiscal year ended in September illustrates the type of work handled with funds made available through the Joint Emergency Relief fund and the current funds donated by regular sponsors of Army activities.

In a program announced yesterday by Commissioner W. A. McIntyre it was stated that this year Christmas dinners will be given to 6,000 men in the shelters and baskets will be delivered to as many families as funds permit. Each basket will contain two chickens and a bountiful supply of potatoes, fruit, canned goods, bread, butter, coffee, sugar, crackers, a cake and one pound of Christmas candies sufficient for a family of five. Larger families will be provided for in proportion.

Due to the large number of complaints that have been received by the various agencies during the last few months the Salvation Army made a survey of complaints received. Commissioner McIntyre expressed the belief that the Army received fewer complaints than most agencies.

"We follow the same general practice with relief cases as do all other agencies," he said, "but in emergency cases we endeavor to give immediate relief and investigate afterwards."

All cases, even emergency cases, are put through the Social Service exchange to prevent duplications. Several cases of impostors have been detected in this manner, but they are few as compared with the total number of cases coming for relief.

The Army operates five district offices. They are at 713 North State street, 2384 Milwaukee avenue, 6855 South State street, 3516 South Halsted street, and 1514 West Madison street. More than 7,000 families are being supervised out of these five offices. There has been an increase of more than 700 per cent of the normal family case load in the last year. Location of the stations is given as the reason for the rapid relief administration, which has resulted in holding down the number of complaints.

Less Than Half Co-Eds of U. of Ill. in Sororities

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Less than one-half of the women enrolled in the University of Illinois this semester are affiliated with sororities, statistics on housing conditions reveal, according to an announcement by Miss Selma Olson, assistant dean of women. A total of 2,549 co-eds are enrolled with 1,164 being affiliated with sororities, of the number 883 are living in sorority houses. Organized houses provide for 447 co-eds, rooming houses list 555, 105 women are working for their room and board with private families, 344 live with their parents, while relatives and friends furnish homes for 83 others. A total of 54 women enrolled are married.

PARTY FOR HOOVERS' GRANDCHILDREN WILL GIVE TOYS TO NEEDY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—All through the White House there is a definite stir of coming Christmas—a merry Christmas, but one just a little different from others President and Mrs. Hoover have known in the executive mansion.

For one thing, they plan to save money on some things. But a definite account of the economy will be kept and all that is saved and more will be given to the needy.

Of course there will be Christmas trees, holly wreaths, candles, and parties galore. The two Hoover sons, a daughter-in-law, and two of the grandchildren will come from California to be present.

But the first party of all will set the keynote. Invitations have been sent to more than 100 children in the names of the grandchildren, Peggy Ann and Herbert Hoover III., better known as "Peter," to come to the White House two days before Christmas. The invitations read:

"This is not like the Christmas parties you usually go to, where you get lots of toys and presents to take home and very many good things to eat. But it is a party where you bring toys and warm, gay sweaters or candy, or things other children would like who otherwise would not have much Christmas.

"For Santa Claus has sent word that he is not going to be able to take care of all the little boys and girls he wants to this year and he has asked other people to help him as much as possible. So if you will bring some presents with you we will send them all to him to distribute."

Bridge Battle Half Over; Culbertson and Partner 7,915 in Lead

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—As the half way mark in their 150 rubber contract bridge match is neared Ely Culbertson holds a comfortable lead over Sidney Lenz, but the situation of the latter and his partner, Oswald Jacoby, is far from hopeless. Although they are trailing by 7,915 points that margin could easily be overcome in a single night if fortune favored.

When it is realized that the "swing" on a single hand may reach 4,000 points, the difference between the rivals does not appear large, particularly in view of the fact that they have played sixty-three rubbers. Mr. Culbertson's relative gain of 12,755 points in four sessions last week, in two of which he played with his wife and in two with Theodor A. Lightner, shows how fast the lead may change as the match progresses.

Despite a rather widespread popular impression that the standard of play has hardly been up to the reputations of the experts involved, analysis of the 372 hands to date shows that real blunders either in bidding or in play, as contrasted with unfortunate breaks, have been few and far between.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Double returns from nut tree plantings are easily possible, farmers in midwestern states are realizing. One return is the ultimate cash income which can be realized from marketing nuts. The other is that of stopping erosion by using lands hard to till.

In the opinion of J. A. Larsen, professor of forestry at Iowa State college at Ames, a large amount of land now lying idle because it is untillable could be made into paying acres with proper care and plantings. He suggests especially the hickory and walnut varieties adapted to the various states, as well as other kinds of nut trees which are suited to the lake states regions.

"Overflow lands, steep bluff land, sandy stretches, glacial boulder clay, or badly eroded hillsides usually are unsuited to cultivation and therefore logical lands on which to place nut trees," says Prof. Larsen.

Surveys have indicated that the natural or "wild plantings" which formerly dotted farms of the middlewest are disappearing for lack of proper care. The newer plantings, however, are of the hybrid strains, largely, leaving less chance as to the quality and quantity of the crop when the trees attain a bearing age.

This has permitted landowners in the southern portions of the corn belt to plant northern strains of the pecan, formerly thought to be adapted only to the southern states.

Food Talk.

During the holiday season many invitations are to be given. For the reason that they have one thing in common are for people who are going somewhere, whether it be to a party or to participate in winter sports or whatever. Perhaps the guests are on their way to their homes or aboard train, in which case the hostess wants to make their last meal together particularly memorable.

Such luncheons for this festive time of year are for active people, the menu needs to be planned with nourishment in mind. And because they are holiday affairs they ought to be more than usually decorative. They need not be costly. None of the most homely foods need be ruled out of company fare just because it is inexpensive.

The crux of a Yuletide centerpiece is the décor. It is not necessary, of course, but it affords a change from flowers that are appropriate at all times of the year. Avoid, however, the poinsettia. A first class centerpiece is always too tall to be put on a dining table. No guest enjoys peering around it to see the person opposite him. For the same reason the small Christmas tree, unless it be truly a midget one, not more than a few inches high, is not a good choice.

Instead, let me suggest a low white china bowl of varicolored Christmas tree balls, their stems carefully concealed, for a modern dining room. Or an arrangement of the little artificial blue trees that are new this year, trimmed with silver ornaments. They have a definite holiday spirit and, because of their color, are not too Christmasy to appear after that day.

For the luncheon itself a central hot dish, such as creamed mushrooms with crabmeat or a soufflé, is a fine selection for this weather. With it might go rolls, crusty and hot, a green salad, cake, and hot chocolate. If soup or appetizers precede the main course, and they do at many smart luncheons these days, the main dish need not be so substantial. A salad might be substituted for a hot dish. A delicious one is made from half a large calavo heaped with shrimp in mayonnaise. Mayonnaise is spread over the top, like frosting, and the whole is garnished with rings of black olives stuffed with pimento.

CASSEROLE OF LAMB.

2 pounds breast of lamb
2 cups diced potatoes
1 finely chopped onion
1 cup canned tomatoes
2 cups diced carrots
Seasoning, flour
1 cup hot water

Cut the lamb into small pieces, roll in flour and brown well in hot bacon fat with onion. Put in a greased casserole with the tomatoes and one cup of hot water. Bake for two hours. Add the potatoes and carrots and continue baking for half an hour longer. Add a little more water from time to time and thicken the gravy if it is too thin. Serve the dish very hot.

Paris Puts Spangles on Simple Wool Frock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—What makes one woman look chic while another appears merely well dressed, at best? It is the daring to add some touch to her costume, which on some one less sure would be ridiculous. The greatest Paris dressmakers are those who know how to add this to the clothes they make, so that their clients are spared the effort of doing it, and so women who haven't the instinctive taste that is always right can look as smart as those who have.

The illustrated frock from Jeanne Lanvin is a case in point. It is the simplest of transparent woolen dresses in a discreet dark blue shade, but it is made individual and supremely chic by the addition of square buttons and a belt made of glittering silver spangles. It took daring to place spangles on wool. They belong, in the popular imagination, exclusively to satins, tulles, and other exotic evening materials, but on wool they become something new and thrilling, and altogether right, as Lanvin handles them.

The sleeves of this frock are Lanvin's exaggerated leg o' mutton sleeves, which have set the whole world of Paris making bigger sleeves. These are made more unusual by being set into a dropped shoulder bodice, and their long, shirred, and fitted lower portions are equally attractive.

The bodice is a fitted, double breasted affair of the greatest simplicity and the slightly flared skirt is equally simple, which is as it should be, since sleeves and spangles supply all the novelty one dress can support in taste.

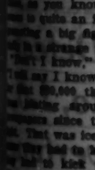
In the course of the trial, reference has been made to an item of $30,000 which figured in the dealing of the



at the time of the Dempsey-Firpo fight. This fight was held in the Polo grounds, of which they were trustees, and Tex Rickard the

The Mysterious $30,000.

I am glad the boys brought that up because I have long wished to hear a true side of the story which the late Mr. Rickard told me about the item. It does not appear just now that the boys are willing to tell the story in all its details, and this reticence is unfortunate, for here is one of the most interesting mysteries ever solved in the priesthood business.

I am moved not to mention names, but merely to acknowledge that there was an item of $30,000 and that Mr. Rickard demanded a cut of ten per cent, or commission. Still, that consisted Mr. Rickard's complaint that he was not an item of $30,000.

What Ne Ice Bill?

Mr. Rickard told the story about a time he was beginning to arrange for the Tunney-Dempsey uplift show in Chicago. He was discussing the matter of expenses and naturally I opened the ice bill.

"There will be no ice in Chicago," Mr. Rickard said, grimly.

"But No Ice? Do you mean to say you will not make any contribution to the 'Building Inspectors' Relief society?"

"No," Mr. Rickard said. "Not a cake of ice. I have been talking to Tex Gets and all them great men who is in Chicago and they are so anxious to get this fight for Chicago that I assure me there will be no ice."

That Reminds Mr. Rickard.

"Well, well, well," I said, "that certainly is remarkable, Mr. Rickard, because, as you know, the ice usually runs to quite an item in the cost of staging a big fight like this, especially in a strange town."

"Don't I know," Mr. Rickard said. "I tell ya! I know. Do you remember that $30,000 that the boys have been kicking around about in the newspapers since the Dempsey-Firpo fight. That was ice, but did you ever see any one have to kick it back? Yes, I had to kick it back, but they don't kick it all the way back.

"Everything was supposed to be O.K. that time. We had paid our ice and I thought everything was pretty square when a fellow came to me one afternoon before the fight and said they would have to pay $30,000. He was an official of the boxing commission. I said what is the matter you have to have $30,000. He said it was for Tom Foley."

Is Richard Kicks In.

Mr. Foley was then the leader of the Tammany district of New York City.

I never figured that he would have the nerve to come up and ask for $30,000 for Tom Foley unless Tom Foley was dying in jail," Mr. Rickard said, "so I told him the $30,000. Maybe I should have called up Mr. Foley to see why he had jumped the dues $30,000 or so when I was supposed to be paid up. But you have got to be careful about such things, and Mr. Foley might have thought I was complaining. Then he might have double-crossed on me. So I paid the $30,000. But the more I thought about it the more I thought they were not going to be an honorable way with me, and I say, our dues were paid. I dropped a couple of hints here and there.

Governor Gets Busy.

"Then the word of this $30,000 got out. Al Smith and he began making trouble all the way down the line and they didn't want any fights at all at me and he put it up to Governor Mr. Foley said they could be found dead where he stood if he didn't pay for the $30,000, and he sent a special of the boxing commission who had taken my $30,000.

"Mr. Foley told him he was surprised and hurt by such dishonest talk and told him to go right out and see Rickard and kick the money back. So this man went out after me in a taxicab. He called at the garden, he called at my home, he looked at a lot of little places where I am known having a glass of beer and finally found me.

"I don't know why he didn't find me before. I was out playing golf. I had won some money playing golf and have lost as high as $300, some money playing golf, but this was the most impressive golf game I ever

Notre Dame Stars Tie St. Louis, 6-6, in Charity Game

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Al Gebert scored a touchdown two minutes before the end of a charity football game here today to give the Notre Dame alumni eleven a 6 to 6 tie with the St. Louis All Stars. Corbett ran 65 yards for the St. Louis All Stars' touchdown earlier in the game, which was played before 17,000.

Dick Thornton, full back from the Missouri School of Mines, with only a minute left to play, cut loose down the field and was stopped on Notre Dame's 30 yard line by Gebert's tackle. Both sides used two complete teams. The Notre Dame team had only two practice sessions before going into today's game. Lineup:

| NOTRE DAME (6). | | ST. LOUIS (6). |
|---|---|---|
| Colerick | L. E. | Powell |
| Maxwell | L. T. | Tomlinson |
| Canon | L. G. | Pesoli |

Touchdowns—Gebert and Corbett.

Four Tie for 4th in Title Cue Tourney

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf of New York ruled over the pocket billiard world today, champion for the eleventh time, but the standings other than first place were far from settled. At least seven games are yet to be played, maybe eight.

There's a four-way tie for fourth place which must be settled and a round robin for the purpose starts tomorrow afternoon. This will require six games. Greenleaf must meet Erwin Rudolph, dethroned champion, of Cleveland in the final regular game, which cannot affect his championship. If Rudolph loses, he will be tied for second and must meet George Kelly, youthful Philadelphian, to decide that place.

Bennie Allen, of Kansas City and Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., both former champions, are tied with Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia and Onofrio Lauri, of Brooklyn for fourth position. Each has won six games and lost five. Rudolph has won seven and lost three, Kelly seven and four.

Greenleaf had his toughest battle of the tourney last night when Kelly, who forced him to go 22 innings to win, 125 to 119.

Greenleaf's record is devoid of defeat, ten sectional winners and runners-up having failed to upset him. He held the championship from 1919 to 1924 and from 1926 to 1929.

He had the title before he took the table last night, Taberski having eliminated Rudolph from any chance of a tie with the New Yorker through a 125 to 30 upset during the afternoon. The standings:

| | W. | L. | T. P. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Greenleaf | 10 | 0 | 1.250 |
| Rudolph | 7 | 3 | 1.012 |
| Kelly | 7 | 4 | 1.133 |
| *Allen | 6 | 5 | 1.166 |
| *Ponzi | 6 | 5 | 1.153 |
| *Lauri | 6 | 5 | 994 |
| *Taberski | 6 | 5 | 983 |
| Camp | 5 | 6 | 1.153 |
| *Layton | 4 | 7 | 926 |
| *Livesey | 4 | 7 | 923 |
| *Lindblom | 3 | 9 | 804 |
| *Miller | 2 | 9 | 800 |

MILWAUKEE MAN HEADS CENTRAL STATES BOWLERS

Cleveland, O., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The annual tournament of the Central States bowling association closed tonight with Cleveland entries winning first place in all events except the singles, which was won by C. Moses of Toledo, with a score of 749.

Milwaukee was selected as the site of the next meet and Harvey Welnits of Milwaukee was elected president of the association for the coming year. The tournament will begin next Nov. 25 and continue through Dec. 24. Final tournament results.

Doubles—Kissoff and Rodis, 1,407 [Cleveland].
Singles—C. Moses, Toledo, 749.
All events—Roy Rice, Cleveland, 2,080.

TRAZNICK TO TRY FOR SKI HONORS AGAIN; 3D IN '31

Fox A. C. Names Team for Tribune Meet.

Those boys who hope to win the gold medal for the longest jump in THE TRIBUNE'S second annual ski tournament at Riis park Jan. 3 must watch out for Daniel Traznick of the Fox Athletic club, Fox River Grove. Traznick, who yesterday entered the meet for the second year, had the longest jump of all contestants last January, but his marking on form brought him down to third position.

Traznick jumped 40 and 43 feet on his two attempts last season. His second jump was the longest of the meet. Warm weather held back all of the boys. With better conditions the slide at Riis park should permit many jumps of more than 50 feet.

Traznick was marked 15.25 on form on a scale of 20. His jumping was marked 19.75 on a scale of 20. In this division of the marking 20 equals the longest jump, 43 feet. The combination of Traznick's two marks gave him 17.5 for third place.

Jensen Wins First Place.

Howard Jensen of the Norge Ski club was the winner of this age division with a total marking of 18.625. Jensen was marked 17.45 on form and 19.8 on distance with two jumps of 42 and 41 feet. Harvey Nilsen was second with a final score of 18.075. He had two jumps of 40 feet each and a form score of 16.5.

Last year there were only two divisions. This year's tournament has been divided into four age divisions. Boys 12 years of age and under will compete together. The others are: 13 and 14 years of age; 15 and 16 years of age; 17 years and over.

Three medals will be awarded in each division. The team which scores the most points in all divisons also will receive a trophy.

Entries Close Dec. 30.

Entries for THE TRIBUNE'S tournament close Dec. 30 at midnight. No post entries will be received. Clip the blank which is printed daily and forward it to the Ski Editor, Sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Louis Cernocky Jr., vice president and secretary of the Fox Athletic club, also entered three others boys yesterday in addition to Traznick. They are Joe Sedivec, G. Petriak and Ed Cernocky.

ONLY TWO MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS ON SENATORS' CARD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Nineteen exhibition games, only two with major league clubs, were announced today as the spring training schedule of the Washington Senators.

Brooklyn will be played at Biloxi, Miss., April 1, and the Boston Braves here April 7.

Eight of the games will be with the Baltimore Orioles, six at Biloxi and Gulfport, their respective training camps.

Louisville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, and Buffalo also will be met.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

While all those investigations are going on to determine what, if anything, is wrong with college football, I wish somebody would have the temerity to take up the case of student editors.

Campus publications, particularly in the east, have screamed out in bold type about the commercialism, semi-professionalism, and overemphasis of college sport. The editors of some of these papers have been given columns of space in the metropolitan press.

Examination might reveal that college scribblers themselves are not altogether without guile. Judging by the inquiries that come to this department from young authors wanting to sell a sensational story about the breaking off of relations with Blank university, oldest and most respected rival of Onion seminary, there is commercialism even among the boys so anxious to hurl the same charge at intercollegiate football.

Because some of these correspondents are staff members of campus periodicals their articles seem to carry an official stamp. It is surprising how well some of the young men get along financially.

Which, dear reader, is the worse menace to the sport—a half back whose achievements on the gridiron earn him a job that provides enough revenue to finance his schooling or an editor who pays his way by peddling articles that in the main are developments of his imagination?

The answer obviously is, what kind of dressing do you prefer on your lettuce, mayormaise or thousand island?

There are other ways to win fame in journalism. For instance, you don't have to write a book about Knute Rockne.

It must be the climate. There is no other explanation for the remarkably strong showing of Pacific coast teams against the rest of the world during the faded football season.

A chart compiled by the United Press reveals that in 18 games with teams that might be called representative, coast elevens have been defeated only twice. One of the victors was Northwestern, which turned back University of California at Los Angeles, 19 to 0, without putting on full steam. The other was Tulane which whipped Washington State, 28 to 14.

Neither of these games was played on the coast, so maybe that accounts for the scores.

Two more intersectional games will be played before the season is officially interred. California, which has made a suprisingly good showing under its new coach, Bill Ingram, travels across the continent to meet Georgia Tech next Saturday, and Tulane goes to Pasadena to battle Southern California on New Year's day.

The winner of the Tulane-Southern California game will be awarded the Erskine trophy, emblematic of the national championship. If there must be a national champion, the team that comes out of this contest victorious merits the honor.

Loyola [Los Angeles], 22; Drake, 7.
Oregon university, 0; North Dakota, 0.
Oregon university, 14; New York university, 6.
Oregon State, 18; Colorado, 0.
Oregon State, 12; Utah, 0.
St. Mary's, 7; Southern Methodist, 2.
San Francisco, U., 38; De Paul, 7.
San Francisco U., 25; Brigham Young, 0.
Santa Clara, 13; Loyola [New Orleans], 7.
Santa Clara, 6; Wyoming, 0.
Southern California, 16; Notre Dame, 14.
Southern California, 60; Georgia, 0.
Stanford, 13; Minnesota, 0.
Stanford, 32; Dartmouth, 6.
U. C. L. A., 0; Northwestern, 19.
U. C. L. A., 13; Florida, 0.
Washington, 7; Utah, 6.
Washington State, 14; Tulane, 28.

Mique Malloy, whose success with boxing shows at White City leads him to wonder if there really is a depression, has a new slogan. It's "Be Your Own Judge."

Starting with the Roper-Marriner bout a week from tonight, patrons of Malloy's extravaganzas will be presented with a score card and a set of instructions on scoring when they enter the arena. They will be asked to mark their ballots according to commission regulations and deposit them at the door on the way out. Their verdict then will be compared with the official decision of the judges and referee.

Malloy contends that the frequent protests of boxing verdicts are due to the fans' misunderstanding of the rules governing scoring. He plans a campaign of education.

N. U. to Meet Notre Dame Tonight; Seeks Fifth Victory

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern, defending basketball champion of the Big Ten and victor in four practice games this year, faces Notre Dame tonight at South Bend in the first of a final two game series before opening its conference schedule. The Wildcats, who displayed their best form in whipping Washington university of St. Louis Saturday night, 39 to 17, hope to add another triumph over their traditional rivals.

JOE REIFF.

Northwestern has beaten Notre Dame only seven times in the last 18 games, while the Irish have won 11, but Northwestern has been superior in recent contests. Last year Northwestern won, 44 to 29, at South Bend, and 20 to 17 at Patten gymnasium.

Purple Reaches Peak.

The Wildcats placed their regular five on the floor Saturday night against Washington for the first time this year. Capt. Bob McCarnes, who has been out of the lineup with an injured ankle, took over the center job on the tipoff, and then played forward with Elmer Johnson.

Big Joe Reiff, leading Big Ten scorer a year ago, for the most part was on the free throw line. Bus Smith, a regular guard in 1931, and Saul Farber, the senational floor guard, had the other back court positions. Farber has earned a first line job by his spectacular ball handling and passing. In addition he has connected on long shots. His scoring defeated Southern California and contributed to victory in the other pre-season contests.

Perhaps Northwestern right now isn't as dangerous a team as the 1931 champions, but if McCarnes can stay in the lineup the team shortly will reach that form.

Irish Split Four Games.

Notre Dame, handicapped by the absence of its two best guards at critical times, has won two games this year and lost two. The Irish whipped Kalamazoo and Adrian and then lost to Indiana and Purdue. In both games Notre Dame's floor game was excellent, but the players failed on their short drives to the basket. Ray De Cook and Ed Krause, who have alternated at center, are outstanding in the use of the free throw line block plays.

Illinois, undefeated so far, meets Butler at Champaign tonight. If the Illini can whip Butler, which conquered Pittsburgh Saturday night, 23 to 20, they must be considered one of the first division teams in the Big Ten.

Wisconsin, another team to triumph over Pitt, faces Marquette tonight at Milwaukee. If the Badgers have fair success on their shots, they should win, for the Meanwell system will provide those scoring opportunities. So far, the Badgers have been erratic in scoring although their floor game against Brigham Young and Pitt was excellent.

HARRY COOPER WINS PASADENA OPEN WITH 281

Chicago Pro Gets $1,000; Cox Is Second.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Harry Cooper, Chicago, who came into golf prominence for the first time in California five years ago, returned to championship form here today and won the Pasadena $4,000 open tournament with a 72 hole card of 281, 3 under par.

The slight professional from the Glen Oaks Country club, Chicago, showed an almost complete mastery of the new, heavier ball and the rugged Brookside course with its par of 71 to annex the $1,000 first place money and the title relinquished by Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y.

Retains Early Lead.

Lighthorse Harry charged to the front in the second round yesterday with a 67, 4 under par, and was never headed. He had opened with a 72 Friday and continued a steady parade of 72 and 70 today to walk away from the rest of the 180 starters.

Seven strokes in his wake came Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn professional, whose cards of 71—74—71—72 gave him a score of 288 and $600 prize money. Fred Morrison, hard driving pro of Fox Hills Country club, Culver City, Cal., was third, a stroke behind Cox, with 75—72—72 and a subpar 70 on the final 18 for 289. His reward was $400.

Detroit Stars Tie for Fourth.

A couple of Detroit pros, Ralph Guldahl, still young in tournament play, and the veteran Walter Hagen, tied for fourth with 290. Their earnings were $325 each. Sixth place also resulted in a tie between Ray Mangrum, young Los Angeles pro, and Eddie Loos, Chicagoan, with cards of 291, ten strokes behind Cooper.

Cooper ran into difficulties occasionally with his putting. His card of 67 on the second round yesterday was the best turned in during the tournament.

Cooper Regains Form.

In the afternoon he slumped on the out nine, three-putting the second for a bogie five to shoot 37, but on the home stretch he settled down again with two birdies in succession. The first was the result of a 40 foot putt on the fourteenth, and on the next hole he laid his approach dead to the pin for a one-putt. His cards:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Par—Out | 444 | 445 | 434—36 |
| Par—In | 444 | 345 | 434—35—36—71 |
| Morning rd.—Out | 544 | 444 | 434—36 |
| Morning round—In | 444 | 445 | 434—36—36—72 |
| Afternoon—Out | 451 | 445 | 434—37 |
| Afternoon—In | 444 | 334 | 434—33—37—70 |

Manero failed to qualify among the 51 low professionals yesterday. Billy Burke, national open champion from Greenwich, Conn., collected only $50 of the prize money, finishing with a 295. George von Elm, Los Angeles, runner up to Burke in the open, also collected only $50 with 294. The prize winners:

Fred Morrison, Culver City, 75—72—72—70—289, $400.
Ralph Guldahl, Detroit, 69—72—74—75—290, $325.
Walter Hagen, Detroit, 73—73—72—72—290, $325.
Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, 69—71—76—75—291, $225.
MacDonald Smith, New York, 70—74—73—75—292, $100.
Al Espinosa, Akron, O., 76—69—74—73—292, $100.
Clarence Clark, Broomfield, N. J., 74—75—72—71—292, $100.
Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 72—74—73—73—292, $100.
Craig Wood, Hollywood, N. J., 72—76—74—71—293, $50.
Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia, 75—74—72—72—293, $50.
Charles Lacey, New York, 74—76—74—72—294, $50.
Paul Runyon, White Plains, N. Y., 75—73—75—72—294, $50.
Billie Burke, Greenwich, Conn., 73—75—71—76—295, $50.
Dallas Jeffers, Santa Ana, Cal., 76—75—75—73—297, $33.34.

Loyola Quintet Faces Washington Veterans Tonight

Loyola university basketball team will seek its fifth consecutive victory of the season tonight when it meets Washington university of St. Louis at the Loyola gymnasium. It will be the first basketball meeting of the two schools. The game will start at 8:15 p. m.

Washington has defeated the University of Southern California and has lost to Purdue and Northwestern.

Don White, former Purdue star, who is beginning his ninth year as coach of the Missourians, has an all-veteran team. He plans to start five lettermen.

Coach Len Sachs will start the same lineup of four lettermen and one sophomore which has rung up victories this season over Brigham Young, Arkansas State, James Millikin, and Bradley.

SOUTHEASTERN LEAGUE TO BE REORGANIZED

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 20.—(AP)—The Southeastern Baseball league, which a year ago was disbanded, today was resurrected as representatives of five southern cities voted to reorganize it into an eight club circuit.

The action was taken by unanimous adoption of a motion of Cliff Green, president of the old league, to reorganize and issue invitations to nine cities. Final reorganization is set for Jan. 18.

The five cities represented today were Selma, Ala., Columbus, Ga., Pensacola, Fla., Jackson, Miss., and Montgomery. In addition, invitations will be extended to Anniston and Mobile, Ala., Meridian, Miss., and Macon, Ga.

Minnesota Meets Detroit in Olympic Hockey Trials

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 20.—The University of Minnesota last night won the right to meet the Detroit All-Stars in the Olympic games hockey trials by defeating Eleveth Junior college here, 4 to 2, in the second game of their series. Minnesota defeated Eleveth Friday night, 4 to 0. Detroit will meet the Gophers in the first game here, Jan. 11, with the date subject to change by Minnesota.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Little Mush March last night put on one of those old time, last minute drama specials to grab a 1 to 0 overtime victory from the Toronto Maple Leafs. It was the second overtime victory for the Hawks in their last two Stadium starts and made all of the 10,000 loyal patrons exceedingly happy, as you might know.

MUSH MARCH.

March shot home the rubber after 10 seconds of the last minute of the overtime had been played. The puck had been knocked into the stands and many of the patrons, knowing the curfew was imminent, started to leave the hall.

He Had to Be a Houdini.

After the rubber had been recovered from one of the rink side pews, there was the regulation face off, with Tommy Cook paddling his oar for Chicago. He batted the puck to Mush and the little fellow took it as it was spinning on its edge. Going at full speed as he was, Mush had a tough time flattening the disk for shooting purposes.

If the derned rubber had persisted in being a cartwheel for another instant Mush never would have got his shot. But the thing flattened, and at exactly the right place. Whang! and the Hawks had won another hockey game.

The Leafs Were Snappy.

The Hawk victory should not be discounted because of any suspected travel weariness on the part of their adversaries, who came to Chicago from Toronto after beating the Maroons up there Saturday night. If the Maple Leafs were tired they didn't show it, for their attack was spirited at all times, except, of course, during those last 50 seconds after Mush had done his stuff.

It was the second appearance of the Leafs at the Stadium this season, they being the only team to play a return engagement to date. On Nov. 18 they tied the Hawks, 1 to 1.

Hawks Take Second.

Last night's triumph gave the Hawks undisputed possession of second place in the American division of the National Hockey league and put them in fine fettle for their game in Montreal tomorrow night.

The Leafs gave Goalie Gardiner a merry twenty minutes in the first period, though his total of eleven stops wasn't high. On four occasions the visitors had the puck within 5 feet of the cage in positions for unhindered shots. One time Chuck was completely out of his net and it seemed that Clancy couldn't miss the shot. But he did. A few seconds later Jackson took a pass from Horner with Gardiner again out of position, though not completely away, but Harve's control also was bad and no harm was done.

Hawks Have a Rally.

With the foregoing scares scarcely calmed, Conacher overskated a pass from Primeau right in front of the cage, and two minutes later Jackson again showed poor marksmanship from a point 4 feet in front of the net. The Hawks' offense wasn't asleep during all this time, and made Goalie Chabot dance nine times to stave off trouble. One of the best Chicago threats came just before the buzzer ended the period, when March, Cook, Adams, and Graham had the rubber bouncing around Chabot's toes.

The second period didn't see the Maple Leafs in so many near scoring acts. The Hawks, on the other hand, were quite persistent. Ripley was the first Chicagoan to get pestiferous. Early in the period he took the puck away from Mr. Conacher and banged a wicked one against Chabot's shin. A few seconds later Vic took a pass

SMITTY—BY POPULAR REQUEST

Robins Put on Ear Muffs; Stay in North

BY BOB BECKER.

It isn't time for the cry about the "first robin of the season" to be heard through the valley states, but all bird fans who have ambitions to enter the annual "I saw the first robin contest," should keep in mind that there are a few robins going to stay north this winter, as is usually the case every year. One can get the jump in observations on these birds by spotting a few of them early and then turning in a report along in January.

R. M. Weideman of Menominee, Mich., apparently has a couple of hardy robins that don't mind wearing ear muffs this winter. Regarding the birds around his feeding station, he writes:

"You will be interested in hearing about a sight in my back yard [facing Green Bay] that I saw yesterday. We have a privet hedge with five mountain ash trees growing in it. We had a large flock of waxwings eating the berries on these trees and also bread crumbs at our feeding station.

"One pair of robins on hand; one pair of red headed woodpeckers; one flicker, and a flock of English starlings. I have clearly identified the starlings this year. Last winter I saw a pair which I could not place, but now a flock is here and easily classified."

This is an extremely interesting group of birds to have around a winter feeding station and shows something of the variety that one can get here in the middle west. The mountain ash berries always are an attraction to birds, although only 14 species eat the fruit as compared to 52 varieties that seek the fruit of the common mulberry tree.

The red headed woodpecker, waxwing, robin and pine grosbeak are among the species that will hang around the ash trees for a free meal.

DARKNESS HALTS NATIONAL CUP SOCCER PLAY-OFF

The second round national cup soccer tie between the Olympias and Carpenters still is undecided. The teams played at 47th avenue and 19th street yesterday, but the game was halted because of darkness eight minutes from the end of an overtime session, with the Olympias leading, 2 to 1. They will meet again, probably on Christmas day.

The Maccabees beat the Bricklayers, 1 to 0, at Kuppenheimer stadium, Maxie Perlman doing the counting. Sparta, after trailing 1 to 0, got back into its stride and defeated the Wanderers, 4 to 1, at Sparta stadium. Lineups:

Grube Plays Basketball to Keep Fit

Easton, Pa., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Looking forward to a very successful season in the major leagues next summer, Frank Grube of Easton, Chicago White Sox catcher, is keeping in condition during the winter months by playing basketball with the Easton professional team.

Grube, who starred in the city series last October, expects to be the Sox regular catcher next year.

"I learned a lot last summer and expect to be the regular catcher for the White Sox next summer," he said. "I hope Fonseca will give me a lot of work. That's what I need."

Grube seeks to be in perfect condition when he reports for spring training. He is keeping down his weight by playing basketball.

Grube is an all around athlete and was a three letter man, playing football, basketball, and baseball at Lafayette college.

Grube had an offer to play professional football when he returned home, but declined it, foregoing any risks on injuries which may handicap him next season.

players in the central states, will carry Loyola's scoring burden.

Big 10 Race a Free-for-All.

The Big Ten basketball race which opens for six teams on Jan. 4, promises to be a gang fight according to results of practice games. Apparently no team will be able to dominate the season's play as Northwestern did last winter when the Wildcats won 11 conference games and lost one.

Last year three quintets, Purdue, Minnesota and Michigan, tied for second place, each with eight victories and four defeats. Illinois finished fifth with seven victories after losing its first five consecutive contests. Incidentally, Illinois was the only team to defeat Northwestern, winning 35 to 28 at Patten gymnasium.

Indiana was sixth in the 1931 race with five victories and seven defeats. Chicago and Wisconsin tied for seventh, each with four triumphs and eight losses, while Ohio State and Iowa trailed in that order at the bottom of the list.

Purdue Rated Strong.

Purdue is rated as one of the leading title contenders. But Indiana, Illinois and Northwestern also rate as championship possibilities. Michigan probably is not as strong as last year while Minnesota may finish in the first division principally because Purdue and Northwestern are not on the Gophers' schedule.

Ohio State will have a difficult time to break even because it faces Illinois, Northwestern and Purdue among its six Big Ten opponents.

ILLINOIS—Purdue, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio State, Chicago and Minnesota.
PURDUE — Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Ohio State and Chicago.
WISCONSIN — Northwestern, Michigan, Purdue, Indiana, Minnesota and Chicago.
MINNESOTA—Chicago, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin.
MICHIGAN—Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northwestern, Illinois, Ohio State and Iowa.
OHIO STATE—Illinois, Northwestern, Michigan, Purdue, Iowa and Chicago.
IOWA—Ohio State, Northwestern, Indiana, Chicago, Minnesota and Michigan.

According to Everett Dean, coach of Indiana university, Purdue has the best team in the Big Ten. Dean, who scouted Northwestern Saturday, is worried over his opening conference assignment Jan. 4 at Lafayette.

Stars on Bench, Too.

"Purdue has better players sitting on the bench than most Big Ten teams will have on the floor," Dean said. However, Dean isn't particularly discouraged, although Pitt won an overtime game from the Hoosiers while Purdue triumphed easily over the same outfit.

ZAHARIAS SIGNS TO MEET STEELE ON MAT DEC. 30

George Zaharias has been matched to meet Ray Steele of California in the semi-windup of Promoter Joe Coffey's wrestling card the night of Dec. 30 at the Coliseum. Jim Londos, world's heavyweight champion, clashes with Rudy Dusek, Omaha Bohemian, in the main event, two falls out of three to a finish.

Zaharias, weighing 240 pounds, will have 25 pounds edge over Steele. They will wrestle one fall with a 30 minute time limit.

Saltis and Moran Box for Charity in Cicero Ring

Bud Saltis and Jack Moran, hard hitting Chicago middleweights, meet in the windup of the Christmas fund boxing show tonight at Cicero Stadium, 20th street and 52d avenue. The bout is scheduled for six rounds at 162 pounds.

Saltis recently gave Frankie Battaglia a hard ten round battle at White City. Before that, he knocked out Ted Ross. Moran has engaged in 20 professional matches and won 15. His best accomplishments are a draw with Jerry Crano and a hard fight he gave Saltis on the west side several weeks ago.

Kid Irish, Cicero featherweight, and Joey Bozak of Blue Island meet in the six round semi-final at 128 pounds. Four four-round bouts complete the program.

Billy Petrolle, Fargo, N. D., boxer, will leave tomorrow for Chicago en route to New York, where he boxes Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 30. He is scheduled to arrive here Wednesday for a workout and then leave for New York.

Mique Malloy has announced that Les Marriner, Chicago heavyweight, and Jack Roper of Los Angeles, Cal., will fight the ten-round windup at White City on Dec. 23. Marriner is ready for action once more following an infection in his left arm and a cold. He knocked out Biff Bennett before becoming ill. Roper gave Larry Johnson a ten-round fight here early this winter.

R. T. CRANE WILL SETS RECORD FOR NUMBER OF HEIRS

Notices to Be Mailed to 6,000 Employes Today.

Notices of heirship will be sent out to 6,000 persons—the largest number to share in one estate in the history of Cook county's Probate court—by Michael C. Robin, the clerk, today. The notifications go to many homes in Chicago, London, Paris, and Brussels—the homes of Crane company employes who are legatees of the late Richard T. Crane Jr.

In his will Mr. Crane, who died on Nov. 7, provided for gifts of stock to employes of his company. Since his death executors and trustees of his estate, which has not been valued but which is estimated at several millions of dollars, have been compiling the lists of those employes qualified to share in the gifts. The lists are almost completed and the first notices are ready for mailing. Each employé of ten or more years standing is to receive one share of stock for each year. Those who have been employed for more than twenty-five years are to receive two additional shares for each year more than twenty-five.

Provisions of Will.

The time necessary for determining the employé beneficiaries was influenced by the conditions of the will. Only those employés who retained all stock given to them during Mr. Crane's lifetime are eligible for full stock gifts.

On three occasions, in the years of 1927, and 1930, Mr. Crane gave every employé who had remained with the company ten years or more, a share of stock for each year of service. These gifts aggregated a total of $12,500,000 at the market quotations for the years they were made.

The will provides that employés thereafter qualified to share in the estate must have retained all their previous gifts. If an employé has sold one of the three gifts he will receive one share of his apportionment. If he has disposed of all three he will receive no stock.

$1, Thousand to Benefit.

Although it was first thought that the less than 6,000 employés would be liable for the bequests the progress of the auditors indicates that approximately 4,000 will benefit.

It is estimated that 16 shares on an average will be given to each heir. At this rate almost $6,600 more will be distributed. The stock closed Saturday at 14 on the Chicago curb. On that basis the gifts will total $1,344,000.

GANGLAND SNUBS LEGS DIAMOND IN DEATH AS IN LIFE

New York, Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Gangland sent no representatives to-day to pay its last respects to Jack "Legs" Diamond. It omitted even the usual tribute of gates ajar, eight floral anchors, and similar floral tributes. They were snubbing Jack Diamond, dead, as they had snubbed him in life.

Jack Diamond's last setting was humble, when compared with the orgies down put on for the real big shots, and even for some of the lesser ones that have died by the shotgun and the gat. The only flowers that graced his coffin were from his wife and relatives.

The body rests in a dark mahogany casket in a little room on the second floor of the little two family brick and stucco house, in Maspath, in the Italian apartment of Mrs. May Schiffer, sister of Mrs. Diamond. It will be borne tomorrow [Tuesday] from the house to Calvary cemetery.

LANDON ROSE, BANK PRESIDENT, TAKEN BY DEATH

Landon C. Rose, president of the North Avenue State bank, died yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage at his country home in La Porte, Ind. He was 59 years old.

Mr. Rose was born in La Porte, and after graduating from Wabash college in 1893 entered Rose & Co., the private banking house conducted by his family.

He later became president of the old Colonial Trust and Savings bank, and following the merger of that bank with the Central Trust company was a vice president of the latter institution. He became president of the North Avenue State bank in 1926.

Mr. Rose was married twice and twice divorced. He had no children of his own, but in 1915 adopted Gardner K. Grout, a nephew of his second wife.

He was a member of the University, Union League, and Midday clubs, the La Porte Country club, and the Society of Colonial Wars and Sons of the American Revolution. In Chicago Mr. Rose lived at the University club.

He had been in ill health for the last two years. Private funeral services will be held Wednesday in La Porte.

HELENE MUKAUTZ DEAD; BORN IN LOOP DISTRICT

Mrs. Helene Mukautz, 80 years old, who was born at what is now Dearborn street and Wacker drive, will be buried in Calvary cemetery tomorrow forenoon, following funeral services at Our Lady of Peace Catholic church, 79th street and Jeffreys avenue. She died in her home at 7611 Paxton avenue Saturday night.

Mrs. Mukautz was the daughter of the late Francis X. Binz, pioneer Chicago brewer, and owner of the old Keeley Brewing company. Surviving her are four children, Theckla, Blanche, Joseph, and Benedict Mukautz, and four sisters, Mrs. Emma Hoffman, 80 years old, of Waupaca, Wis.; Mrs. Frederick Wallach and Miss Rose Binz of Pasadena, Cal., and Mrs. Frederick Haines of Chicago.

MRS. C. B. SMITH FUNERAL RITES WILL BE TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret A. Smith, wife of Charles B. Smith, president of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation, who died in the John B. Murphy hospital on Saturday following an illness of two months, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning from the residence at 2314 Sheridan road to Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Surviving her besides Mr. Smith are three daughters, Mrs. Marcella M. Hartney, Mrs. Virginia M. Martin and Jeanne M. Smith, and a son, Donald C. Smith.

LAWYER DIES

EDWARD MAHER.

Edward Maher, attorney who had practiced in Chicago nearly fifty years, died yesterday in his home, 7238 Bennett avenue. He was 71 years old.

Mr. Maher was born in Lancashire, England, and came to America in 1869. At first he engaged in the mercantile business, but later read law in the office of the late Judge Ephraim Otis. He became one of the city's leading corporation lawyers and was also interested in various business enterprises. He was formerly vice president of the Chicago Forge and Bolt company, vice president of the American Bridge works, vice president and general manager of the South Haven and Eastern railway, vice president of the Milwaukee, Benton Harbor and Columbus railway, and president of the Maher Equipment company.

Mr. Maher enlisted in the army during the world war at the age of 59 and emerged with the rank of captain. He was commander of the American Unity post of the American Legion and since 1923 was librarian of the Chicago Law institute.

In 1903 Mr. Maher married Elizabeth Stirling, who, with two sons, Eugene and Lincoln, and a daughter, Mrs. Rudolph Filipp, survive. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday in St. Philip Neri church.

MRS. NICHOLSON, WIFE OF INDIANA AUTHOR, IS DEAD

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Eugenie Kountze Nicholson, 64, wife of Meredith Nicholson, noted Hoosier author and essayist, died here today.

Mrs. Nicholson was born in Omaha, Neb., she was married to Mr. Nicholson June 16, 1896.

Mrs. Nicholson took a vital interest in the woman's suffrage movement. She was also active in women's and literary clubs and was active in Red Cross canteen work here during the world war.

Police Fire on 2 Auto Thieves on Gold Coast

Half a dozen shots fired at two fleeing auto thieves startled Gold Coast apartment dwellers in the vicinity of Chestnut street and Lake Shore drive last night. The thieves were noticed working on a parked machine in front of 199 East Chestnut street. Policemen Edward Bazerek and John Fleming of the East Chicago avenue station ordered them to halt. The pair fled instead, with the policemen firing at them. They escaped.

Watseka, Ill., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—Deputy Sheriff Harrison Tuttle, who shot and killed his wife last evening while aiming at her alleged lover, William Giroux of Gary, broke down in his cell at the Watseka jail today.

Earlier Tuttle was quoted as saying he "had no regrets." Tonight his grief was so intense he was given sedatives. He said he and Giroux were rivals twenty-five years ago for the affections of Mrs. Tuttle. Yesterday, he said, he learned Giroux and Mrs. Tuttle were to meet. With an Iroquois county depty sheriff, he searched for them.

Records substantiate the use of the deputy. Later Tuttle came upon his wife and Giroux. Giroux, Tuttle charged, fired first, and he fired back. On the trip to Watseka Giroux threw his gun away, Tuttle alleged.

Tuttle asserted he did not know he had shot his wife but believed she had fainted. After the shooting he forced Giroux to drive here while he followed in his own machine. After taking Mrs. Tuttle to the hospital, where she was pronounced dead, Tuttle marched his rival to the jail and surrendered with him. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Giroux refused to discuss the shooting. He is married and the father of four children.

Giroux and his family formerly lived here and the intimacy with Mrs. Tuttle is said to have begun while they were neighbors. The Giroux home now is at 536 Delaware street, Gary.

BOY'S CONFESSION FOUND IN DOUBLE MURDER, SUICIDE

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Scribbling a note of tribute to his parents as "the best a kid could have," after he had shot and killed his mother and sister, Robert Telman, 16, then fatally shot himself, police learned today in investigating the three deaths. The boy's action is believed to have been the result of refusal for him to attend a Christmas party.

The boy's confession was found two days after the double slaying and suicide when his father opened a letter received the day of the tragedy. On the back of the letter he read:

"I shot Mum and Teresa—I must have been mad."

Underneath the signature "Robert" was written:

"I'll be dead when you see them down in the cellar. You have been the best parents a kid could have."

EMMA GAGE, 91, NATIVE OF COOK COUNTY, IS DEAD

Mrs. Emma F. Gage, 91 years old, who frequently heard Stephen A. Douglas, the "little giant" speak in pre-civil war days, and who also heard Lincoln, died yesterday in the home of her adopted daughter, Mrs. Mary G. Hall, and the Rev. John N. Hall of Batavia.

She was born in Wheeling, Ill., and virtually lived all her life within 25 miles of Chicago. Mrs. Gage only recently recounted her recollection of the Douglas talks, and cited one remark which she said he used frequently. That was, she said, "I don't care whether slavery is voted up or voted down." During the Chicago fire, the Gage home on Webster avenue was turned into a haven for scores of refugees. She was an early advocate of woman's suffrage.

Mrs. Gage was the widow of Henry H. Gage, Evanston real estate man, and Northwestern university trustee, who died eighteen years ago. He was not related to the late Henry H. Gage who once owned part of the north shore property known as No Man's Land. Surviving Mrs. Gage, besides Mrs. Hall, are two sisters, Mrs. Elsie Schramm and Mrs. Clara Miller, both of Park Ridge. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow in Batavia. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Herman Otten, Former Police Sergeant, Is Dead

Herman J. Otten, former police sergeant, died suddenly of a stroke last night in his apartment in the Paxton hotel, 1232 North La Salle street. He was 56 years old. Otten retired seven years ago after serving twenty years at the detective bureau. Since his retirement from the city force he was connected with the Edward J. Hargrave secret service agency.

RADIO CHARGED WITH TRADING ON CHRISTMAS

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 20.—[Special.]—That part that is being played by radio in commercializing Christmas was denounced during a sermon today by the Rev. Dr. David M. Steele, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. Luke and the Epiphany.

"Once, so it was reported, there were angel voices in the sky," said Dr. Steele.

"Only last night, while I listened for a few minutes, I heard 'Holy Night, Silent Night,' used to introduce a hair restorer. 'O, Come, All Ye Faithful,' was sung on behalf of a beauty 'shoppe.'"

MAKE PUBLIC N. Y. C. TRANSIT MERGER PLAN

Would Buy Properties for $474,500,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 21.—The transit commission's tentative plan for unification of the Rapid Transit properties of the B. M. T. and the Interborough under a board of transit control at a net price of $474,500,000 was made public today.

It was met immediately with the charge, voiced in a dissenting memorandum by Commissioner Charles C. Lockwood and a statement by Samuel Untermyer, former special counsel, that it proposed violation of the unification enabling act and the state constitution by pledging the city's credit to meet the interest and amortization charges of securities equaling in amount the entire purchase price.

The plan, which is slated to go to public hearings before the commission on March 1, was approved last Saturday by Chairman William G. Fullen and Commissioner Leon G. Godley. It proposes to acquire the company properties preferably by issuing $406,908,000 of 40-year 4½ per cent bonds of the board of transit control and assuming $87,592,000 of outstanding bonds of the companies' elevated lines. Although it gives the city the option of paying part of the purchase in cash through the sale of corporate stock, reducing to that extent the size of the board of transit control bond issue, that method is treated as a second choice.

Dissenters Report.

Certain provisions in the plan, calling upon the city to issue corporate stock to retire board of transit control bonds if the revenue from unified operation should fail to meet these charges even after drawing upon reserve funds set up for interest and amortization purposes, are held by Commissioner Lockwood and Mr. Untermyer to bind the city, in effect, to guarantee not only the entire $406,908,000 issue of board of control bonds, but also the $87,592,000 of underlying bonds of the elevated lines.

John J. Curtin, special counsel for the commission, said that this contention, in his opinion, was not sound, but conceded that the question was one which would have to be threshed out before a final plan could be adopted. Inclusion of the provision in question, he said, was deemed necessary by the majority of the commission to make the board of control bonds attractive to company security holders who would be asked to authorize unification.

The purchase price of $474,500,000 is made up as follows: B. M. T. railroads, $186,500,000; Williamsburgh power plant, $23,000,000; Interborough and Manhattan "L," $265,000,000.

Price May Be Higher.

The plan and an accompanying explanatory memorandum do not show on their face the specific sums allocated to the elevated lines of the two companies. The price does not take into account any excess of current company liabilities over assets at the time the properties are taken over by the board of transit control. This sum, Mr. Untermyer has contended, will bring the real purchase price close to the $500,000,000 mark.

The plan provides for operation of the new city subway system under the board of transit control, but with separate accounting. Transit officials believe that this provision will enable the city to maintain the five cent fare on its new lines and carry in the budget any deficits. The board of control is given complete authority over the financial administration of the operator, but not over matters concerned with the employment of operating force or conditions of labor.

SEES HOLIDAY REDUCTION IN STEEL OUTPUT

Steel production this week will fall to 20 per cent of capacity, the magazine Steel predicts. Year-end lethargy and holiday interruptions were the explanations given for the decline of four points from last week's production.

Despite repeated disappointments, the steel trade looks to the automotive industry for the first signs of expansion. The magazine said: "Ford, after much hesitation, is reliably reported to have decided to meet intensified competition in the low price field with a multi-cylinder car, probably a V-eight, and is expected shortly to release substantial orders.

If the railroad wage situation is adjusted shortly by a reduction some increase in business is expected from maintenance and repair work. Moderate size inquiries have already been heard from several railroads, with bids to be placed this week.

Believe Rail Action Meets Labor Demand

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—The action of the nation's railroad presidents in appointing a committee to negotiate to a conclusion on wages and employment is believed in management circles fully to have met the demands of organized labor. Even the formal service of a notice for a 15 per cent cut in wages under the railway labor act was done at the suggestion of labor leaders, it was explained by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, who heads the management committee.

It is the plan of the management committee at the forthcoming meeting with the labor leaders to ask for a voluntary cut of 10 per cent in wages. To this the labor leaders are expected to counter with a request for distribution of employment on the widest scale possible in view of the financial condition of the railroads. Both sides to the conference will be empowered to settle these two points.

Some Misunderstanding.

When the railroad presidents decided to meet labor's request for a conference and at the same time to issue notices in accordance with law for a 15 per cent cut, some misunderstanding was engendered. For example, Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the twenty-one unions represented by the Railway Labor Executives' association, denounced the decision to serve the notice as "very bad judgment" on the part of the presidents. David R. Robertson, chairman of the association and president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, promptly declared Mr. Richberg's statement unauthorized. A. F. Whitney, head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, also hastened to disavow Mr. Richberg's statement.

Prior to Mr. Willard's explanation, which was issued after a conference with President Hoover, one of Mr. Robertson's colleagues had suggested filing of the formal notice on the grounds that union memberships would expect such action by the managements before the labor heads took definite action in negotiations involving wage reductions. Others among the labor leaders, while not agreeing on the necessity of such a notice, felt that it would not interfere with a harmonious discussion of the problem.

Ready for Eventualities.

This attitude on the part of labor fitted with the views of some railroad executives. These officials saw an advantage to filing formal notice immediately for a 15 per cent cut. In the first place, such action, by fixing the time of the notice at the earliest possible date, would save time in the event the negotiations for a voluntary reduction should fail. In the second place, all the managements feel that, should they be compelled to move in accordance with law for a reduction, they would have to ask for 15 per cent cut in order to obtain 10.

Thus, by authorizing filing of the notices, these executives have shown to their stockholders that they are prepared for any eventuality in the wage negotiations and at the same time, by moving for friendly negotiations, they have placed themselves in a safe position as regards public opinion.

The decision of the railway presidents to treat with labor on a friendly basis is the culmination to a series of events in which both sides endeavored to establish a position which would be supported by public opinion. From the start, it is generally agreed that labor succeeded in this object. The executives now feel they have accomplished the same end.

Says Enlarged Demand to Cause Utility Expansion

American public utility companies will soon prepare to meet an enlarged demand for their services as normal business conditions return in this country because, since the business recession began, they have added new business which, operating at a normal rate, would more than offset that which was lost because of lowered industrial activity and cessation of new construction, according to V. D. Simons, Chicago industrial engineer. The views are based on the statistics of the installed capacity of the utilities today, and upon replies from utility heads favorable to Simmons' "joint firm power plan" whereby he proposes to link utility and industrial plants into power producing units at many industrial sites in the United States.

Sees Sales Effort, Ads as Stimulants for Business

Increased sales efforts and liberal advertising are emphasized by the marketing committee of the Illinois Manufacturers' association as important factors in the stimulation of business. Of scarcely less value, the committee adds, are the policies dealing with new products, quality, research, diversification, and modification. Marketing research, reduced prices, coöperation with dealers, improvement of service and management of salesmen occupy a prominent position in the marketing program of the companies which have been included in a survey by the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, the committee says.

FIGHT PLAN TO SELL MONON TO B. & O. RAILROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20.—The Indiana state chamber of commerce is opposed to the plan of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to take over the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway company, commonly known as the Monon, it was announced tonight.

An intervening petition, prepared by the state chamber of commerce, will be filed with the interstate commerce commission, it was announced. The petition asserts absorption of the Monon by the Baltimore and Ohio would retard development of the state in shipping and selling its products and would restrict competitive markets.

The Southern Railway company and the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, which own most of the stock of the Monon, will join with the chamber of commerce in opposing the absorption.

The chamber says that the ultimate result of absorption would be the formation of four railroad systems for the entire trading area east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers—the New York Central, the Pennsylvania railroad, the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate, and the Baltimore and Ohio. Thus the Monon, a north and south line, would become a link of an east and west system.

Utility Firm Seeks Permit to Acquire More Stock

Northern Indiana Public Service company, in a petition filed with the public service commission of Indiana, asks authority to acquire the interest of the Public Service Company of Indiana in the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation. This interest, for which the Northern Indiana Public Service proposes to pay $722,068, consists of 71,760 shares, or ten per cent, of the no par value common capital stock of the generating company. Chicago District Electric Generating corporation operates a large generating station at the Indiana-Illinois state line in Hammond.

ORDER 25% WAGE CUT FOR BUILDING TRADES IN PITTSBURGH AREA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 20.—A general 25 per cent wage rate reduction in Allegheny county building trades has been ordered for Jan. 1 by the Building Trades Employers association, it was announced today.

A battle between employers and labor was forecast by the refusal of labor unions arbitration committees to accept the wage slash. The building contractors' proposal will be put before general meetings of the unions within the next two weeks, it was indicated.

The 25 per cent cut would apply throughout the building trades from common labor, now drawing $6.40 a day, to bricklayers at $14 a day, highest paid of the building group.

Chicago Exchange Seat Sells at $6,000; Off $1,500

Arrangements were made late last week for the sale of two memberships on the Chicago Stock exchange at $6,000 and $6,500. The last previous sale was $8,500.

RETAIL PRICES OFF, BUT NO NIP IN WHOLESALE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Although retail food prices dropped during November, wholesale costs remained virtually stationary.

The bureau of labor statistics announced today that there was only one-tenth of one per cent change in wholesale prices and that was downward. Retail prices announced yesterday were about 2 per cent lower than in October.

Wholesale prices in November were 68.83 per cent of the 1926 prices as compared with 68.4 in October. Retail figures were 116.7 per cent of 1913.

South Carolina to Make Note Offering This Week

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—New bond offerings scheduled for this week in the municipal category total $27,749,621, says the Daily Bond Buyer. Most of the financing will be done by the State of South Carolina, which on Wednesday will dispose of $10,000,000 in highway certificates of indebtedness and a like amount in highway notes. Mississippi will sell $2,500,000 in highway and bospital bonds on Monday.

Long Suffering Bond Market Bounces Back

New York, Dec. 20.—(AP)—After being kicked around for the last two months as a financial orphan, the bond market staged a dramatic recovery at the week-end.

Although the securities mart has had its ups and downs—principally downs recently—veteran traders declared that never before in their memory had there been such a tremendous upheaval of prices as occured Friday when the majority of listed issues jumped from 1 to 12 points.

Expectation that there would be some reaction during Saturday's short session was not fulfilled and most of the loans continued their upward swing, although the advance was somewhat more orderly than in the preceding session.

An About Face.

Various factors, according to investment bankers, caused the right-about-face. In the first place, they said, bonds were selling out of all proportion to actual values. At the same time, with dealers pointing out to their customers the various "gifts" in the market, it was reported in well informed financial quarters that a banking pool had been formed to support high grade issues and prevent further wide breaks.

Coupled with this report were indications that the railway situation was due for improvement with probabilities that the union workers would accept a 10 per cent wage reduction. Also the testimony of Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. at Washington that the German short term credit situation was not as embarrassing to Wall street as had been rumored, was credited with doing much to start a recovery.

Rails Lead Advance.

Leading in the spectacular advance were the badly battered rails. In the Friday session it seemed that all investors had the same idea at the same time. That was that rail bonds were apparently at "rock bottom" and now was the "time to get aboard." The result was that the carrier loans jumped from 6 to 9 points in such a short time that many buyers had difficulty in getting their orders filled.

United States government issues, which have been sagging to new lows for the year, also took on a new lease of life and followed the exuberant rails in the upward climb. The utilities and industrials were not far behind and bidding for most of these loans brought them up to their highest prices in many weeks.

Foreign obligations were not neglected in the buying rush and most of this list advanced several points, the Argentines, Germans and Japanese loans showing impressive gains.

The average for 60 corporate securities advanced 2 points Friday and took on a further gain of 1.5 points in Saturday's two hours of trading.

HOLIDAY TRADE HERE EXCEEDS ESTIMATES; REPLENISH STOCKS

Holiday buying in Chicago last week exceeded all expectations, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. While the unit price of the purchases averaged well under a year ago, with most shoppers specializing in the lower priced brackets, the larger number of transactions more than made up for the price drop. In addition, there was a very noticeable increase in cash purchases, indicating the spending of Christmas and bank savings.

Wholesalers with rush orders by wire to replenish broken stocks among retail distributors were worked to capacity. They reported a good volume of reorders for apparel accessories and other items suitable for Christmas gifts. On the other hand, the demand for staples was slow during the first part of the week.

In the retail circles sales on jewelry, toys, and fancy goods of all kinds were heavier than the week previous. The number of shoppers in the loop and neighborhood department stores was as large as in any previous year.

Material commitments totaling in the hundreds of thousands of dollars have been let within the last five days by one aircraft corporation in Chicago. Officials said that the corporation was now preparing for an even bigger year in 1932 because of the rise in conditions influencing them during the last week.

Lumber and other building material items were in a little better demand, the mild weather aiding repair projects to some extent. Retail coal demand was only fair, with purchases on a minimized basis.

NEW HIGH MADE BY IMAGINATION AS STOCKS FELL

Rally Takes Edge Off Tall Yarns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 20.—While stock exchange values were falling progressively during last week's first four days, Wall street's picture of the financial future darkened equivalently. Two months before, the depressing consideration had been the doubt of early American revival. A month before, disaster overhanging Europe was the crux of misgiving.

However, the subsequent course of stocks and bonds sent the Wall street imagination racing. It was now no longer, to the financial experts who exchanged friendly gossip at the street corner, a question of what shocks must be endured before recovery should come, but a question of universal bankruptcy. The United States would, of course, "go off the gold standard." No matter when, or why, or how; but this was to be an incident.

On the whole these pleasant excursions into the future were best summed up in the language ascribed last week to a habitual English pessimist to the effect that "if his information was correct"—and he naturally thought it was—"nothing can prevent a complete world breakdown within two months."

Blame Course of Stocks.

People who kept their heads seemed to suspect that the course of the stock exchange was mostly responsible for this enlivening venture into prophecy; their suspicion was possibly reinforced when the prophecy grew somewhat more hesitant, during the week-end's sudden and vigorous advance of stocks and bonds. But the atmosphere remained: probably it would require a 20 point or 30 point advance to make it wholly normal.

Needless to say, the downward sweep of bonds of strong governments and companies to fantastically low values played the leading part in last week's mental aberrations There, at least, was a fact, and no one in places of responsibility was disputing the inferences drawn from it.

To that there seemed last week to be one exception, when Mr. Lamont of Morgan's remarked to the senate committee that, "if we can address ourselves to certain phases of our own domestic situation, the foreign situa-

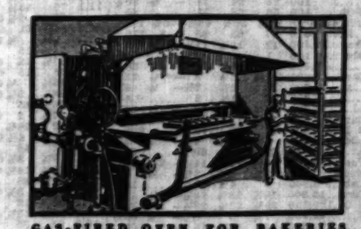
1,267 Plants Modernized in Associated Areas

SWIFT, silent electric locomotives have replaced steam engines on 68 miles of the Lackawanna Railroad in New Jersey. The growing trend toward electrification of steam railroads is seen in the fact that power consumed for this purpose has increased 38% in the last five years. And yet, only 1% of the total mileage in this country has been electrified.

The Lackawanna is one of the largest among Associated customers who are modernizing their methods with electricity. Others are using gas. For example, 39 bakeries in Rochester, N. Y., Worcester and Cambridge, Mass., Johnstown, Pa., Columbia, S. C., Terre Haute, Ind., and other cities served by the Associated System have recently displaced other fuels with gas. They chose gas heat because it is easily controlled, efficient, economical.



GAS-FIRED OVEN FOR BAKERIES

This modernization of industrial methods by companies in areas served by the Associated System has been marked during the past five years. During this period 1,267 companies turned to electricity and gas for power and heating purposes. The result of these changes has been:

|---|---|
| Total plants modernized | 1,267 |
| With Electricity | 951 |
| With Gas | 316 |

Since 1920, the use of both electricity and gas in industry has been more than doubled. Still, only 75% of industry is now electrified, and only 49% gets its power from public utility plants. It is estimated that there is an immediate opportunity for an increase of 50% in the amount of gas used for industrial purposes.

Associated service is supplied to 1,448,900 customers in 3,118 communities. These customers include 25,900 industrial users, divided among 285 types of industries.

Service is largely concentrated in the rich manufacturing states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Massachusetts. The increasing use of electricity and gas by industry should result in steady growth of Associated System services.

tion will in due course take care of itself." But even this was not dealing directly with the bond market's extraordinary valuations and their actual significance or lack of it.

"Lack of Leadership."

Six months ago the financial public began to talk with great bitterness of the "lack of financial leadership." By this they meant absence of concerted action to strengthen the position at its points of special peril, thereby arresting the progress of blind panic. Since no such demonstration seemed to have been made, it was commonly asserted that the financial outlook must be hopeless and that high finance must know it to be so. Yet we have subsequently discovered something very much like what Wall street calls "constructive leadership," first displayed by President Hoover, then by the larger financiers, and applied successively to the German crisis, the seemingly helpless bank position, and the railway credit outlook.

Just as the public drew the inference last June and September that nothing was being done because it was impossible to do anything, so it seems now to be assuming that nothing is being said because there is no hope to be conveyed.

Difficult to Talk.

It is easy to understand why important financiers find it difficult to make such public statements. Even if they had individually been the means of placing in the investor's hands the securities in question, no guarantee was given against depreciation, and great financial houses cannot in the nature of things give out publicly their view of market fluctuations.

Still, the situation is unusual. Perhaps it is now a matter of mere novelty of mind in which the public is tending to rate the securities as all but worthless and to infer, in the absence of any comment from high places, that conservative finance agrees. If it is true that the public mind is as grievously perverted today as it was when prices were at the equally fantastic heights of 1929, is there or is there not a duty confronting responsible financiers.

It is an interesting question. We have lately been assured that the same public's infatuation of two and a half years ago was fully recognized in high quarters. Yet, somehow, the eminent bankers whose insight of 1929 is nowadays claimed to have been correct but who carefully abstained from saying openly what they thought, have not gained an exalted place in the esteem of serious people.

North American Car.

Will you please give me a report on North American Car? Am enclosing a self-addressed envelope.—F. L. M.

North American Car corporation operates or leases about 4,000 tank cars, 2,500 poultry cars and 2,000 refrigerator cars.

Total rentals, sales, etc., for 1930 were $4,835,000. They were not reported in 1929. Net income for 1930 before extraordinary charges was $1,150,000, which was 6.07 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to $6.39 per common share, against $782,700, which was 6.83 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to $4.79 per common share for 1929. For the eleven months to December 31, 1931, net income was $510,100 and for the preceding twelve months net was $445,600.

Extraordinary charges in 1930 consisted of loss in operation of marine subsidiaries of $685,500 and the write-off of investments of $1,029,000 in these subsidiaries which were discontinued as an unprofitable venture.

For the first nine months of 1931 net income was $353,700, which was 2.52 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to $1.40 per common share, against net of $523,600, which was 3.62 times dividend requirements and equal to $2.59 per common share for the corresponding 1930 period.

On Nov. 10, 1931, President Howard was quoted as stating that third quarter operations were adversely affected by the shutdown of east Texas and Oklahoma City oil fields. They have since reopened, although on a schedule lower than that prevailing prior to the shut down. The fourth quarter is usually good. He stated that the company had shown a profit in every month of 1931.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $1,764,000 and current liabilities were $1,376,000. Cash and marketable securities were $491,000. Working capital was $388,000, against $1,333,000 the year before.

In his statement of Nov. 10, 1931, President Howard stated that the company's cash position has been materially strengthened since the first of the year.

Funded debt at the beginning of the year was $2,564,000. On September 30, 1931, there were outstanding $1,200 shares of $6 no par preferred and 150,361 shares of no par common.
